It is a recognized fact that Chicago is for some reason not as good a newspaper field as New York, even considering the difference in population. Under these circumstances the city now has as many papers as it will support. Mr. Hearst and the American were not a welcome addition to the fold. Now it is rumored that Mr. Pulitzer proposes bringing a plant to Chicago, and giving to the city another "yellow" sheet. Mr. Hearst gets dangerously near the competing line with the morning papers with his six o'clock morning edition. While it cannot be successfully circulated by carriers to the homes of the city, nor can it compete strongly in the country, as it is printed too late to catch the early morning trains, it can be, and is, sold on the suburban trains and the streets to the reading public as they travel from their homes to their offices and factories. Its price, one cent, is what catches many readers for it. Both the Tribune and the Record tried for a time to meet this competition by also issuing a one cent morning edition, the Tribune putting out the Press-Tribune and the Record the News-Record. An effort in a small way was made to cover up their identity, but it was useless, and the public soon learned what they were, and refused to buy a morning paper for two cents when they could get the same paper under a slightly changed heading for one cent. It was an unprofitable method of warfare, and was soon dropped.

The Post in New Hands.

Following the change in the Times-Herald and Record came the transfer of the Evening Post by Mr. Kohlsaat, who secured it when he purchased the Times-Herald six years ago, to a new company, composed of leading financiers of the city.

Would Like to Suppress This.

The new management propose to make of the Post a strong financial paper. They have made of it an example of Editor Harmsworth's tabloid journalism, reducing the size of the paper one-half and doubling the number.

Since the establishment of the Post by the late James W. Scott it has followed the lines of a classical newspaper, and catered to the better element of newspaper readers. But it never secured a large circulation, and was generally supposed to have proven a losing venture from the start. I have it on good authority, however, that during the last five years it has shown a small profit, but not large enough to have paid anything like an adequate rate of interest on the money invested in it.

Under such conditions it would not be expected to sell for much, and yet those who profess to know say the new owners paid Mr. Kohlsaat $250,000 merely for the business, good will and franchises. There was nothing in the way of a printing plant went with it. It has been, and for a time will continue to be, printed by the Herald, the purchase contract calling for this service for one year, and for this the purchasers are said to pay an additional $50,000. This is said to include only the composition and press work. Nearly $1,000 per week.

Small as the circulation of the Post is, it is probably the only paper in the city that gets any real revenue from its sale. It is a two-cent paper, while its competitors all sell for one cent.

Looking for Jobs.

The combining of the Times-Herald and the Record threw out of employment a large number of newspaper men. Of course, it did not take two editorial or business staffs to get out one paper, and while the "stars" of the Record were retained, the rank and file are now looking for new positions and are rapidly drifting away from Chicago.

He is Open for Engagements.

For the past two years the newspaper makers, the men who write and illustrate the stuff that goes into the Chicago dailies, have been enjoying unprecedented prosperity. Competition in the local field has given an impetus to the employment of men in this line that it never before knew, and good men found themselves in such demand that they were able to ask greatly increased salaries. Until the combination of these two papers there were more jobs than men to fill them. To-day there is a dearth of jobs. Good reporters, good editors, good copy readers, good artists who have been rolling in the luxury that comes from a good position find themselves suddenly without the fold, and are open for engagements.

When the change came, and it came suddenly, almost like a thunder clap from a clear sky, Mr. Lawson informed his old employes that as he had not had time in which to give them notice of the change, he would pay to each of them one month's salary. Publishers are not all heartless.

Moore, the Sons of Veterans, to whom Mr. Moore left a large case of badges, will be obliged to be a party to the defendant. Mrs. Moore is perfectly willing that the Sons should have the case as bequeathed, and the will in this particular will not be changed.

WERE WEDDED WITH ELABORATE CEREMONY

Behind the little page, who acted as custodian of the silken pillow, came the matron of honor, Mrs. Robert Rushmore, a sister of the bride. She was gowned in white chiffon trimmed with point applique lace. Her hat of white tulle was trimmed with white feathers. Mrs. Rushmore carried a bouquet of pink roses and valley lilies tied with pink ribbon.

Leaning on the arm of her brother, Ernest R Ackerman, was the bride who was charmingly gowned in white chiffon trimmed with duchesse lace. Her veil of tulle was fastened with a gold clasp, which held a bunch of orange blossoms. The bride's bouquet consisted of lilies of the valley and light lavender orchids.

At the foot of the chancel the bridal party was joined by the groom and the best man, his brother, Clarence Logan Murphy. Here, before the officiating clergymen, Rev. T. Logan Murphy and Rev. Erskine M. Rodman, the rector, the betrothal was made. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Ernest R. Ackerman. This part of the service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Rodman.

The clergy led the way to the steps of the sanctuary, where the solemnization of the marriage took place, Rev. Mr. Murphy performing the ceremony, which closed with the benediction uttered by Rev. Mr. Rodman. Mendelssohn's wedding march was played as the bridal party retired from the church.

A reception at the residence of Mrs. Robert Rushmore, on West Eighth street, was held immediately after the wedding ceremony. Mrs. Rushmore's palatial home had been transformed into a veritable bower of roses. The decorations surpassed description. In all the rooms the walls and ceilings were covered with roses.

The library in which Mr. and Mrs. Murphy received their friends, was decorated completely in white roses and the reception room adjoining in large red roses. Huge bunches of smilax formed a conspicuous part of these decorations, which were the work of Fleischmann, of New York.

Assisting in receiving at the house were Mrs. Robert Rushmore, Mrs T. Logan Murphy, Mrs. J. Hervey Ackerman and the four bridemaids, the Misses Riker, Wadsworth, DePauw and Denniston.

During the reception Floersheim's Neapolitan Orchestra, of New York, rendered musical selections. A luncheon was served by Delmonico, of New York, and needless to say the menu was particularly fine.

After receiving the congratulations of the assembled guests, Mr. and Mrs. Murphy left for the south. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Murphy will reside with the bride's mother at 318 West Seventh street.

Many of the gowns worn by members of the fashionable set were very elaborate and beautiful. Mrs. Ellen R. Ackerman, the bride's mother, appeared in light gray silk with a hat of violets. The groom's mother, Mrs. T. Logan Murphy, wore a gown of black velvet trimmed with duchesse lace. His sister, Miss Annie Murphy, was attired in light blue pastel cloth embroidered with silver. Mrs. David Misell, a sister of Mrs. T. Logan Murphy, wore a grey crepe de chene.

The bridal presents were in great numbers and some were exceedingly valuable. The groom's gift to the bride was a pin of a floral design containing a pearl bud and an open flower with a large pearl in the centre from which many elongated pearls spread like petals. The whole was set with diamonds. Among the other presents received were a valuable colonial clock and a horse and carriage.

Each of the bridemaids received from the bride a highly finished gold brooch of an unique design, which was set with a large turquoise.

Clarence Eick's programme at the organ recital given at the church before the arrival of the wedding party was: Overture, "Rosamunde," Schubert; "Canzona," Guilmont; Coronation march "LeProphete," Meyerbeer; "Nocturne," op 9, No. 2. Chopin; Overture, "Oberon," Weber; "Gavotte," DeFaye; "Polonaise," op 18, No. 5, Moszkowski; and 'Serenade," Raff.

Some of the out of town guests attending the reception were: Mr. and Mrs. E P. Hoyt, Mr. and Mrs. Deyo, the Misses Deyo, Mrs. E. A. Bowers, Miss Ethel Bowers, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Outcalt, Mrs. Daniel Riker, of New York; Furman Piatt, of Boston; Mrs. Theodore Ackerman and Miss Carrie Ackerman, of New Haven; Mrs. W. Ackerman, of Lyde Park, Scotch Plains; Mrs. DePauw, New Albany, Indiana; Mrs. Edward Spooner and Rev. Floyd Appleton, of Brooklyn; Rev. W. B. Morrow, Bristol, Pa; Raymond Mixsell, Harold Mixsell and Donald Mixsell, of Easton.

A fashionable and enthusiastic audience filled the Casino last evening when an entertainment was given under the auspices of Leal's School Athletic Association. The first part was devoted to prize speaking by five young men from Leal's School. Prof. Leal announced that two cash prizes would be awarded. The first was a purse of $10 and the second one of $5. He also announced that Rev. A. C. Nickerson, George A. Strong and John Doul Miller had consented to act as judges. He also stated that owing to a loss of voice, Gordon Wilson Abbott, who was to give "The National Flag," by Beecher, would not be able to appear.

The speakers and their subjects were as follows: "The Storming of Mission Ridge," Samuel Wickham Corwin; "John Burns of Gettysburg," Dudley Paul Babcock; "A Plea for Enthusiasm," Vaughn McGee; "Decoration Day Address at Arlington," Walter Eaton Cahoone; "The Day of Judgment," Frank Peterson Simons.

Each speaker received hearty applause. Later it was announced that Frank Peterson Simons was the winner of the first prize, and Samuel Wickham Corwin the winner of the second prize.

Part second of the programme was occupied with a production of that very amusing farce-comedy "A Box of Monkeys." The various parts were taken by young men and they interpreted them with much credit.

The plot of the sketch was simple enough. An English girl had come to America to learn the fascination of the American girl so that she might capture a man of rank in her native land. A western girl took it upon herself to enlighten the English young woman and taught her the use of slang as one of the chief fasciuating qualities of the American girl. She proved a ready pupil but the effort was all in vain for she eventually wound up by marrying a wealthy young westerner. There were plenty of humorous situations in the play and they were given with much credit.

The cast was as follows:

Edward Ralston.....Robert F. Tilney, 2d
A promising young American, half owner of the Sierra Gold Mine.
Chauncey Oglethorpe.....Donald A. McGee
His partner, second son of Lord Doncaster.
Mrs. Oadego-Jhones, N. Pendleton Rogers, Jr
An admirer of rank.
Sierra Bengaline ....Effingham A. Pinto
Her niece, a prairie rose.
Lady Guinevere Llandpoore...E. Clinton Hall
An English primrose, daughter of the Earl of Paynaught.

There were two acts, one daytime and the other evening in the drawing room of the home of "Mrs. Ondego-Jhones," 900 Fifth avenue. The taking of the parts of female characters by the young men was a new departure for local talent, but it proved very successful. Most interest was centred in the work of the three young men who filled the roles of the three women in the play. Effingham A. Pinto was delightfully feminine. He handled his skirts in wonderful fashion and had all the mannerisms of many of the modern girls.

E Clinton Hall, as the English girl, was a huge success. He also handled the strange attire with comparative ease and was very charming in evening dress. N. Pendleton Rogers, Jr., had a difficult part but gave it the requisite dignity even if he was not well acquainted with some of the tricks of the fairer sex. What greatly amused many in the audience were his brown arms, the result of long exposure to the sun on the golf course, which were fully displayed when he appeared in a stylish evening gown. The work of all three showed that they had been long and thoroughly coached in their feminine roles.

Robert F. Tilney 2d and Donald A. McGee played their parts well. There was not a slip on the part of either and they put unusual expression in their parts.

There was music before and after the prize speaking and between the acts by Philip G. Nieder, violin, and William J. Schoonmaker, accompanist. They rendered the following se-

SOLD TWO LOTS.

Game Near Not Selling Any as Auctioneer Van Winkle Had No License in Plainfield.

There was a hurry call for Auctioneer Hezikiah Hand yesterday afternoon. He was needed to allow the auction sale of real estate belonging to the Evan Jones estate, at the corner of Putnam avenue and Richmond street, to take place.

J. E Van Winkle, an auctioneer from Jersey City, was prepared to conduct the sale when Roundsman Mattox arrived on the scene and explained that only a licensed auctioneer could conduct a sale in the city limits. As the license had to be obtained from the Common Council, Mr. Van Winkle could get none in time for the sale and so Mr. Hand was hunted up.

The sale took place during the afternoon, but, after two of the twenty-one lots were disposed of, the sale adjourned. The crowd was small and the bidding was slow. Both lots sold, one on Putnam avenue and one on Richmond street, brought $15 a front foot. One was fifty feet wide and the other seventy feet wide.

Baldwin, of the Jersey Central Railroad, a few days ago, which stated that definite word would be given by the company within a few days. It is supposed that the deal now on whereby the Jersey Central will pass into the hands of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company, is causing the delay. The latter company has asked the Jersey Central Company not to make any more contracts than necessary until the deal is effected.

WHAT NEW MARKET OFFERS TO PUBLIC.

"Izaak Walton" Writes Regarding Advantages of That Suburban Town.

NEED OF A TROLLEY.

EXPLAINS HOW TROLLEY WOULD BENEFIT EVERYBODY.

Points Out Growth of New Market Even Under Present Conditions—Petition for Trolley Signed by 371 People From New Market.

To The Editor of The Daily Press:—

A petition has been circulated and signed by 371 property-owners, residents and school children in the township of Piscataway, asking the Elizabeth and Plainfield and Central Jersey Street Railway Company to extend their tracks to New Market, a village situated one mile from the Jersey Central Railroad, where there is good accommodation for travel, three miles and a half from Plainfield and two miles from the terminus of the above named trolley road at the corner of West Seventh street and Monroe avenue.

There is probably no locality in New Jersey that affords better building sites, which can be purchased at such reasonable prices, and where there is so little sickness, as New Market. Besides this there is a fine body of water to greet the new comer, where black bass and other species of the finny tribe are daily caught by expert fishermen during the summer season. There are also numerous boating parties that frequently lunch on the island or banks of the lake. In the winter vast numbers visit this place and enjoy an afternoon or evening skating on the lake.

New Market as a place of residence, cannot be excelled. The boarders that seek the place in summer exceed one hundred, and already forty persons have engaged board for the coming season. We have as good a school as can be found in many larger towns, with a supervising principal who looks after all schools in the township. Again we are blessed with two days of worship, there being a Seventh-Day Baptist as well as a first day Baptist church. Friendship Hall is large and well adapted for all kinds of public affairs. People who reside here and work in Plainfield are obliged to walk a mile and a half to the Plainfield trolley terminus, independent of the large number that have to purchase goods in Plainfield that cannot be had here.

You ask which place, Plainfield or New Market, would be benefited most? In my own mind I think the trolley would come first, then Plainfield and New Market last. To property holders it would be a great boom and to residents a great accommodation. It has been said that there are now no more improvements here than twenty years ago. This is not so. We have an electric light system, macadamized roads, public hall, telephone, besides a great many more houses. The Lehigh Valley Railroad Company gives us poor accommodation and with no trolley and not a factory in the place is it surprising that the town has not grown more.

For the benefit of the public I have made a list of houses that were standing in 1887 and those erected since between the Jersey Central Railroad and Lehigh Valley Railroad. In 1887 there were twenty-six houses between the points named, and there are sixteen houses erected since 1887 between the Lehigh Valley Railroad and Centre street. The houses standing in 1887 between Centre street and the Jersey Central Railroad, number sixty. Forty houses have been erected since 1887 between Centre street and the Jersey Central Railroad.

With the poor facilities for travel it is of interest to know that we still continue to grow. Will not all agree that with a trolley to our village the working element could reach Plainfield easily and sporting people could indulge in their favorite pleasure on the lake, either rowing, fishing or skating. Persons would soon purchase land where they could have a garden of their own at small expense, healthier for little ones and enjoy life within a few minutes of business.

PEEP AT SESSION OF CONTINENTAL CONGRESS

Novel Entertainment Given By Pupils of Borough High School Last Evening.

SIGNED THE DECLARATION.

PRIZE SPEAKING CONTEST WAS WON BY MISS ALICE MARTIN.

Other Numbers on The Programme—Chief Feature Was The Meeting of The Continental Congress—Participants Were in Colonial Garb.

The entertainment given last evening by the pupils of the North Plainfield High School for the benefit of the institution's athletic association drew a large crowd to the Somerset street school building, where the interesting exercises were held. All the tickets of admission were disposed of several days ago and last evening many were unable to gain admittance.

Throughout, the programme was uniformally well rendered and the audience, which filled even the aisles of the assembly room, constantly showed its appreciation of the successful efforts of the participant. Sisters and brothers, fathers and mothers as well as the friends of the pupils taking part in the entertainment, went away with a feeling that the borough schools are doing something which renders the school life of the children a happy one.

The interest was equally divided between the prize speaking contest and the one act play entitled "The Continental Congress." Mention should be made of the vocal and instrumental music which formed a pleasing part of the programme.

First on the programme came two piano duets by Miss Waterbury and Miss Clara VanFleet. Habanera chorus and march from "Carmen" by G. Bizet and "Sublime, Sweet, Evening Star" by Wagner. The initial contestant for the prize in the speaking contest was Clyde Slater who recited "The Studious Girl," which well depicted the ravings of an overworked pupil. Miss Quipp recited in a good voice "Handel's Oratorio" and Miss Alice Martin rendered "On the Rappahannock" in a manner that showed much study of the lines. "The Speech of Regulus," delivered by Oscar Orite, and "The Bishop and Caterpillar," recited by Miss Mabel Stevens, evoked considerable applause. Miss Ursula Krewson wound up the contest with a recitation entitled "The Liberty Bell" and her effort was very creditable.

In announcing the decision of the judges of the contest, Samuel St. John McCutchen remarked that the enunciation, expression, gestures and general manner of delivery had all been considered in weighing the relative merit of the several speeches and that the unanimous decision of the judges was that Miss Alice Martin had justly earned the reward of $5 offered and he took much pleasure in presenting it to her. At the same time he congratulated the other contestants on the ability displayed.

"The Continental Congress" was enacted by the High School boys. The scene was laid in Independence Hall and the stirring proceedings leading up to the signing of the Declaration of Independence were vividly portrayed. In the cast were represented the leading delegates from the several states who were present when the arguments, preceding the adoption of the instrument, were made. All those engaged in the representation of the Congress were appropriately costumed.

Chief among the characters on the role were "President, John Hancock," G C. W. Smith; "John Adams, of Massachusetts," Edward Overton; "Stockton, of New Jersey," Fred Armstrong; "Wythe, of Verginia," E. Adams; "Bartlett, of New Hampshire," O. Faber; "Penn, of North Carolina," W. Messersmith; "Paca, of Maryaland," W. Hamilton; "Dickinson, of Pennsylvania," R Stevens; "Samuel Adams, of Massachusetts," F. Emmel; "Wipple," E. George, and "Benjamin Franklin, of Pennsylvania," Morgan Townsend.

Climaxing the debate was the unanimous adoption and signing of the document, amid the cheers of the colonial spectators.

Supervision of this part of the entertainment was in the hands of Miss Susie E. Glass, the principal, and the pupils displayed the careful training she had given them.

A vocal solo by Miss Winnie Carroll and a violin solo by G C. M. Smith, who was accompanied by Miss Bem-

AT THE THEATRES.

Something About the Attractions Which Plainfield Theatre-Goers May Care to Witness.

"A vein of humor direct from the fountain of fun and comedy that causes incessant laughter," is the assertion regarding the musical rural comedy drama, "Down on the Farm," which is to be presented at Music Hall Monday night. It undoubtedly is a good play, for it has had splendid endorsement from leading papers, and wherever it has been presented has given unbounded satisfaction. It will have the benefit of a fine cast of artists, headed by Chas. Manley, an actor of ability, who appears in the character of "Seth Huckins," a country squire. A splendid band and orchestra, with high class specialties of song and dance and the "Hayseed Quartette" are leading features of the performance. A grand street parade and concert by the "Pumpkin Orchestra" and the "Squashtown Band" will be given at noon Monday.

The 100th consecutive performance of David Belasco's "Madame Butterfly" will be celebrated at Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre, New York, Tuesday night, April 16. This little playlet has broken all records for consecutive performances in vaudeville and with the end of its run nowhere in sight, it should be many a day before its remarkable record is equalled. A strong lot of features will be seen next week in conjunction with "Madame Butteryfly;" Press Eldridge, always a favorite; Leo Dervalto, on the spiral globes; Ward and Curran, grotesque comedians; Zelma Rawleston, in character changes and songs; John Healy, funny blackface comedian; Ostrando, gymnast; Hank Whitcomb, rube comedian; etc. The prices still remain at 25 and 50 cents. The performance continues from 12:30 to 10:45.

SHUT OUT OUR BEEF.

English Government Said to Contemplate Such Action.

CHICAGO PACKERS ARE ALARMED.

Such a Decree on the Part of England Would Be a Severe Blow to American Exporters.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Swift & Co., the Chicago packing firm, have wired the agricultural department regarding probable action of the English government excluding all but home bred beef from army contracts. Mr. A. H. Veeder, general counsel for Swift & Co., said their London representative had cabled to the above effect.

The Chicago concern has asked the agricultural department for any assistance it can render. It has pointed out that the action of the British government is a severe blow to American beef and cattle exporters and producers and means not alone the loss in government trade, but it is feared it will serve very materially toward inciting a prejudice on the part of the people of Great Britain against the beef and cattle of this country.

No official information of this reported contemplated move has reached the department, according to statements of officials. Steps have been taken, however, looking to acquiring whatever information it is possible to get.

To demonstrate the importance of the move now said to be contemplated it is pointed out that the value of our exports of live animals to Great Britain amounts to $40,000,000, while the total of animal products exported from the United States to Great Britain is stated to be in round numbers $200,000,000. It is pointed out here that this proposed embargo may really be a sequel in greater or less degree to the proceedings instituted at New Orleans against shipments of horses and mules from that port for use in the South African campaign. While this is of course merely conjectural it is very strongly hinted that the New Orleans incident probably is the direct inspiration for the step.

It is pointed out that if the English really decided to take the action reported in the advices just received the British might turn to Australia for their meats. It is claimed, however, that meats cannot be got there in as good a quality or as cheap as in the United States.

Cudahy Not Frightened.

OMAHA, April 12.—Edward A. Cudahy, head of the packing house interests of the packing company, was asked what he anticipated would be the effect of the decision of the British government to refrain from the use of American meats in its army contracts. He said he thought the result would not be serious. He understands that the restriction affects the home government alone and not the colonies, and he stated that his company was now filling an order for 2,000,000 pounds for the English government's use in South Africa, part of which has already been shipped. He says the home consumption of meat by that government is small and will be of little or no consequence in the packing business.

Nuptial Mass In a Cloister.

BALTIMORE, April 12.—Cardinal Gibbons has been invited to attend the first nuptial mass ever celebrated within the walls of a cloister and has accepted. The wedding will be that of Miss May Matilda O'Ryan of Silling, Que., to Dr. Gustave Arthur Taschereau of St. Ferdinand, Canada. The place will be the convent of the Ursulines, near New York city, and the ceremony will take place at noon next Wednesday in the chapel. Miss O'Ryan has been staying in the convent as a visitor for some time as the guest of her sister, Mother St. Michael, and it is in order to give the nuns, among whom the young lady has many friends, an opportunity to witness the ceremony that it has been arranged to take place in the institution.

Christian Scientists Scored.

NEW YORK, April 12.—At the New York East M. E. conference yesterday Dr. J. M. Buckley said: "Christian Science is the most subtle form of heresy the church has had to encounter since the third century. The atheism of Ingersoll is not to be more deprecated than this new doctrine." The consideration of Christian Science caused an exciting half hour at the conference. Dr. J. M. Buckley bitterly assailed the cult of which Mrs. Eddy is the head and declared that the minister who deserted his faith and followed it was started on the way to perdition.

A Tardy Transport.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—The transport Garonne sailed from Manila on March 9, with the Twenty-sixth volunteer infantry, except Company F, and has not yet been reported at San Francisco. This has not caused any apprehension at the war department, for it took the Garonne 11 days to reach Nagasaki, coal and resume her voyage, while the other transports take only nine days. She is a slow vessel and may be a week behind the other transports if she makes no better time between Nagasaki and San Francisco than she did on the first part of the voyage.

Fire In Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, April 12.—Fire seriously damaged four business houses at the corner of Diamond and Market streets, involving a loss of about $50,000, mostly covered by insurance. The fire started in the basket store of Charles Roehrig, on the Diamond, from an overheated stove and spread with incredible rapidity.

A British War Order.

LONDON, April 12.—The British war office has issued the following special order regarding surrenders in the field: "Any officer or soldier who when in the presence of the enemy displays a white flag or other token of surrender will be tried by general court martial."

New Jersey Central Employers and Employees Confer.

NO HITCH IN THE PROCEEDINGS.

Concessions Being Made by Both Parties—The Officials Not Disturbed Over Strike Rumors.

NEW YORK, April 12.—The conference between the employees and officials of the Central Railroad of New Jersey at Jersey City on the wage dispute that exists between them did not lead to definite results and was resumed today. Both sides seem to be acting in a spirit of fairness, there is an absence of bitterness from their discussions, and the prospects for a complete adjustment of their differences are very bright.

The meeting yesterday, which was a secret one, convened shortly after 1 o'clock and lasted until the evening. Superintendent Olhausen headed the committee of officials, and Chairman Waite of the Brotherhood of Railway Engineers was at the head of the delegation of workers. His fellow committeemen were with him, and many of the employees not heretofore attached to any of the committees also attended and took part in the discussion. Most of the talk of the afternoon was on the wage schedule of the engineers and firemen, and the last proposition submitted by the railroad before the intervention of the brotherhood chiefs was largely the basis of discussion. It was discussed in detail and a variety of calculations made as to the effect of its operations. The conductors did not participate in the conference, as the question of their wages has been disposed of to their satisfaction. The trainmen were largely represented, and their affairs will be taken up today.

After the conference Timothy Shea, representing the engineers and firemen on the eastern end of the road, said that so far as the conference had proceeded there had been no hitch. The railroad had yielded it some things and the men in others, while other demands on both sides had been compromised. He seemed certain that the conference this morning will not develop any hitch.

The officials of the Central are not disturbed over the trouble reported at the Ashley car shops of the company.

A Southern Naval Training Station.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Admiral Crowninshield, who has just returned from an inspection of southern ports with a view to the establishment of a naval training station, has recommended to the secretary of the navy that the naval station at Port Royal, S. C., be utilized for this purpose. The secretary heartily approves of the recommendation and informed Congressman Elliott that the buildings at Port Royal would be used and improved for the accommodation of from 500 to 1,000 boys, chiefly from the south. The station he told Mr. Elliott would be made a most important one. The machinery now at Port Royal drydock will be transferred to Charleston in accordance with the recent act of congress removing the dock station, and new buildings will be built near Charleston for its reception, it being impossible to remove those at Port Royal.

A Maximilian Chapel.

CITY OF MEXICO, April 12.—The dedication of the chapel in memory of Emperor Maximilian at Queretaro took place yesterday. The religious dedication preceded the coming of the Austrian princes now touring Mexico. The service was really but a mass. The Austrians broke down and wept at the close of the service. The assembly all knelt and kissed the stumps of the pillars marking the spot where Maximilian and his two generals stood when shot. The presidential train brought the Austrian princes back to this capital.

South American Exhibits.

BUFFALO, April 12.—Dr. Juan J. Ulloa, the Pan-American commissioner from Costa Rica, has arrived in the city to take charge of the installation of the exhibit from his country. The Costa Rican exhibit, consisting of 40 cases of material, illustrative of the country's resources, will be in place before May 1. Thirty-four cases of material from the Argentine Republic, 25 from Peru and 75 from Santo Domingo are now on the way to Buffalo from New York.

New House For a Newspaper.

ALBANY, April 12.—The Press-Knickerbocker-Express, the plant of which paper was destroyed by fire upon the evening of Nov. 6 last, opened yesterday its new home erected upon the site of the destroyed building. The new Press building is one of the most complete newspaper establishments in the state. Publisher John A. McCarthy was the recipient of many telegrams and letters of congratulation.

A Denver and Rio Grande Wreck.

PUEBLO, Colo., April 12.—Train No. 2, north bound, on the Denver and Rio Grande railroad, the Atlantic limited which left here at 12:30 p. m., collided at Eden, seven miles north of here, with a south bound train. Both trains were running slowly. Three trainmen were severely injured. The passengers were badly shaken up, but so far as known none was injured.

Dr. Northrop Declines.

MINNEAPOLIS, April 12.—Dr. Cyrus G. Northrop, president of the University of Minnesota, has decided to decline the appointment offered him by the president as delegate to the Pan-American conference at the City of Mexico. He found the date of the conference coincided with that of Yale's bicentennial celebration, at which he had agreed to deliver an address.

Preacher Convicted of Murder.

PENSACOLA, Fla., April 12.—The jury in the case of Ben Stevens, a negro preacher on trial for the murder of Charles Reese, a deacon in his church, has returned a verdict of murder in the first degree, with a recommendation for mercy.

SOUTH AFRICAN NEWS.

General Methuen Out of the Hospital. Kruger Gets Big Check.

LONDON, April 12.—No further news has been received regarding the reported resumption of peace negotiations in South Africa, but the fact that the censor allowed the report to pass and the fact that the government has not issued a denial are held to prove that negotiations of some sort are in progress.

The casualty list issued yesterday revealed the fact that Lord Methuen was discharged from the hospital last week, this being the first notification that he had been ill.

There is no information from South Africa beyond the fact that the British have evacuated Hoopstadt, which, The Daily Mail observes, "seems to show that Lord Kitchener's force is still none too strong."

It is announced from Brussels that the Dutch Transvaal committee has handed to Mr. Kruger a check for 1,000,000 florins collected in Holland for the assistance of the Boers.

It appears that Mr. Kruger's entourage assert that the route from Leydsdoran to Zoutpansberg is heavily fortified and able to resist the British a long time.

Pottery Hands Dissatisfied.

TRENTON, April 12.—There is trouble brewing between the manufacturing potters of the country and their employees, particularly with respect to the western potteries. The men who are employed in the western potteries are dissatisfied because, as they claim, the scale of wages agreed upon by the manufacturers and the men has not been put in full operation. The men in the west are endeavoring to have their national organization call all the men out if the manufacturers do not agree to their demands. The men who comprise the Trenton end of the organization are opposed to the move because they have no special grievance. A representative of the western manufacturers has been in Trenton for the past week endeavoring to have the Trenton manufacturers stand with the western manufacturers in case the men are called out.

The Bulgarian Crisis.

LONDON, April 12.—"Strong significance attaches to the fact," says the Constantinople correspondent of The Daily Chronicle, "that, the Bulgarian minister of war having forbidden officers to hold any communication with the Macedonia committee, several immediately resigned. This proves the existence of widespread sympathy with the Macedonian movement. If the prohibition is extended to civil as well as military officers, the speedy downfall of the Bulgarian ministry is almost inevitable. The Macedonian congress is now definitely fixed for May 17, and a grave crisis is contemplated."

To Remove Boycott on Lawson.

Chicago, April 12.—After a two days' session the committee of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor selected to arbitrate the complaint of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' union against Victor F. Lawson, publisher of The Daily News, has rendered a decision. The decision is a recommendation that the pressmen and assistants officially declare off the boycott on The News. Until the pressmen shall have taken this action the decision states that the council is not warranted in attempting to settle any other issue.

Minister "Regulated" With Staves.

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., April 12.—A number of negroes made up of members of the faction in the Baptist church that is opposed to its pastor, Elder J. T. Fitts, seized the minister and his wife after prayer meeting, threw ropes around their necks, dragged them into a hollow beside the road and "regulated" them with barrel staves laid vigorously on their backs. Minister Fitts swore out warrants for six of the regulators.

Insane Soldier Escapes.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., April 12.—An insane soldier who had returned from the Philippines and was being taken to his home in New Haven escaped from Erie train No. 12 at Middletown. At that place it was necessary to open the doors of the car in which he was confined, and while the vigilance of the guards was relaxed the soldier broke away. He has not been recaptured.

A Law Against Lawyers.

AUSTIN, April 12.—The governor has signed the barratry bill. This measure imposes a heavy fine and imprisonment upon lawyers who foment suits against railroads and other corporations or who advance money to clients to secure such cases.

CHICAGO, April 12.—A floral parade that will surpass anything of the kind ever attempted in the west is one of the features contemplated for the entertainment of President McKinley when he shall visit Chicago in June.

AT WASHINGTON'S TOMB.

French Embassador and His Guests Visit Mount Vernon.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—There was a touching scene at Mount Vernon yesterday when M. Cambon, the French embassador, accompanied by the officers and cadets of the French training ship Duguay Trouin and other distinguished guests, placed a wreath of flowers on the tomb of Washington. The occasion was commented on as being particularly indicative of the continued fraternal feeling existing between the two great republics of Europe and America.

After the ceremony at the tomb they spent some time in looking at the many objects of interest in the old mansion which Washington occupied while a resident at Mount Vernon and in straying around the spacious grounds surrounding it. In the mansion particular attention was paid to the room in which Washington died and to that in which the Marquis de Lafayette slept while a guest at Mount Vernon. Several group pictures were taken, one of them while the party surrounded the tomb and others in different parts of the grounds. The party, which comprised about 70 persons in all and included a number of ladies, went down the river on the president's yacht Sylph, returning to the city at 6 o'clock.

Mayor Tom L. Johnson of Cleveland has issued orders to close the gambling houses and dives.

Ten thousand deaths from the plague have occurred in Canton, China, during the past six weeks.

Cuban Radicals In Majority.

HAVANA, April 12.—At the secret session of the Cuban constitutional convention yesterday several delegates offered motions that the convention should express its disapproval of the principles embodied in the Platt amendment, especially clauses 1, 3, 6 and 7. Senor Gibarga move that the subject be indefinitely postponed, but this proposal was supported by only six delegates. The effort of the radical element is to put the convention on record against the amendment before voting to send a commission to Washington. It was evident that the radicals had a majority. The matter will be further discussed today.

Women Combine to Fight Vice.

NEW YORK, April 12.—The women who recently started a campaign against vice in this city met yesterday and formed a permanent organization under the name of "the antivice committee of women of New York." The object of the committee will be to arouse women of all creeds and classes to the need for the purification of public morals. These officers were elected: Mrs. Ella A. Poole, president; Mrs. Anna Jackson, first vice president; Mrs. Sidney Rosenfeld, second vice president; Miss Kate Bond, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. John de Rivera, recording secretary.

New York Wrestler Won.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., April 12.—Leo Pardello of New York, champion middleweight wrestler of that state, defeated Carl Schmidt of Elizabeth, N. J., in a mixed style match for a purse of $250 under the auspices of the Berkshire club. The first fall was won by Schmidt with an inside hammer and a half strangle at catch as catch can. The second fall, at Graeco-Roman, was won by Pardello with a Nelson and body hold. The deciding fall was at catch as catch can and was won by Pardello with a left arm lock and a right wrist hold.

Transfer of Lincoln's Remains.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., April 12.—The remains of Abraham Lincoln, which have been resting in a temporary vault during the reconstruction of the Lincoln monument, will be removed to the new monument within a few days. The removal will be private, only the trustees of the monument, state officers and representatives of the press being present. It is probable that the casket containing the body of the martyred president will be opened. The exact day fixed for the transfer of the remains will not be made public.

Texas Oil Better Than Expected.

LIMA, O., April 12.—Tests made in refining Texas crude oil at the Standard Oil refinery here show the product of the Beaumont field to be of much higher grade than has been heretofore estimated. That the oil market must in the future reckon with the Beaumont output as a factor is now coming to be recognized. The recent decline in both the Pennsylvania and Lima markets is attributed to the strike in the Beaumont field.

Hosiery Factory Destroyed.

BARNESVILLE, O., April 12.—Fire resulted in the complete destruction of the new plant of the Barnesville Hosiery company yesterday. Just how the fire originated is a mystery. A conservative estimate places the loss at $60,000 on building and stock, with $35,000 insurance. More than 100 employees are thrown out of work. It is not likely that the factory will be rebuilt.

Krupp Dismissing Workmen.

BERLIN, April 12.—The Lokal Anzeiger and the Frankfurter Zeitung confirm the report that 5,000 of the workmen of Herr Krupp have been dismissed, including 3,000 who were employed in the cannon works.

Telephone Company Sold.

ANSONIA, Conn., April 12.—The sale of the Ansonia Telephone company to the Southern New England Telephone company has been consummated in the transfer of the majority of the stock to the controlling corporation.

French Miners' Congress.

LENS, France, April 12.—The congress of French miners has opened in Lens. Unless the French government agrees to bring in an eight hour day bill the delegates will probably vote for a general strike.

Chinese Court to Return.

LONDON, April 12.—According to the Shanghai correspondent of The Standard, the Chinese assert that the court has decided to leave Sian-fu for Peking via the province of Honan May 7.

CAPTIVES SET FREE.

Aguinaldo's Companions at Liberty.

FILIPINO CHIEF FEARS VENGEANCE.

Friends of General Luna, Whom He Ordered Assassinated, Might Do Him Harm — Buencamino to Renounce Politics.

MANILA, April 12.—Colonel Vellia, Aguinaldo's chief of staff, and Dr. Barcelona, ex-treasurer of the Philippine "government," who were captured at the same time General Funston made a prisoner of their chief, were liberated yesterday.

Aguinaldo will probably be removed in a few days to a private house in the vicinity of Malacanan, where he is provisionally held as a prisoner under guard. It is said that Aguinaldo fears the vengeance of the friends of General Luna, who was assassinated by order of Aguinaldo, and that the authorities are afraid to let him out of their hands. The authorities refuse to say a word on the subject, and their actions are not explained.

Aguinaldo is said to have prepared a brief manifesto to the Filipinos in which he advises them to submit and gives reasons for doing so. He acknowledges the incapacity of the Filipinos to govern themselves and advises the leaders, as for their best interest, to give in. This manifesto is being translated into Tagalog, Spanish and English, but it is not known whether it has as yet been signed by Aguinaldo.

The strike of the native employees of the Manila-Dagupan railroad for an increase of 50 per cent in their wages has been settled.

Senor Buencamino, one of the leaders of the Federal party, announces that he intends to renounce politics. He refuses to call and see Aguinaldo. Senor Paterno, head of the new Autonomy party, promises to organize a new party after the conclusion of peace. The object of this party will be to secure a territorial form of government.

MANILA POSTAL SERVICE.

Accounts of the Office Said to Be In Bad Shape.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—A letter from A. L. Lawshe, auditor of the Philippines, has been received at the war department, and certain portions of it have been sent to the postmaster general for his information. The letter relates largely to the methods of keeping accounts, which are not approved by Mr. Lawshe and which have not been in accordance with the forms prescribed. Mr. Lawshe took four expert clerks when he went to the Philippines, and they are going over the accounts. It is said at the department that there is no intimation of any fraud or wrongdoing, but that a system of bookkeeping is in vogue which lacks the business methods necessary to secure the best results.

The transmission of this letter to the postmaster general gave rise to reports that irregularities and frauds had developed in the Philippine postal service. Postmaster General Emory Smith gave an emphatic denial to these reports. "The accounts as filed here," said Mr. Smith, "are certainly ample. They account satisfactorily for everything. As to irregularities there is absolutely no word of foundation for such a story. Not long ago one of the most experienced inspectors in the postal service was sent to the Philippines, and he made a thorough inspection of every detail of the work there. His report paid a high tribute to the condition of affairs. The reports from there show a handsome surplus, a showing that I only wish the service in the United States could make. There is nothing whatever to substantiate such reports."

Liquor Legislation In Massachusetts.

BOSTON, April 12.—Two of the most important liquor bills before the legislature this year were defeated simultaneously in the senate and house yesterday by decisive votes. The so called semi-colon bill, a measure permitting innholders to sell liquor after 11 o'clock at night, now prevented by the recent decision of the supreme court, was killed by a vote of 7 to 28, with two pairs, the entire senate with one exception being recorded. In the house the bill to amend the abutters' bill, so persons whose property adjacent to property where liquor is sold cannot object to license after the liquor dealer has been established on the property two years, was defeated by a vote of 69 to 132.

Hendricks Monument Desecrated.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 12.—Serious damage has been done to the Thomas A. Hendricks monument in the statehouse grounds presumably by metal thieves. One of the granite ornaments weighing 100 pounds and surmounted by a heavy piece of bronze was broken from its base and thrown to the ground, a bronze shield crossed with a piece of bronze representing a laurel leaf was forced from its place high up on the monument and carried away, and the scales which the figure of Justice held in her hand were stolen.

Patrick Hearing Ended.

NEW YORK, April 12.—The hearing in the case of Albert T. Patrick, charged with the murder of the aged millionaire, William Marsh Rice, closed yesterday afternoon, and Justice Jerome announced that he reserved his decision, but hoped to make it known by next Monday. It rests with Justice Jerome whether or not Patrick will be held for the grand jury. Meanwhile Patrick will stay in the Tombs.

Major Taylor Wins at Berlin.

BERLIN, April 12.—In the bicycle races here Major Taylor won the kilometer match, with a prize of 300 marks, defeating the German riders Arend, Huber, Ellegaard, Seidl and others and leading Arend by 20 lengths. In the tandem race, 600 meters, Major Taylor and Arend were the winners.

Michigan Railway Legislation.

LANSING, Mich., April 12.—The house has passed the Chandler ad valorem railroad tax bill, which also provides for the taxation according to the ad valorem system of telephone, telegraph, express, sleeping car and parlor companies. The vote was 79 yeas to 13 nays.

Raising the Rawlins.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—The contract for raising the transport Rawlins, sunk in New York, has been let to the American Wrecking company. The work is to be done at a per diem rate, and the ship must be raised within 16 days.

Borough Problems.

The Councils of city and borough are now investigating the subject of municipal ownership of the water supply plant. In North Plainfield, the question of borough ownership for an electric light plant is also included. The Borough Council has, as well, decided to investigate the subject of sewage disposal.

Not for several years has such a combination of important questions come before either of the local Councils. Borough control of the water supply, the electric lights and the sewers are three important questions which will give the North Plainfield Councilmen plenty of food for thought. It is hardly possible that all three will be instituted at once. The investigation of all three can be made at the same time, however, and the relationship which the three naturally bear will make the general subject of all the more interest.

What will be done regarding the question of municipal ownership of the water works? That question is, at present, more largely in the public eye than either of the others. Will city and borough unite on any plan which they may work jointly? Such an event is not to be expected. There are some radical differences in the ideas of the city and borough administrations and it would be difficult indeed to find a common plan that would suit them both. If the present investigation results in anything tangible, there is no doubt but that the two municipalities will enter into the scheme independently of each other. It can truthfully be said, however, that the borough officials seem more anxious than do those on this side of the brook to inaugurate a water supply plant of their own, and North Plainfield may be expected to act on the subject sooner than will her neighbor.

If the people of Plainfield and North Plainfield are anxious to pay less for their water supply, they know how it can be accomplished. The introduction of water meters throughout the city and borough would result in a far more equitable arrangement between the Plainfield Water Supply Company and its patrons than at present. Municipal ownership will take time to secure. The movement in that direction has been started. By all means let it continue. But why not make the charge for the water according to the amount actually used rather than according to the number of taps. It would be more satisfactory to all concerned and can be accomplished if the demand on the company is general enough. It rests with the people to let the company know how they feel on the subject.

The rains of the past week have had a most marked effect upon all vegetation. With the coming of the warm spring days, the well kept lawns which surround Plainfield's homes will present a sight of beauty indeed. To a stranger the almost universal comment is "how neat and beautiful are our homes, not alone those of the rich, but also those of the great middle class of our city's population." Zealous activity on the part of our people is essential to keep up the well deserved reputation. The Town Improvement Association deserves much credit. Let all aid in the work. Induce the children to pick up stray bits of paper and place them in receptacles provided for that purpose. Such acts will exact but little labor from us and add much, very much, to our attractiveness.

It is at last possible to identify the various thoroughfares of the city without the aid of a map. The new street signs have arrived and a number have already been put in position. They are large and easily seen while so made as to be durable and not easily defaced. They have been put up at a height which makes them plain to observation and yet beyond the reach of small boys. There is no doubt but that these signs will be of lasting benefit to Plainfield. It is only hoped that the officials of the street department keep their eyes on these signs and see that they are maintained in good condition and any missing ones placed without delay. In that way strangers will be able to find their way about the city unaided and an unenviable reputation will have been lost.

It is only a question of time when the poles of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company will be placed along the streets of the borough of Bound Brook. For several years the big telephone company has been working to gain the permission of the Bound Brook Council to enter the place. It has been strongly opposed by the stockholders of a local telephone company who have been able to bring sufficient influence to bear to keep the big corporation out of town. Now, however, the greater concern has evoked the aid of the courts and the borough authorities will have to bow before their superior power.

Thirty days imprisonment is rather a light sentence for the theft of a wheel. Now that there are so many bicycles in use and they are, of necessity, left more or less exposed, the authorities of the State should use special precautions to protect them against theft. When one is stolen, an example should be made of the offender in order to deter others from following in his footsteps. There may have been mitigating circumstances in this case, however, which caused the Judge to impose such a light sentence.

City and borough will benefit equally if the view from the new bridge over Green brook can be improved upon. At present, there are many unsightly things to be seen from that bridge and the stranger who passes that way cannot help but be struck by the contrast with the appearance of the rest of the city. It is too bad if the proper city authorities cannot spare enough time to attend to the matter.

The scholastic baseball season has begun in Plainfield and the meeting of the various school teams will be watched with interest. Baseball is rising again in popular favor and the school games promise to be particularly popular.

A number of local churches have held their annual meetings recently and in nearly every case the fact has been brought out that the churches are in remarkably satisfactory condition financially.

Real estate dealers report that business has not been so brisk in Plainfield as this spring for many years. There are many new families coming to city and borough.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May Be Of Interest to Plainfield and Its Citizens.

Plainfield is wrestling with the problem of municipal ownership. One of the newspapers is making a determined campaign in favor of municipal ownership of the water supply plant. It is a serious matter for a city the size and importance of Plainfield to be dependent upon a private corporation for its water supply. The experiment of municipal ownership of the water supply plant was opposed in New Brunswick, just as it is being opposed now in Plainfield. Results, however, have justified the wisdom of the purchase of the water company's rights and equipment by the city. The water supply system is one of New Brunswick's most valuable assets, the most valuable, in fact, for the receipts therefrom aid materially in meeting the expenses of the city government. Plainfield should take pattern after New Brunswick, and go in for its own water supply system. Then, whatever is made will be made by the city, and water rates can be kept down to as low a notch as is consistent with proper business judgment. — New Brunswick Times.

NEW MARKET.

(Special Correspondence.)

New Market, April 12—On complaint of F. O Nelson, a warrant was issued Tuesday for the arrest of Samuel Matthews on a charge of assault and alleged theft. He was afterward apprehended and taken to the county jail. Matthews, it is alleged, went to Nelson's yard Tuesday morning and demanded some oats which the latter had purchased at Matthews' auction. He then entered the house, Mrs. Nelson being the only occupant, and began tieing up the bags of grain. At this juncture, Nelson appeared upon the scene and commanded Matthews to desist. The latter, it it also alleged, drew a revolver and threatened to blow his head off. Felson retreated but did not interfere with the removal of the grain. It is said that Matthews also removed some small chicken coops from the yard and smashed some others. The prisoner will be arraigned before the Grand Jury.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD

(Special Correspondence.)

South Plainfield, April 12—The house and barn belonging to the Donohue estate were burned to the ground yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The house was uninhabited at the time of the fire. There was no hay in the barn, but a reaper and binder worth $140 was consumed. The binder was owned in partnership by Jesse Dayton and two others. These buildings were, up to the first of the month, used by Jesse Dayton. It is supposed, and is very probable, that the fire originated from the railroad and was carried by the dry field grass to the house. The field between the Donahue estate and the Lehigh Valley Railroad is completely burned off.

A Hoboken, N. J. stockkeeper states that he has long been the victim of a frightful species of torture. "From night until early morn," he says, "I walked the floor and could not sleep. Dyspepsia was the chief trouble. I had been trying various remedies with but little success, until about six months ago I started to take Ripans Tabules. They have cured me. At first I took them very sparingly, being naturally afraid of them but I kinder noticed a change and I took three each day, until now I only take one a day or one whenever I feel bad. They were brought to my notice by a gentleman who was taking them for acid indigestion and bad stomach, such as vomiting, headaches and bad breath. He has been positively cured, although he is too modest to advertise it. I will not take the liberty of mentioning his name or address, but you have my full permission to use this letter, as I am positively cured of one of the most distressing diseases on earth."

WANTED. A case of bad health that RIPANS will not benefit. They banish pain and prolong life. One gives relief. Note the word RIPANS on the package and do not accept an imitation. RIPANS may be had at any drug store. Five cents buys the package. The five cent package is will be mailed to any address for 5 cents, forwarded to the Ripans Chemical Co., No. 10 Spruce St., New York.

SKIRTS.

There Are No Great Changes In the Summer Models.

Skirts of solid material usually have the lining attached to the outside, but skirts of transparent goods are better with a separate drop skirt. Silk is to be preferred to all other skirt linings, from the point of view of elegance, but is not very durable and is decidedly expensive. A thin but good quality of moreen is probably the most substantial skirt lining now to be found.

Reasonably heavy goods of firm texture may often be made up without a skirt lining. This saves not only trouble, but much extra weight, and it is undeniable that women often wear too heavy garments, which are a tax upon their strength. In the case of a circular flounce skirt the flounce alone may be lined, the lining being separate and finished with a frill.

GIRL'S COSTUME.

The picture shows a girl's costume of navy blue serge. The skirt has a circular flounce of white serge, with horizontal corded tucks, headed by a band of white guipure. The bolero of blue serge is crossed over a vest of white corded serge and has a wide collar of guipure headed by a narrow plaited fichu of white satin. The half length sleeves of blue serge have cuffs of white serge edged with guipure, and below these are long, tight sleeves of white corded serge. The hat of navy blue straw is trimmed with a large bow of white taffeta. JUDIC CHOLLET.

FASHION HINTS.

The Trimming of Sleeves and Arrangement of Chemisettes.

Sleeves, which have been comparatively plain of late years, although at one time of gigantic dimensions, are becoming more and more ornamented. One of the newest styles is tight at the top and flaring at the wrist, with more or less decoration upon the flaring part and one or two large puffs inside the opening. Another fashion has the very tight sleeve as a foundation, with a puff at the elbow or three between the elbow and shoulder.

Boleros and wide corselets necessitate chemisettes and vests of various sorts. These are of silk, mousseline de soie or lace and vary from the plain shirt waist variety to highly elaborate arrangements. The one illustrated is of finely plaited white mousseline de soie. It is covered by bands of black velvet fastened at the middle by bows and gold buckles. The collar is of plaited mousseline, with velvet bands, bows and gold buckles and tabs of guipure turning over at the top. The lower part of the front of the vest is covered by a display of guipure embroidered with spangles, which is suspended from the shoulders and gathered in at the waist under a sort of guipure corselet. EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning April 14. "Foundations"—Text, Math. vii, 24-27.

"A wise man built his house upon a rock." "A foolish man built his house upon the sand."

However many of the foolish die they are never all dead. So it happens that collapsing houses still tumble into ruins and wreck hopes and happiness of owners and friends.

The difficulty is that some still believe sand is preferable to rock as foundation. Others mistake sand for rock, and still others never gave a thought to the matter and are surprised to learn that it makes any difference on what foundations are laid.

"You take yourself too seriously," is the frequent remark to one who is hunting a good building site for character.

"Life is real, life is earnest," is a refrain far from popular, because it is too sober. Yet the truth stands firm, rock is better than sand, and one need never be mistaken for the other.

To build firmly it is not necessary to know all the varieties of sand which should be avoided. Knowledge of wickedness is never wisdom. Experience of vice never assists in attainment of virtue. Sowing wild oats never prepared a field for wheat.

What is bedrock for character?

This sermon on the mount shows it unmistakably. Whole souled reverence for divine things is one element, unwavering confidence in divine protection another; unselfish friendship for one's fellows and unswerving fidelity to conviction are others. Tell me the prime essentials of Christian manhood, and I will tell you the indispensable foundations of human success.

You may build leaning towers of Pisa if you do not let the center of gravity fall outside the base line. You may astonish the world with your dexterity in getting so near the danger point and yet just avoiding it. These are curiosities of human nature as the others are curiosities of architecture and not examples for guidance.

If you have any care for your welfare and profit in the long future, better begin right. Take time, dig deep, strike hardpan or bedrock. Don't deceive yourself. No after repentance can ever undo mischief once done. Forgiveness may come, but never recovery of lost opportunity. Paul may become apostle to the gentiles, but will ever remember that he was guilty in consenting to the death of Stephen.

Rational Faith.

Intelligent piety is our aim in the Epworth League. This is not the same as unquestioning faith, which may be only another name for blind credulity. Doubt and questioning may be signs of deepest devotion to truth rather than marks of irreligious skepticism.

If we are to transmit to others the old faith, we must be able to word it in language which the spirit of this new age can understand. We must make truth credible to the living. No one can believe the absurd. We must first make our faith satisfy our reason and not contradict it. Then we must interpret it to the reason of those we attempt to persuade. Mysteries we shall frequently find which cannot be resolved or explained. We can hold them as such, expectant of solution, reverent, but alertly persistent and patient. But of absurdities we can never be tolerant without hypocrisy. What contradicts ascertained and certain truth can never be rationally conceived nor believed.

This is less an age of doubt and skepticism than many fear and much more an age of fearless searching after truth than many dare believe.

Morning Prayer.

Before beginning the day's work Dr. Arnold of Rugby was accustomed to pray the following prayer:

"O Lord, I have a busy world around me! Eye, ear and thought will be needed for all my work to be done in this busy world. Now, ere I enter on it, I would commit eye and ear and thought to Thee. Do Thou bless them and keep their work Thine, that, as through Thy natural laws my heart beats and my blood flows without any thought of mine, so my spiritual life may hold on its course at those times when my mind cannot consciously turn to Thee to commit each particular thought to Thy service. Hear my prayer for my dear Redeemer's sake. Amen."

Until You Feel It.

Think of what Jesus gave to us. Think until the feeling of His great love and mercy fills your soul.

Think what you have done for Him until the shame of your neglect and meanness fills you with contrition. Then let the feeling of desire to honor Him lead to give yourself wholly to Him.

Then give Him your goods as well as your heart. Make it definite. Don't shrink from sacrifice. Do you dare give one-tenth this year? Try it, if you dare!

Seeing Christ.

Show us Thy face, O Christ, that we may love Thee,
For some forgot and some have never seen,
But there is naught we e'er can place above Thee
When once we see Thee, beautiful, serene.

Show us Thy face that shone of old with blessing
All up and down the ways of Galilee,
And, like Thy fishers, Thy dear might confessing,
We, too, for very love, shall follow Thee.

Show us Thy face, thorn wounded for our healing.
Oh, heart of mine, canst thou that crown forgive?
Those bleeding hands were for our pardon's sealing,
And Thy heart fainted that our souls might live.

Show us Thyself, Lord Christ, in loving kindness
Above the tumult of the world between.
Show us Thyself and put away our blindness;
We needs must love Thee when we once have seen.

—Mary Chandler Jones.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning April 14—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Foundations.—Math. vii, 24-27.

These are closing words of Christ's sermon on the mount. The people have heard His gracious words, but hearing alone does not benefit. They must not only be hearers but doers of His word before they are His. This Christ teaches them in the parable of the houses built upon the rock and sand. He who hears and does is founded upon the rock. He who hears and does not builds upon the sand. Christ points out the results of hearing and doing, and hearing and not doing, and then places the responsibility of action upon the people. We are not compelled to become Christians. Christ does not force us to do His holy will. He shows us the advantages of doing it and the direful consequences of not doing it, and if we are wise we will be both hearers and doers of His words.

Two foundations are mentioned in the topical reference as the basis of our study: 1. The foundation of rock. Our lives may be builded upon a foundation of rock. That rock is Christ Jesus Himself. He is "laid for a foundation" and "other foundation can no man lay." The man who builds upon Christ for time and for eternity builds upon a rock that nothing will ever be able to move. The very gates of hell shall never prevail against it. Christ here teaches us that we build upon Him as the rock when we both hear and do His words. He who knows what Christ would have him do and does it founds his life upon Christ. Christ's desire toward us is for our justification and our sanctification. We are justified and saved by faith in His death. We are sanctified by the power of His holy spirit. And in these two great works the will of Christ should be our will. Thus should we found our lives—our hopes for time and for eternity—upon Him as the rock of our salvation.

2. The foundation of sand. Any foundation other than Christ is sand. Any building material other than Christ is straw and stubble. Some build their hopes for eternity upon their personal goodness, their personal morality. But he who does this builds upon the sand, for he who hears and does the words of Christ will not have much confidence in self. Some build upon the hope of a future probation. But this is sand. The words of Christ call upon us to believe in Him and to accept Him now and teach us that our future is unalterably fixed at death. Some build their hopes upon a profession of Christianity. They have the name but not the power of religion. They profess, but do not possess. But this is a foundation of sand, as is everything else other than Christ Himself.

On what foundation are you building? The testing day is coming—the day of rain, of storm and tempest. Will the house of your life fall or stand? If founded upon Christ, it will stand. If founded upon anything else, it will fall. Build then upon Christ, the sure foundation. Act as well as sing

On Christ the solid rock I stand;
All other ground is sinking sand.

THE PRAYER MEETING.

Have an object lesson meeting. This topic can easily be illustrated by objects or by a chalk talk. Appoint some member to make a special address along these lines.

BIBLE READINGS.

Prov. x, 25; Ps. xxvii, 1; Isa. xxviii, 16; lviii, 12; Luke vi, 47-49; I Cor. iii, 1-15; Eph. ii, 19-22; I Tim. vi, 17-19; II Tim. ii, 19; Heb. xi, 8-10.

Prejudices Good and Bad.

All men and women are guided by their prejudices. They could not be safe without their guidance. They could not even live in the world of active life unless they were at every moment and at every point protected by prejudices which warn them against things that are dangerous or disagreeable and invite them to those that are useful and pleasant. The majority of all these prejudices are protective.

But there comes a time when by common consent reason should take the place of prejudice. After wisely avoiding things that might be injurious, but that there was not time to examine, it is well to test the prejudices that have been handed down from father to son and from mother to daughter, and especially those stronger impressions made by the father upon his daughters and the mother upon her sons. It is the mark of education and a sign of culture to revise one's prejudices, to strengthen those that are rational and lay aside those that have lost their meaning and are no longer useful.—Christian Register.

Hungering For the Truth.

There never was such an opportunity since the world began; the field was never so white for the harvest. Men are hungering for the truth; they are passionately seeking for the other life. The tangled threads are broken heartstrings snapped here on the border and bleeding to be knit up once more. Tell them not what you don't know, but help them to follow what we all do know to the final end and fuller revelation.—Evangelist.

The Promise of Better Things.

Hope is so strong and the expectation of better things to come is so active that to every new promise of truth to be revealed the public lends a willing ear. There are so many evils to be ameliorated that whoever promises relief in sufficiently persuasive tones will get a hearing. But the public does not listen long unless promises are quickly followed by performance and fulfillment.—Christian Register.

The Lost Chord.

I have sought, but I seek it vainly,
That one lost chord divine,
That came from the soul of the organ
And entered into mine.

—Sir Arthur Sullivan.

VISIT TO THE LAPPS.

Young American Traveler Tells of Her Experience During a Trip in Scandinavia.

Miss Margaret Kennedy, who made a recent trip through an unfrequented part of Sweden, thus describes some of her experiences in the New York Tribune:

During our stay at Otschon we made a long and interesting excursion to the Lapps, and had the rare opportunity of assisting at one of their services, which are only held two or three times a year. An hour's row and two hours' ride through the forest along a broad and rushing river brought us to their little wooden church, which, with a farm or two, nestled in a small but fertile valley; behind this towered the wild and rocky fjeld, on which this tribe of Lapps had their encampment. We put up our ponies in the stables of the "Lapp king," a rich farmer, so called because of his kindness and hospitality to the Lapps, who, in their turn, treated him as their father and general counsellor.

We amused ourselves till the service began watching the congregation, as they appeared over the fields, looking very bright and picturesque in their church going attire, which was richer and much more adorned than is usually the case; but these people belonged to a very prosperous tribe, possessing many hundred reindeer. The curiously shaped hats of the men are scarlet, as a rule; their waistcoats are thickly braided in vivid colors, and they have skin tight breeches made of reindeer skin. The women's caps are of crimson satin, their hair is loose and plaited in with strings of beads, and they wear long embroidered tunics stretching to their knees. Red seems to be their favorite color; even the babies wear tight-fitting red caps, and very sweet they looked as they lay in their little reindeer skin cradles and were rocked by their mothers, who were waiting to take them to be christened when the service began.

These cradles are made in the shape of French sabots, laced across with strips of leather. These are a necessary precaution, as the babies are often hung up, cradles and all, on the branches of the fir trees when their parents want to be rid of them. At 11 o'clock we all went into the church, an ugly, whitewashed, wooden little building, adorned inside with grotesque plaster figures and a big eye, painted in vivid blue, with a hideous black eyelash. It appeared out of a sea of white paint, and looked down on us with an uncanny and fixed stare from behind the altar. The service was Lutheran, and read in Swedish by a priest sent all the way from Undersaker. After the christening of the babies we all went into the churchyard, where the burial service was chanted over the graves of those who had died in the last six months. It was all rather impressive, somehow, and the little Lapps looked very much in earnest and joined heartily in all the prayers. After an hour of the service my father and I left, as before returning home we wanted to visit one of their kotas, or camps, the only one lying at the foot of the fjeld. A quarter of an hour's walk brought us to it. In shape rather resembling an Indian wigwam, this kota, unlike the usual ones made of reindeer skin, was built of turf overlaid with branches, with the smoke coming out of a hole in the roof. Crawling through the narrow opening we found ourselves in a circular room about 12 feet in diameter. Fir boughs, bundles and sacks strewed the earthen floor, and our escort, a Lapp woman, told us that no less than 20 men, women and children from the higher encampment had slept in this limited space the night before to be ready for the next day's service. They generally sleep in their clothes without undressing, these strange little people. Of furniture of any sort, bed, table or chair, there was not a trace.

No Study After School Hours.

Notify your child's teacher that no more study will be permitted in your home. See to it that your child is allowed to come home from school with the same satisfactory feeling that the business man feels when he comes home; that his day's work is done. It is over. It is behind him. He is ready to give his thoughts to other things; to clear his mind of the day's work; to calm his brain for a refreshing night's rest, to which he finally goes with thoughts of other things than business. So should it be with the child. His studies should not be the last thing on his mind. He should go to sleep after hours of play and fresh air. Then his sleep will be quiet and refreshing, and his mind, when he awakens, will be clear and fresh for a new day's studies.—Edward Bok, in Ladies' Home Journal.

LOOMIS ON HIS WAY.

Minister to Venezuela Not an Admirer of Castro.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, April 12.—Mr. Loomis sailed for the United States yesterday afternoon by the Red D line steamer Caracas. He emphatically declined to disclose the nature of his report to President McKinley, but judging from casual remarks which he let fall he is evidently quite antagonistic to President Castro. He said that the latter's salary was $12,000 a year, but that he had laid up $2,000,000 in the last two years. President Castro has been working for the recall of Mr. Loomis ever since the minister persisted in collecting the American claim of $100,000 a year ago. The ill feeling then created has increased month by month, as the asphalt controversy, the revocations of the Orinoco company's concessions and the treatment of Mr. Ignacio Baiz, United States consular agent at Barcelona, would illustrate.

"President Castro told the Venezuelans," said Mr. Loomis, "that they and the Europeans in Trinidad were at liberty to seize claims in the Orinoco district on land previously ceded to Americans. It was evidently his intention to embarrass the United States government and to force it to make armed demonstrations, such as would possibly lead to trouble with foreign nations owing to the large German and British commercial interests on the coast.

"The Venezuelan constitutional convention elected Castro provisional president until the autumn, when there will be an election for an eight year term. General Andrade will not be president, but his friends are working, and a revolution is possible in the course of a year. He is now at Curacao awaiting developments.

"The situation so far as the United States government is concerned has passed the acute point. Such difficulties as exist can be settled diplomatically.

"I scarcely expect to return to Caracas. I have already served four years and am quite satisfied to bring the experience to a close."

To Be a Tongueless Preacher.

NEW YORK, April 12.—In the expectation of having his tongue cut out today William M. Crampton of Brooklyn, a well known lecturer, was busy yesterday talking into phonographs, so that when his tongue has been removed he can continue to earn his livelihood through these phonographic records. Mr. Crampton is a familiar figure with the Brooklyn public. He has had a most adventurous and romantic life and has in turn been a soldier, a sailor, a clergyman and a policeman. For many years Mr. Crampton has been known as the "preaching policeman." Mrs. Crampton died in February, 1900, from an internal cancer, and it is thought her husband contracted a cancer through caring for her. If the operation on his tongue is successful and Mr. Crampton completely recovers, he will appear on the lecture platform again as the "tongueless lecturer," using his phonographic records to recite the history of his life.

Kidnaped His Own Child.

SOUTH NORWALK, Conn., April 12.—Ernest R. Wilson, formerly of this city, now of Stamford, brought to South Norwalk last night his 3-year-old child whom he had kidnaped from her mother in Brooklyn. Wilson and his wife separated two years ago, and it is said Mrs. Wilson took the little girl, then but a year old, and left for parts unknown. Lately the husband learned through an attorney that Mrs. Wilson had employment as a waitress in Brooklyn and was living on Prince street. Yesterday Wilson went to Brooklyn and with his lawyer visited the house, where he found his child alone. He succeeded in persuading the little one to accompany him, although she did not recognize him after the two years of separation, and brought her to this city.

Miners on a Strike.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., April 12.—Two hundred miners employed at the Harry E. colliery, Forty Fort, went on strike yesterday because three members of the United Mine Workers' organization were discharged. The miners employed at this colliery have insisted on all men entering the mine showing their union cards. The company officials claim intimidation was resorted to by some of the men, and the ringleaders of the movement were discharged.

CYCLING COMMENT.

The good old Irvington-Milburn 25 mile road race will be run again this year on the usual date, Memorial Day. It will be under the same auspices as last year, with E. L. Blauvelt as manager, but the time of starting will be in the forenoon and not after dinner as was the case last May. The plan of running the big race in the afternoon, it was found, did not work well, as it kept away many who wanted to attend other events.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

The last pigeon match of the season between local and other cracks will take place at Campbell's Club House tomorrow afternoon. It will be between Scott Terry, of this city, and F Knevels, of Orange. Fifty birds will be shot at for $100 a side There will be sweepstake shooting after the match.

How Sharkey Treated.

Tom Sharkey, the prize fighter, recently went into a drinking place and joined thirty or so of his friends. Drinks flew about rapidly, and Sharkey each time took a cigar. The able seaman was much preoccupied every time it was his time to buy, and he soon had all pockets filled with perfectos. Sharkey soon began to discourse on his favorite topic of money, and remarked proudly that when he got too old to fight he would have enough money to keep him the rest of his life.

"And if you don't have the money, you'll have enough cigars to start a cigar store."

The sailor overlooked the thrust, and when the other fellows had laid out their spare change he turned to the crowd and said: "Well, boys, it's my treat. Have a cigar!"

And he handed each a weed from his pockets.—N. Y. Press.

Chinese Managers.

Every Chinese manager of any institution employing labor must provide employment for his father, uncle, grandfather, innumerable cousins and entire clan relationship. These people do not work, are not expected to work, but are pensioners; and their great number makes a burden so heavy that the enterprises become unprofitable. This has been the cause of many institutions of a foreign character under exclusively Chinese management being failures, and is largely accountable for the extra cost of products of all factories, arsenals, etc., operated by the Chinese authorities. The other characteristic is lack of organizing and directing power of the Chinese mind applied to industry. There is the most complete liberty and democracy of management of all industrial affairs on the part of the Chinese, with no organized systematic direction.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The English Royal Band.

The Royal band is one of those bodies attached to the court that will not be interfered with by the king This royal orchestra is an ancient institution, dating back four centuries and doubtless owing its origin to the musical performance given by David before Saul. Nowadays, however, these instrumentalists are not engaged to cure a monarch of melancholia, but their work consists of playing light pieces after the royal family have dined, and giving occasional concerts. The master of the music is Sir Walter Parratt, and in the king's band there are 34 instrumentalists, the first violinist being Alfred Gibson. Whenever they play before royalty the members of the band are attired in blue velvet coats and knee breeches, with white ties and white waistcoats, but the conductor's dress is different in the respect that he has a black collar, whereas each man under him wears a blue one. There is one woman in the orchestra—the harpist.—Chicago Times-Herald.

START WORK TODAY.

Gang of Men Began the Widening of Somerset Street in the Borough.

Work on the improvement of Somerset street started at noon today. Street Commissioner Wm. Emmons will place a gang of men at work tearing up the roadbed on the left side of Somerset street, extending from Jackson to Manning avenues.

At this point the street will be widened and the pavement graded before any other work is done. As soon as this is completed the men will work on down the left hand side of the street until the brook is met. The idea of improving one side of the street at a time is to prevent any interruption of traffic.

FEAR INJURY TO THE CITY.

MANAGER EDWARDS BELIEVES IT CAN BE MADE TO PAY WELL.

If Hall Was Entirely Remodelled and Put in Proper Condition—Woolworth is Considering Proposed Store in Entrance.

There has been considerable talk about the probable closing of Music Hall, but, so far, nothing definite has been done to retain that place of amusement in this city. A few public-spirited citizens have been discussing the matter with the ultimate result in their minds. It is a well known fact that any city of size has a theatre and it is generally supported well, and to have the news go broadcast that Plainfield cannot support a house of amusement would be far more detrimental to the city's interests than the mere loss of the theatre There are enough people in this city to support a theatre and those who have interested themselves in the matter believe that if Music Hall is allowed to close, that fact will be an injury to the city.

During the past few days some prominent citizens have been considering the proposition of purchasing Music Hall property and maintaining it as a theatre. It is said the property could be purchased for $15 000, and with an expenditure of $10,000 in improving and remodelling the hall, a fine place of amusement would be made possible. Manager Maze Edwards believes that with an outlay of the amount specified the hall could be made to pay well, for he believes that there is a bright future in theatricals for Plainfield as the city grows. Mr. Edwards would be willing to take the management providing the proper improvements are made and the hall put in first-class condition. Those who have been talking about the matter believe that the time for idle words is passed and if anything is to be done it must be done quickly.

The owner of the hall is now considering a proposition to build a store where the entrance is now. It is understood that Woolworth, the 5 and 10 cent merchant, has under advisement a plan to lease the entrance if a store is built there and open a branch place of his many industries about the country. In view of this any other action must be taken at once.

A reporter for The Daily Press has recently learned that the merchants about the city are feeling uneasy about the proposed closing of the hall, for they realize that if such a thing is done there will be one less attraction for Plainfield. It is realized by these merchants and others that Manager Edwards has not received the support that his efforts were entitled to and they feel as though he should have been encouraged to a far greater extent than he has. Mr. Edwards, it is well-known, has done his very best to please the people of Plainfield and vicinity. Being a person of wide experience in theatrical affairs he knows how to conduct a theatre and the only thing lacking has been the unanimous support of the public. In spite of this, he still believes that if Music Hall is put in a first class and up-to date condition, the house will pay and be a credit to Plainfield and the people who reside here.

Since the above article was written it has been learned that definite plans have been made for the formation of a stock company to buy the theatre and conduct it. Among those who are active in the project are a number of well-known Front street business men and others who have stated their willingness to furnish $5,000 of the necessary amount. It is their desire, however, that the matter be given as much publicity as possible in order that every citizen with a desire to see the building kept open may have a chance to lend their assistance to the plan. If anything is to be done in the matter it must be immediately, as once the entrance is closed and the store located, it will put an end to all negotiations. With this object in view the matter will in all probability be broached at the Board of Trade meeting Monday evening, when the members will be given an opportunity to assist in the formulation.

ROBBED BEFORE HIS WEDDING

OSCAR KUTCHER'S HARD LUCK ON EVE OF MATRIMONIAL VENTURE.

Man Who Was to Take Kutcher's Place Disappeared, as Did Kutcher's $75—Friends Helped Him Out.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Vernon, April 13.—Oscar Kutcher, of Myersville, and Minnie Dorfman, of this village, pledged their troth at the pretty little home of the bride's father here, Thursday a week ago.

Each vowed to take the other for richer or for poorer and a little incident over which the groom had no control brought much meaning to the vow.

Oscar had been a farm hand on a place in Myersville, and when Minnie promised to leave her happy home for him he determined to pull up his stakes and cast his lot in the village where Minnie dwelt

The night before the wedding day, Oscar slept for the last time under the roof of the Myersville farmer who had employed him. It happened that during the day a hand had been engaged to fill Oscar's place on the farm, and so that night the employer went to bed with a feeling that he would not have to scurry around after someone to do the chores.

In the morning the new farm hand was missing, as was also $75, all the pecuniary possessions of Oscar. The loss came as a heavy blow, but generous friends loaned him money and so in the presence of Rev. Mr. Bauer, of Myersville, to the bride he uttered the promise "with all my worldly goods I thee endow," and despite their financial difficulty the pair are spending a happy honeymoon here.

WILL KILL DOGS.

Chief Marshal Campbell Will Go After Dogs Unless Dog Tax Is Paid at Once.

Chief Marshal Campbell is on a still hunt after the residents of the borough who are in arrears for dog tax.

Tax Collector George F. Brown has placed in the Chief Marshal's hands for service a batch of delinquent bills and notice has been served that unless payment is made on or before Saturday, the Chief Marshal will be deputized to shoot all dogs upon which no tax has been paid, in accordance with the State law.

Heretofore the provisions of this law have not been carried out, but as a number of dog owners have taken advantage of the leniency of the collector in this respect it has been decided to rigidly enforce the act of Assembly.

Some have already made settlement and the collector hopes that all the claims will be paid before the time set for disposing of the animals.

ATTENDED BANQUET.

J. E. Martine, of This City, One of the Speakers at Newark Last Evening.

The banquet held by the Democratic Society of New Jersey last evening at Newark was a decided success in every point of view. The banquet hall was profusely decorated with palms and flowers. Judge Lambert presided and after the dinner had been served stated in a few well-chosen words that the object and purpose of the gathering was to get the Democracy of New Jersey together. He believed that the Republican Legislature had supplied an ample amount of campaign ammunition with which to go into a successful campaign for governor this fall. The first speaker was Colonel Meyer Zulick. He made a most earnest plea for organization and harmony. The second speaker was Hon. W. B. Gourley, chairman of the Democratic State committee. He strongly urged harmony and unity of action. He believed the next governor of New Jersey would be a Democrat. Speeches were made by Mr. Cotter, of Hunterdon; J. E Martine, of Union, and several others. A more earnest and enthusiastic gathering, bent upon a fixed purpose, was never held in New Jersey.

RAISED FUNDS FOR COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

Third Day of the Newark Conference of Methodist Church of New Jersey.

SEVERAL MINISTERS RETIRED

RAISED $5,740 FOR THE INSTITUTE AT HACKETTSTOWN.

Funds Needed to Furnish New Buildings Built Since the Fire—Smallest Church Pledged $500—Other Business.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Hoboken, April 13.—The first business of yesterday's session of the Newark Conference of the Methodist church held here was the consideration of applications from pastors who desired to be retired, because of disability or old age, from active work. The application of Rev. W. H. McCormick, of Dover, who desired to be made an effective pastor, although without a charge, was taken up.

Rev. Dr. James B. Bryan, of Somerville, in supporting Mr. McCormick's request, said it was too bad that men should be decided supernumeraries, or worn out, when they are not worn out at all.

Bishop Foss declared that he could not deviate from the rules, which distinctly stated a man not an effective pastor is either a supernumerary or superannuated.

On motion of Rev. Dr. Bryan Mr. McCormick was elected as an effective preacher. The Conference transferred Rev. George W. Trent, Rev. John W. Barnett, of Newark, and Rev. S. L. Bowman, of Katonah, N. Y., from the supernumerary to the superannuated list.

The ministers continued on the supernumerary list are: Rev. Robert B. Collins, of Tottenville, N. Y.; Rev. Jacob A. Craig, of Ringwood; Rev. Salmon D. Jones, of Stony Point, N. Y.; Rev. A. H. Maryott, of Newark; Rev. William C. Nelson, of Plainfield; Rev. S B. D. Prichett, of Metuchen; Rev. W. F. Randolph, of Bernardsville; Rev. J B Taylor, of Montville; and Rev. Gilbert H. Winans, of Newark

Rev. Dr. Spellmeyer, of Newark, read the report of the Board of Trustees of the Hackettstown Seminary, explaining what had been done to reconstruct the buildings which were destroyed by fire a year ago and what money is needed to complete and furnish the new buildings.

The Conference Committee appointed to consider the needs of the seminary reported it was required of the conference to raise $24,669 for furnishing the seminary buildings. A resolution was passed declaring that the Conference would undertake to raise that amount, apportioning it among the various churches according to size and wealth.

Rev. George O. Wilding then called for immediate subscriptions. He said it was desired to raise at least $5 000 at that session, and declared that amounts pledged would be credited to the account of the church to which the giver belonged. Bishop Foss also appealed for liberal pledges. In about thirty minutes $5,740 was pledged. Of this amount $500 was placed to the credit of the Methodist church at Mendham, which has only one hundred and seventy members.

Accident to Engine Caused a Temporary Shut Down of Scott's Press Works This Morning.

The Walter Scott Printing Machine Works is closed for today. This morning the engine at the works was started at the usual hour, 6:30 o'clock, and after running a half hour there was a break-down. After an investigation it was decided that it would be impossible to run the works today and all the machine hands and part of the floor gang were compelled to quit work. The break will be repaired today so that the works will start Monday morning at the customary hour.

ENJOYED MOCK TRIAL.

John Green, Keeper of Records of Miantonomo Tribe, Charged With Conpiracy Against Charles L. Holstein.

Miantonomo Tribe, No. 118 I. O. R. M., met last evening and after transacting the business of the evening the members enjoyed a mock trial. John Green, keeper of records, was charged with conspiring to cause the removal of Charles L. Holstein from the office. William Newcorn was the Judge, while Wm. A. Westphal acted as prosecuting attorney and Fred J. Huff represented the defendant. The following served as jurors: A. J. Stiglitz, Foster M. Johnson, Eugene O'Reilly, Robert Rushton, Bert Naylor, Amos Stites.

The trial was an exciting one from start to finish, a feature being that the defendant's counsel was not allowed to offer any objections. After due deliberation the jury returned and rendered a verdict that the defendant be compelled to lose the residue of his salary for the present term. Notice was given at once that the case would be appealed.

After the trial it was announced that Mr. Probasco, of Westfield, had drawn the lucky number, 4, and that he would be given one quarter's dues. This in the future will be made a feature each month.

STOLEN FRUIT.

Two Boy's Helped Themselves to Peddler's Oranges and Ran—Finally Captured.

There was consternation early this morning on Park avenue, when two urchins climbed into the wagon of a Hebrew peddler and stole two oranges. The theft occurred under the Park avenue railroad bridge and just as the lads were getting away, someone gave a yell and thus gave the peddler warning of what was going on. The lads ran like deers through Park and North avenues and through the cellar of Smalley Bros. property. The peddler turned his horse about and gave chase. He drove as far as Woolston & Buckle's store. He then chased the boys on foot and after much trouble recovered the stolen fruit. A large crowd of people joined in the chase and watched the performace.

ENDEAVORERS REVIEW YEAR.

WHAT HAS BEEN DONE BY SOCIETY OF CRESCENT AVENUE CHURCH.

Has a Membership of Eighty-Seven—Spent $206.39 for Missions and Has Smal. Balance in the Treasury.

The members of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Crescent Avenue church met last evening for the purpose of reviewing the work accomplished during the past year. Vice-presedent J. Stanley Voorhees presided.

There were many encouraging and interesting reports read which told of some of the work which the society has done in the twelve months past. Many worthy organizations in this and other cities have felt its beneficence, while the work in the society itself has been very satisfactory to all concerned.

In a brief way, the report of the secretary, Miss Wilhelmina Patton, told of the home and foreign missionary work and of the Sunday afternoon meetings at Muhlenberg Hospital recently commenced. It showed a membership of eighty-seven, of which fifty-six are active, six associate and twenty-five honorary.

The report of Treasurer Walter M. Sampson, stated that the receipts for the year had been $262 56 while the disbursements were as follows: Missionary account, $206 39; general account, $27.35; several committees, $9 08; general treasury, $14 75; leaving a balance of $4 04. The missionary account included the $91 55 collected and presented to Dr. Payton, at the close of his talk in the church last winter.

There were also brief reports from the chairmen of the missionary, prayer meeting, lookout, reception, social, music, flower and other committees, all of which showed the society to be better organized than ever. There were delegates appointed to the Westfield Fresh Air Camp as follows: S. H. Voorhees, J. S. Voorhees and Clarence Sutphen. These members will assist at the meetings to be held at the camp during the coming summer.

The meeting concluded with the election of officers as follows: President, Miss C. R. Yates; vice president, J. Stanley Voorhees; corresponding secretary, Fred G Smith; recording secretary, Miss Wilhelmina Patton; treasurer, Walter M. Sampson.

SOLD CAKE AND CANDY.

Young Women of First M. E. Church Gave Informal Social Last Evening.

A successful cake and candy sale, given by the Young Ladies' Mission Circle of the First M. E. church, attracted many to the residence of Harry Gee, of Third place, last evening. Mrs. Harry Gee is the president of the circle and offered her home for the use of the members. The affair was in charge of Mrs. Gee and Mrs. Nelson A. Miller, the manager of the circle.

The dining room was devoted to a display of homemade cakes and candies which were readily purchased by the crowd which thronged the house. The visitors enjoyed a social chat in the parlors and hall and an informal programme was rendered during the evening, including recitations by Miss Mae Batchellor and Miss Stephanie Krom, contralto solos by Mrs. S. H. Tugwell and piano solos by Harold Fenno.

Of the twenty-five members of the circle, fifteen were present and assisted in the sale of the cakes and candies and in receiving the guests. An auction of cakes by Stephen H Tugwell concluded the evening's enjoyment. A neat sum was added to the treasury of the circle.

Illustrated Various Subjects.

Under the auspices of W. J. Conroy's Sunday school class of Grace M. E. church, an interesting illustrated lecture was given in the church last evening. A variety of views taken in all parts of this country and Europe were thrown on the screen. The attendance at the lecture was not large, but the audience was an appreciative one. The proceeds will go toward paying the amount pledged by the class for the Twentieth Century movement.

LEG SHATTERED BY KICK OF A HORSE.

Thomas Callahan, of Richmond Street, Met With a Serious Accident Yesterday.

LEG HAS BEEN AMPUTATED.

AMPUTATION WAS NECESSARY IN ORDER TO SAVE HIS LIFE.

Irritable Horse Kicked Him When Mr. Callahan Was Bathing Its Hoof—Limb Splintered in Eight Pieces—Recovery is Now Expected.

Thomas Callahan, the well-known East End grocer, met with an accident yesterday afternoon, which within six hours after its occurrence resulted in the amputation of his right leg below the knee He now lies at his home on Richmond street, as yet, unconscious of the fact that the limb has been removed. His chances of complete recovery are very favorable, although he suffers greatly from shock.

The accident occurred at 4:30 o'clock in the barn directly behind his store. Mr. Callahan had been enjoying a drive about town and on returning, decided to bathe the hoofs of the horse he had been using. The animal is of a rather nervous disposition, which was heightened by the long drive, and during the bathing became very restless. Unaware of its constantly increasing irritableness, Mr. Callahan continued at work.

Suddenly the animal raised a hind hoof and with terrific force implanted a blow on Mr. Callahan's leg, midway between the ankle and knee. The shock threw him from his feet but with great presence of mind he rolled away from the horse which was madly jumping about the stall. Although suffering intense pain, he never lost consciousness and shouted for help.

It was fully five minutes before his cries were heard by his son, Jeremiah Callahan, and others who were in the store, there being no one else near at the time. The injured man was picked up and taken to his home and Dr. Boone was sent for. On examination the latter saw that prompt measures were to be taken as the limb was in a very bad state. He then called Drs. Endicott and Hedges, of this city, and Dr. Donahue, of New Brunswick, with whom he consulted. They found the leg splintered in eight pieces, making recovery impossible. At 10 o'clock it was decided amputation was the only means of saving the patient's life and this was done.

Mr. Callahan rallied after the operation, but was not made aware of the loss of the limb, as in his weakened condition it would perhaps result fatally. The operation, however, was very successful and his complete recovery is looked for.

While the terrible accident is greatly felt by the members of the victim's family, it is doubly unfortunate, inasmuch as Mrs. Callahan died but two weeks ago. A brother of Mr. Callahan's met with a similar accident in the stable of an East Front street family, a number of years ago, which resulted in his death.

GOOD PLAYS STILL TO COME.

MANAGER EDWARDS HAS MANY EXCELLENT BOOKINGS FOR SPRING.

Talk of Closing the Hall Will Not Interfere With the Coming Attractions—What They Are.

The closing of Music Hall depends on the outcome of certain negotiations now pending and until that is arrived at, Manager Maze Edwards will continue in his work, regardless of talk, reports or rumors, for the presentation of his novelties in the dramatic line Although his present lease does not expire before July 1, it has never been his intention to keep open house until that time. He has several bookings, however, in months of May and June, but in the event of the Stillman estate desiring posession of the premises for store purposes on May 1, would surrender his lease and cancel contracts made for balance of season. A positive knowledge of affairs will be known in a few days.

Something has already been said of the excellent performance of Tuesday night, by J. K. Emmet and his wife Lottie Gilson. Another splendid performance was witnessed Thursday night, when the ever popular play, "At Piney Ridge," had its third presentation at this house. A more finished performance has never been seen in this city. The acting of D. K. Higgins, author of the play, and Miss Georgia Waldrod, calls for more than passing commendations and the other members of the cast are deserving of highest praise. The scenery and accessories too, were good and "At Piney Ridge" may be set down as one of the pleasantest memories of the season.

The new musical, rural comedy drame, entitled "Down on the Farm," will inaugurate the offering for next week, commencing Monday. The play is said to be very interesting and pleasing, has won much praise from press and public, endorsed by clergymen, recommended by critics, and is a clean, wholesome story of the life and doings of country folks, with views of city life as experienced by the rural visitor.

It will be interpreted by a capable and specially selected company of artists, headed by Charles Manley, an actor of great experience and ability who appears in the character of "Seth Huckins," the honest old farmer. It will be handsomely staged with appropriate scenery and costumes, with introduced specialties of great novelty The celebrated "Hayseed Quartette," the "Squashtown Brass Band" and the "Pumpkin Orchestra" are great features in the play, and there will be a grand street parade of these novelties and the several Yankee characters in the piece, at noon, Monday, and an open air concert in front of the theatre an hour before the time of evening performance.

The glories of melodrama are not fading and though hot spiced theatrical fantastics, perhaps a little warm for the season, they are still seductive in the case of "The Denver Express," which will be seen here for first time next Wednesday night, and is one of the warmest and most rapid plays of its class. Once again Sitting Bull Standing Cow and their band of braves will attack the emigrant train and emit their war whoops to the huge delight of the gallery, and the subdued thrills of the parquet. The Holden Brothers have equipped the play with an excellent series of new scenes and the grand ball at the Palace Hotel, San Fancisco, provides a society element that entirely removes the suspicions and climaxes which are thrilling to a degree, in the millionaires and the scions of British aristocracy show the skillful hand of a clever dramatist and are satirical and amusing always. Taken all in all its interesting story, uproarious comedy and well woven plot entitle the play to success. A carefully selected company under the management of Holden Brothers will introduce a number of specialties.

A very funny comedy entitled "Nip and Tuck" is booked for performance Saturday afternoon and night. The Vogel Deming Minstrel Company, the best and finest of all companies that has ever appeared here in the minstrel line, will be here Tuesday, April 23. "Rip VanWinkle," by Thos. Jefferson and the Jefferson Company, will be seen Thursday, April 25. Everybody should bear in mind, the performance for the benefit of "Mique" Muldowney, which will take place Tuesday, April 30, and following this, will be the great production of "Quo Vadis" which will be seen Thursday, May 2.

A Raging, Roaring Flood

Positively guaranteed for Coughs, Colds and all Throat and Lung troubles by L. W. Randolph. Price 50c and $1.00.

Give them Laxakola, its gentle bowel action to cleanse and its tonic properties to build up the system, will show immediate and most beneficial results.

Laxakola for Mothers.—It is particularly valuable and useful to women, especially mothers, as it is a gentle and safe remedy to use during all conditions of health whenever their peculiar and delicate constitutions require a mild and efficient laxative and tonic, while to nursing mothers, worn out with the care of infants and whose systems therefore are particularly susceptible to disease Laxakola particularly appeals.

CHURCH AND SCHOOL

Position Defined by Catholic Educators.

RELIGIOUS INSTRUCTION IN DANGER.

A Protest Against Unfair Discrimination From Educational Legislation—A Plea For Private Institutions.

CHICAGO, April 13.—A declaration of the Catholic position on education in the United States was adopted at the closing session of the national conference of the Association of Catholic Colleges. The resolutions comprising the declaration received the unanimous assent of the representatives of 70 different colleges, practically the entire collegiate system of the Catholic church in America. The delegates on adjourning were enthusiastic over the results of their labors, feeling confident that the conference has been a marked success.

The declaration adopted was as follows:

"First.—That this Association of Catholic Colleges request its president, Right Rev. Thomas J. Conaty, respectfully to call the attention of the bishops of the United States at their annual meeting to the work of this conference in regard to our collegiate conditions and especially to the importance of the high school movement.

"Second.—That the tendency of educational legislation forces us to warn our Catholic people of the systematic and well defined effort in certain quarters toward absolute state control in education, thereby threatening and crippling all private educational effort, thus depriving a large class of the citizens of the liberty of maintaining schools in which their religion shall be made an essential element.

"Third.—That we remind legislators of the rights of conscience guaranteed to us by our American citizenship and call their attention to the system of schools which our people have maintained at great expense and sacrifice.

"Fourth.—That we protest against the unfair and unjust discrimination resulting from much of the educational legislation, and we appeal to the fair mindedness and sense of justice of the American people to protect us from such illiberality.

"Fifth.—That this conference of Catholic colleges convinces us that we are justified in asserting that our college system deserves the generous co-operation of all interested in higher Catholic education.

"Sixth.—That we call upon all Catholics to recognize the imperative need of a more perfect organization of our educational system, and we assure them that with a fuller development of the Catholic high school we shall have a complete system, with its headship in the university, and thus we shall continue to maintain a high collegiate standard."

Words of cheer from across the sea were received in a cablegram of congratulation from Pope Leo XIII at Rome.

England's Strange Action.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Secretary Wilson says that everything the administration can do in the meat question is being done. "But I cannot understand," he said, "why the British government has taken this step. They know that our grain fed beef is the kind that is shipped to them. There must be some reason that is not apparent on the surface. We sell them $1,000,000 worth of meats for every 1,000,000 of their population. Suppose they have 250,000 troops in the field. It can make little difference to our producers whether they take enough from the home grown supply to feed the soldiers, for if they do that they must import just that much more to supply the deficiency. The British do not produce enough in Great Britain to supply their home demand. There must be some other reason."

Insurance Swindlers In London.

LONDON, April 13.—The Statist has discovered a clique of swindlers, making London their headquarters, who profess to represent a leading American insurance company. "These swindlers," it says, "notify the family of a man recently deceased that the last premium, which ought to have been paid at a given date, usually very recent, has not as a matter of fact been paid and that if it is not forwarded by a specified date the policy will lapse. The widow hastens to send the remittance. The victims are usually French and Germans."

Bridge Workers on a Strike.

NEW YORK, April 13.—Because the Metallic Lathers' union of this city has a grievance against the Roebling Construction company, which makes steel laths for big buildings, all of the mechanics working for Roebling Sons & Co., contractors, who are stretching the cables for the new East river bridge, went on strike yesterday at noon, and as a result thousands of spectators who had lined up on either side of the river to see the second cable stretched were disappointed.

Burglars Got a Good Haul.

BUFFALO, April 13.—C. M. Simmonds, a manufacturer of barrels at Medina, N. Y., was robbed of $2,600 in gold. Mr. Simmonds always has distrusted banks, and he kept his money concealed in his home. Thursday night he took his family to the opera house to attend a performance of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," and this left the way clear for the burglars. There is no clew.

Liquor Dealers Aroused.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., April 13.—The liquor dealers of Sacket's Harbor are up in arms, claiming that the census returns of the recent enumeration have been padded, swelling the population to over 1,200 and obliging them to pay about $100 more for their licenses. The county treasurer will investigate.

Americans In a Robber Band?

BERLIN, April 13.—According to a dispatch from Peking, dated Thursday, to the Kolnische Zeitung, a robber band of four Americans and four Chinese was recently captured by a German outpost at Tung-kia-fu, west of Tien-tsin.

Buried by an Avalanche.

DENVER, April 13.—A huge mass of snow and rock swept down from the mountain near Adelaide on the Florence and Cripple Creek railroad, burying a work train and killing three men and seriously injuring four others.

WILD TALES DENIED.

No Unrest or Friction in Eastern Cuba.

PROSPERITY AND CONTENT EVIDENT.

War Talk Never Heard Of—Difference of Opinion Over Relations With the United States Is Not Very Serious.

SANTIAGO, Cuba, April 13.—Recent advices from the United States indicate an organized effort, based in part upon special press dispatches of April 9 from Santiago to New York, to spread the impression that conditions of friction and discontent exist in eastern Cuba. So far as the province of Santiago is concerned nothing could be more remote from the facts. There have been and are differences of opinion regarding the Platt amendment, particularly the provisions as to coaling and naval statious, and these have led to some discussion, but there are absolutely no indications of serious trouble.

Last Sunday's demonstration relative to municipal politics consisted of a procession of from 400 to 600 men, with the usual following of small boys. Mayor Pedro gave the promoters a permit, despite the fact that they were his political opponents. Some one cried, "Down with the Platt amendment!" and the crowd laughed good naturedly. But there was no symptom of disorder.

People here are working contentedly and becoming prosperous. There have been no strikes of late. Few tramps are in evidence. War talk is never heard. The successful harvesting of the large sugar crop has greatly improved business conditions.

Thursday General Whitside and Senor Castillo, the civil governor of the province, visited El Cobre for an inspection of the new public works there. El Cobre was formerly considered a dangerous district, but they found everything quiet and the people at work.

The Cuban leaders and the United States military authorities here desire that the American people should know the exact situation and that all reports to the contrary are the fabrications of irresponsible Cuban politicians or sensational correspondents.

Platt Amendment Opposed.

HAVANA, April 13.—The Cuban constitutional convention placed itself upon record yesterday against the Platt amendment by a vote of 18 to 10 on a resolution that the convention should declare itself opposed to the amendment "on account of the terms of some of the clauses and the way in which they are drawn and also on account of the contents of others, especially clauses 3, 6 and 7." The conservatives assert that this action is embarrassing, inasmuch as it practically ties the hands of any commission that might be sent to Washington.

Car Shops Tied Up.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., April 13.—The tie up in the car shops of the Central Railroad of New Jersey at Ashley is now complete. Yesterday the machinists, blacksmiths and laborers joined the car men who went out Thursday. A few men still remained at work, but the officials concluded to shut down the works, and notices were posted to that effect. About 625 men are now idle. Superintendent Thomas has gone to New York to confer with General Manager Warren. There will probably be another conference in Ashley today. The strikers have got the impression that General Manager Warren may issue an order to reinstate the 27 men whose discharge brought about the lockout. If such an order is issued, it would settle the strike at once.

A California Avalanche.

BUENA VESTA, Cal., April 13.—A report has reached here that a huge avalanche, sweeping everything before it, came down Italian mountain, in Taylor park, about 40 miles west of this place, and that a number of lives were lost. On this mountain several mines have been in operation all winter, employing about 300 men. Owing to the great distance of the mountain from any point of communication with the outside world and the vast amount of snow on the range between here and the mountain several days may elapse before the facts are learned. About this time last year a snowslide came down this mountain, killing four men.

The Ripley Trial.

FRANKFORT, Ky., April 13.—The prosecution concluded its testimony in the Ripley case today. The defense will move for peremptory instructions for a verdict for acquittal. The lawyers for the prosecution do not believe this will be sustained, in view of the ruling of the court permitting the introduction of the evidence as to the conspiracy and overruling the objections of the defense on this point. They assert that the evidence of ex-Governor Bradley and Judge Yost connects Ripley in a way to preclude peremptory instructions.

Husband Charged With Murder.

MASON, O., April 13.—Mrs. John McClung, wife of a wealthy retired farmer, was found dead in her bed yesterday morning with her head crushed. Her husband has been arrested, charged with her murder. Early yesterday morning Mr. McClung called Mrs. Bayzore, who occupied a part of the house, and told her that his wife had been murdered while he was at the barn looking after some stock. The coroner held an inquest and directed that McClung be arrested on the charge of murder.

Attempt to Kill Kruger.

LONDON, April 13.—"The police of this city," says the Amsterdam correspondent of The Daily Express, "recently got wind of contemplated attempts upon the life of Mr. Kruger. One of the persons arrested is said to have made a confession." The Daily Express this morning says it understands that the government has decided to cease sending re-enforcements to South Africa.

Marriage Bill a Law.

ALBANY, April 13.—Governor Odell has signed Assemblyman Weekes' bill, which provides that after Jan. 1, 1902, no common law marriages shall be recognized unless the contracting parties shall have signed and duly acknowledged before two witnesses a written contract of marriage and shall have filed the same with the town, county or city clerk within six months thereafter.

KILLED BY A ROBBER.

Pittsburg Detective Shot by One of a Gang.

PITTSBURG, April 13.—Detective P. E. Fitzgerald was killed yesterday afternoon while trying to arrest Ed Wright, J. P. Wright and Robert Wilcox. These men robbed the home of Thomas D. Kahoney, a grocer, on Mount Washington early in the morning and murdered Kahoney. Fitzgerald was shot by Ed Wright, the man suspected of firing the shot that killed Kahoney.

Kahoney was murdered at 2:30 a. m while trying to rescue his wife from the clutches of one of the three men who were in his home on Albert street. Mrs. Kahoney had a presentiment Thursday night that a member of the family would die before morning and refused to go to bed, walking back and forth for hours between the room in which her husband was sleeping and the adjoining apartment, which her 12-year-old son occupied. She kept a light burning in the hallway.

At 2 o'clock she fell asleep, lying fully dressed across the foot of her son's bed. Half an hour later she was awakened by the burglar, who was attempting to chloroform her. She screamed, and her husband ran to her rescue. The man freed one hand and, drawing a revolver, fired at the husband.

The bullet entered Kahoney's side in the region of his heart. He died while trying to return to his room for a revolver.

How the police suddenly discovered the names of the burglars and there whereabouts is not known, but Fitzgerald and Gray of Pittsburg's "front office" force, Patrolman West and County Detective Robert Robinson at 1 o'clock in the afternoon received warrants for the arrest of the three men and went direct to 72 Fulton street, where the fugitives were hiding.

Fitzgerald, one of the pluckiest officers of the department, led the way, and it was he who opened the door of the room in which the burglars were waiting to make their final stand. Ed Wright recognized the detective and fired. As in the case of Kahoney, his aim was true, the bullet striking Fitzgerald's heart.

Gray and West opened fire, and Ed Wright was hit four times. When he fell, the policemen closed in and arrested J. P. Wright and Wilcox. Ed Wright was taken to the Mercy hospital. He may die. Ed Wright's wife was arrested later.

HALF TONES BY TELEGRAPH.

Unsuccessful Attempt to Show Off a Wonderful Invention.

CHICAGO, April 13.—Failure last night greeted a test which drew a number of men of science to the Quadrangle club, University of Chicago. It was an effort to transmit and receive half tone pictures by telegraph between Columbia university, New York, and the University of Chicago. The instrument, or electrograph, had worked successfully over distances of several hundred miles, but last night owing to induction of the wires in New York would not record the thousands of fine dots of which the pictures are composed. It was proposed to transmit between the two cities pictures of President William R. Harper of the University of Chicago, President Seth Low of Columbia and John D. Rockefeller. Thomas Mills, inventor of the electrograph, was in charge of the test in this city, while his assistant, H. R. Palmer, directed the operation of the machine in New York. In the latter city there was gathered a number of men of worldwide fame, among whom were Thomas A. Edison, Nikola Tesla, Signor Marconi and Professor Pupin.

To Mark Revere's Starting Point.

BOSTON, April 13.—Bunker Hill chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, has decided to mark with a tablet the spot from which Paul Revere started in his historic midnight ride on April 18, 1775, to warn the inhabitants of the towns between Boston and Concord that the British were coming to destroy their stores and munitions of war. The tablet will be placed on the south side of the new Charles river bridge, facing Warren avenue. Historically, the spot is very near that on which the renowned rider stood as he waited for the lights to shine forth from the tower of the old North church.

Northern Pacific Improvements.

ST. PAUL, Apri 13.—President C. S. Mellon announces that the Northern Pacific will this season expend $10,250,000 on betterments. The sum of $5,250,000 will alone be spent for rolling stock and similar equipment. The other $5,000,000 will be spent in permanently improving the roadbed from St. Paul to Portland. These expenditures are the logical result of the rapid development of the northwestern and extreme western country.

Neely to Sell Brickyard.

HAVANA, April 13.—The legal authorities have granted permission to Charles F. W. Neely to sell the brickyard and land in Havana standing in his name. The money realized will be turned over to the court and kept in trust until a decision is reached in connection with his alleged embezzlement of postal funds.

GEORGE Q. CANNON DEAD.

Apostle of the Mormon Church Dies In California.

SALT LAKE CITY, April 13.—Word was received here yesterday that George Q. Cannon, one of the apostles of the Mormon church, is dead at Monterey, Cal., where he had gone in search of health.

Former United States Senator Frank J. Cannon, his son, was summoned from Washington and arrived before his death. There were at the bedside in addition to his wife, who is a daughter of Brigham Young, her two children, three grown sons of Apostle Cannon and his nephew.

George Q. Cannon was born in Liverpool Jan. 11, 1827. He came to America in 1844 and was ordained an elder of the Mormon church in 1845. In 1846 he joined the main body of the Mormons from Nauvoo, Ills., on the way to Utah and reached here in 1847. In 1849 he went to California on missionary work and in 1850 went to the Hawaiian Islands and remained there for four years. In 1855 he established The Western Standard in San Francisco. In 1880 he was made a member of the quorum of the 12 apostles. He was a delegate in congress from 1872 to 1880 and was one of the councilors to the president of the Mormon church. He was prominently connected with many of the business enterprises of Utah.

TREATY ABROGATION.

Negotiations With the United States Progressing.

LONDON, April 13.—Negotiations on the Hay-Pauncefote abrogation of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty are progressing, though they have not yet passed the tentative stage. We are informed that they are being conducted on a quid pro quo basis and that no other method of abrogation would be considered by the British government. The foreign office hopes that a settlement satisfactory to both the United States and Great Britain will be arrived at before congress is reconvened.

Great Britain has not yet definitely estimated the money indemnity she desires China to pay. It is learned that the government adheres to the belief that little can be gained by insisting upon cash payments from China, and though the government regrets that this will possibly be a cause for delay it continues to instruct the British minister to China, Sir Ernest Satow, to try and induce the powers to agree to a demand for greater trading privileges instead of money. The government is of the opinion that the opening up of these rich provinces hitherto closed to foreign commerce will result in much greater benefit to the nations concerned and to China herself than the extraction of lump sums of money.

GOVERNOR ALLEN'S RETURN.

Members of Porto Rican Legislature Send Appreciative Message.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—A message received by Secretary Hay from a number of members of the Porto Rican legislature shows that the people of Porto Rico are rejoiced to hear that Governor Allen is to return to Porto Rico. The dispatch says:

"Please say to president news of governor's return received with rejoicing. Will tender him ovation on arrival. People of Porto Rico duly represented by members of legislature express their complete and absolute accord with president's and governor's policy in government. They all approve their actions, placing their hopes for the future in governor's caution, tact and sound judgment. He has the respect and devotion of the great majority of people of Porto Rico, representing loyalty and love to the country, striving for its progress, sweeping away traditional obstacles."

This dispatch is signed by a number of members of the legislature.

Mount Pocono Hotel Destroyed.

STROUDSBURG, Pa., April 13.—The Wiscasset, the largest and best equipped hotel at Mount Pocono, this county, was burned to the ground last night. Loss, nearly $50,000; insurance unknown. Plumbers were at work during the day in the building, and an explosion of gasoline which they were using started the fire. The Wiscasset was built 15 years ago and a few years later was enlarged. At the time of its destruction the hotel was owned by Howard A. Chase of Philadelphia. Few articles were saved.

TO PAY UP IN FULL.

Absconding Broker Tewksbury to Pay Every Dollar.

OVER HALF A MILLION LIABILITIES.

Creditors Surprised by the Unexpected Turn of Affairs — Money Made by the New Yorker In Mexican Contracts.

NEW YORK, April 13.—B. Gerson Oppenheim of 265 Broadway, attorney for Lewis G. Tewksbury, who fled to Mexico last July, leaving debts amounting to $600,000, announced yesterday that he would advertise today for a meeting of his client's creditors to inform them that they would be paid in full by Tewksbury.

Mr. Oppenheim has just returned from the City of Mexico, where he conferred with his client. He told an interesting story of Tewksbury's career since his disappearance.

"Leaving here with a trifle over $5,000 in his pocket," said Mr. Oppenheim, "this adventurous man went to Chicago to adjust some mining difficulties in which he was involved. Instead of returning east, as he promised his friends he would do, he established himself in princely style in an office in the City of Mexico. According to his statement, he succeeded in securing important government contracts from President Diaz. He amassed a fortune sufficiently large to enable him to arrange for the full settlement of his debts here. He has already paid in full the claim of $15,000 of my former client, W. B. Johnson. The remaining creditors are mostly New York men. The largest individual claim against Tewksbury is $50,000.

"Not until he had made a success of his operations in Mexico was he recognized as the fugitive banker. He had concealed his identity under the assumed name of Louis Thorne. He is now in the mining business in South America."

Tewksbury had a banking and brokerage office at 32 Broadway and several up town offices. He was one of the best known bucket shop proprietors in the city.

Left $10,000 For Pet Dog.

NEW YORK, April 13.—Miss Ellen A. Griffin, who years ago was prominent in social circles in New York, died yesterday morning in a plainly furnished room at 57 East Eleventh street. Curled up at the foot of the bed upon which she lay was a little black and tan dog, Dandy Jim, and swinging in a cage near the window was a canary, both of which had been her only companions for many years. Although Miss Griffin was reputed to be worth $150,000 when she died, for years she had been a recluse. A few days before Miss Griffin died she made a will. The only special bequest in that instrument was one of $10,000, which she gave to Mary McGivney, the housekeeper of the house in which she lived, for the care and maintenance of Dandy Jim, her pet dog, to the end of his days.

Senator Clark to Marry.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 13.—The report comes from Los Angeles from friends of Miss Hattie Rose Laube of Huron, S. D., that she is engaged to marry Senator Clark, the Montana copper millionaire. These friends declare that the proposal of marriage came by mail from Mr. Clark, who is now in Europe. When seen in San Diego in regard to the matter, Miss Laube said, "I don't care to speak one way or another by denying or affirming." But her manner and that of her father led the reporter to believe that the report is true. Miss Laube went on the stump for McKinley in 1896, doing effective work for her party in the northwest and winning a reputation as a brilliant speaker. Since then she has occasionally lectured.

A Requisition For Taylor.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 13.—A requisition on Governor Durbin for the extradition of W. S. Taylor, who was the Republican claimant for the Kentucky governorship during the Goebel contest, is not unexpected at the statehouse. A man in official position said that he believed the reopening of the Goebel case and the recent statements alleged to have been made by Mr. Taylor were for the purpose of paving the way for a requisition from Governor Beckham. Other reports strengthen this belief. Governor Durbin has refused repeatedly to express himself as to whether or not he would honor such a requisition. Republican politicians say Durbin will take the same view of the situation that Governor Mount did.

Anniversary of Stony Point.

NYACK, N. Y., April 13.—The capture of Stony Point from the British by General Anthony Wayne of the American army early in the morning of July 16, 1779, is to be celebrated on its anniversary on July 16, this year, with elaborate exercises. Stony Point was purchased by the state of New York a few months ago, and the ground is now known as Stony Point park. The commissioners of Stony Point park have held a meeting at the home of General Ora U. Hedges at Haverstraw and decided upon a big celebration.

Seditious Preaching In Africa.

LONDON, April 13.—"A serious seditious movement," says the Pietermaritzburg correspondent of The Daily Mail, "is spreading among the natives. It is headed by native ministers who preach the doctrine of 'Africa for Africans' and incite the natives to throw off all European control. The authorities are carefully watching the propaganda, but are reluctant to interfere through fear of making martyrs of the ringleaders."

Jersey Central's Offer.

NEW YORK, April 13.—The conference between the Jersey Central railroad officials and the employees of the road adjourned late last evening with practically nothing accomplished. The company offered $30,000 yearly to be applied to increasing the salaries of the men, but it is believed that this will not meet their demands, as it amounts to about $3 a man. The officials of the road say this is the limit.

Seventy Chinamen Drowned.

HONGKONG, April 13.—The Chinese vessels Hungfui and Sunchow collided Thursday night and both sank. Seventy Chinamen were drowned. Thirteen were saved.

Plainfield's Good Roads.

Never have Plainfield's roads been in such fine condition generally at the beginning of the wheeling and driving season as they are this year. The frost and the sharp-shod hoofs of the horses tend to cut up the macadam surfaces of the streets and leave them in rough and stony condition. Of course, this is true to a certain extent this year, but the entire system, taken as a whole, is now in better condition than ever before.

The cause for this decidedly satisfactory situation is not hard to find. It is simply the result of the pursuit by the street department of a steady and unchanging policy which has thus proved its thorough effectiveness. This policy, which has been carefully followed by the street committee of the Common Council for the last few years, is simply to maintain all the streets now macadamized in good condition and add to their number as fast as the size of the appropriation will admit.

There is no doubt but that Plainfield's good roads are one of its greatest possessions and tend to attract many residents to this beautiful city. But for the fine thoroughfares which are to be found at every hand, Plainfield would be far back on the list of New York's suburban communities, which it now heads. It therefore behooves the men in power in the city administration to maintain the streets in their present excellent condition and add to their number as fast as possible without making the drain on the pocketbooks of the taxpayers a burden. People are willing to pay a reasonable amount to enjoy good roads. The policy which has brought about the existing state of affairs is a good one. Let it continue.

Most people have supposed that New Market has seen little or no growth in the last few years but the communication of "Izaak Walton" which appeared in yesterday's Daily Press showed that the village had been growing steadily. There is no doubt but that a trolley to that place would be of considerable value to all concerned and it is certainly to be hoped that the petition of the residents of New Market will have the desired effect. Such a line would certainly bring more trade to the local merchants and it would open up a large and valuable section to the suburban resident which would mean more prosperity for Plainfield. By all means let the trolley be extended to New Market.

A gang of men was started yesterday at the work of widening Somerset street. While there are a few objectors to the improvement, the great majority of the boroughites are glad to see the improvement started and will gladly welcome any plan whereby the main street of the borough is to be better fitted to handle the traffic and more trade brought to the merchants on that thoroughfare. With such an enterprising man as Mayor N. B. Smalley at the head of affairs, there need be no fear of the work dragging. Mayor Smalley wants the improvement made as soon as possible and he will use every effort toward that end.

Every day that is wasted in an attempt to persuade the Plainfield Water Supply Company to introduce meters in all residences of city and borough compels the consumers of the water supply to continue the present unequitable arrangement a day longer. If the citizens of Plainfield and North Plainfield, who patronize the water company, will unite in a general demand for the introduction of meters, the bills of the company will assume a far more satisfactory appearance to the people concerned. It is a subject that should be brought prominently to the attention of the water company at once.

According to reports, the river of burning oil which swept through the village of Glen Gardner a few weeks ago, did not destroy the enterprise of the citizens of that community even if it did succeed in destroying most of their property. The ruins of that fire are now being cleared away and preparations are being made to rebuild the village. It was a very serious disaster for such a small community, but it speaks well for the enterprise of its citizens when they start immediately to rebuild their homes and stores. Such a catastrophe would completely paralyze the energies of many towns.

The strike in the coal regions was over long ago and yet the Plainfield Gas and Electric Light Company continues to burn soft coal at its power house on Madison avenue. That great column of black smoke, which is to be seen there almost constantly, is anything but a beautiful feature to the landscape.

The view from the new bridge over Green brook, which connects Madison avenue and Duer street, is still as unsightly as ever, and there has not been the slightest effort apparently on the part of the city officials to remedy the present unsightliness. Why is it? That is what people are asking.

Every day sees additional street signs in position. Everybody is glad to see them go up and there have been many words of commendation for the kind of signs selected and the prominent position given them.

Every trolley car that sped along through the city yesterday whirled forth clouds of dust. It is getting time for the trolley company to put its sprinkler into use again.

The Board of Trade will hold a public meeting Monday when the subject of municipal ownership is going to be discussed. Let everybody turn out.

Another week will see the resumption of play on the local golf links.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May Be Of Interest to Plainfield and Its Citizens.

We have received from one "Frank Brown," writing under date of Plainfield, N. J., April 9, 1901, quite a lengthy communication in which the True American is alleged to "come to the Governor's defence in vetoing the Bordentown school bill. As we recollect the matter, we omitted to justify the Governor's course in this particular simply because no justification was necessary. We did accuse the Appropriations Committee of unusual wisdom in refusing to appropriate $45 000 to purchase land and erect buildings; and we asserted that the placing of this particular school among the recipients of school money was for no other reason than that "the beneficiaries are colored, and that the negro vote is a reasonably certain ally of the party in power." This view of the case is borne out by our correspondent, who plaintively declares that:

"It is high time for Governor Voorhees to do something for the colored people who elected him. They voted for him as their choice over Mr. Crane, but it seems to us that we made a great mistake. The Governor has not done anything for any colored man since he has been elected Governor. He had an excellent opportunity to do something for the voters who stood loyally by him by appointing a colored man on the State Board of Arbitration. Dr. Roundtree, A. B Casey, C. H. Robinson, either of these men would have represented the colored people. The colored people are unwilling to to vote the Republican ticket all the time for thanks."

All of which goes to prove not only that we were right in our praise of the Appropriations Committee, but also that the soft words with which Governor Voorhees praised the institution buttered no parsnips for its occupants or friends.—Trenton True American.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—The statement made recently in print, that highholders, (known also as flickers and as golden winged woodpeckers) are not protected by law in our State is absolutely incorrect. They are protected all the year through, and any person shooting one will be liable to the fine imposed by the law. Kindly find room in your paper for the above correction.

The President of the W. C. T. U. in a Pennsylvania town describes the experience of her husband, who was treated by many physicians of note, but obtained no relief. "He was in a deplorable condition," she says. "Some physicians thought it paralysis, others thought it tobacco heart. His arms would get numb from the shoulders, and on rubbing them they would pain him severely, the hands being almost entirely helpless. Rest at night was out of the question. He had a bad stomach, a burning sensation after eating, and complexion of a yellowish cast showed that his liver was not discharging its duty. On receiving some Ripans Tabules he took a box of them at once, and I am most happy to say they have helped him greatly, and we would not be without them. The result is no doctor bill. Heretofore we have had large ones."

CLOTH COSTUMES.

Their Name Is Legion and Their Styles Are Innumerable.

Cloth is so universally worn and is seen in so many varieties and for so many different types of costume that it is impossible to avoid perpetual reference to it. Satin cloth is a beautiful thin goods, with so smooth and silky a finish that it is difficult to believe that it is not really satin.

The illustration shows a gown composed of this material, the color being a soft willow green—one of those delicate, shadowed tones now worn. The skirt is long and closes in front, three short scarfs of green velvet coming from beneath the lap near the foot and fastening at the side by means of ornamental buckles. The tight bodice is pointed at the back and front and crosses diagonally, the edges of the front and the flaring collar being bordered with dark green embroidery. Two velvet scarfs, with buckles like those on the skirt, pass across the lower part of the bodice, and there are two large green velvet buttons at each side. The collar and chemisette are of plaited pink mousseline de soie. The sleeves have cuffs of pink silk, with ornamental buttons, and at the wrist are puffs of pink mousseline de soie gathered ipto a close band. The hat of plaited pink silk is edged with a band of black velvet and trimmed with black velvet Louis Quinze bows and pink poppies. JUDIC CHOLLET.

gray, blue and brown, and green and black are also much worn. For social occasions pastel blue, ivory, red, soft pinks and greens and all delicate shades of gray are adopted. Cloth in some one of its many varieties is the material chiefly employed.

The illustration given today shows a typical jacket of red amazon cloth, closed at the left side by olives and loops of passementerie. There are embroidered motifs in black on the front and down the outside of the close sleeves, and the edges of the jacket are all finished by a stitched border. The straight, high collar is turned over and faced with black velvet. The hat of stretched silk is trimmed with a bow of velvet, a buckle and black quills. The jacket is worn with a black skirt. The Macabebes in Our Army in the Philippines

Something About the Native Warriors Who Helped Funston Capture Aguinaldo

[Mr. Richard Henry Little, the writer of the following sketch of the Macabebes, who have so valiantly aided the American cause in the Philippines, and as a final accomplishment assisted in the capture of Aguinaldo, is a newspaper writer of wide experience, who for many months represented one of America's greatest dailies in the far Pacific islands, and who has but recently returned from there. During his stay in the island he made a special study of the little native warriors who are fighting under the American flag, and there is probably no one better fitted to write of them. The article is illustrated from photographs taken by Mr. Little.—Editor.]

NEVER will I forget the first introduction I had to the Macabebes. A kind-hearted sergeant of the Third cavalry who labored under the delusion that I had saved his life and who wanted to repay me for the service told me of a nipa shack about a half mile outside of our lines where a chicken had been seen roosting in a tree shortly before dark. We were considerably reduced at that time in regard to rations, and it was the impression of the sergeant that a vigorous flank movement on the insurgent chicken soon after nightfall would result in its capture. I moved on the chicken just at moonrise and after a little preliminary skirmish hopelessly routed the enemy and by a vigorous pursuit effected his capture. While returning down a trail with the spoils of war a bullet spat savagely into a tree nearby and a shrill voice called out:

"Quien vive."

I did not know just what "Quien vive" was at that time, but I concluded that the best way to "Quien vive" when in doubt was to lie down behind a rock, and so I "quien vived" to the best of my ability.

"Quien vive" again came the hail and I heard the magazine clip on a rifle cluck savagely and waited for the fusillade. Suddenly I recalled that only the Krag-Jorgensen of all various guns employed in the Philippines had that clucking magazine clip. I then deduced that the gentleman behind it must be in sympathy with the Americans, and following out this brilliant line of thought I finally deduced the proposition that the individual who had hailed me was a Macabebe picket on outpost duty. The flurry which the sudden hiss of the bullet had thrown me into had passed somewhat, and I then recalled that one side of our camp was guarded by Macabebe's and that the proper reply to the hail "Quien vive," which is Spanish for "Who lives" is "Americano." I think that the "Americano," which I immediately gave at that juncture, was distinctly heard in Manila, but was erroneously reported as an earthquake.

The story of the nerve and daring of the 78 Macabebe scouts who made possible Gen. Funston's brilliant capture of Aguinaldo has brought these brave little people into prominence before the American people. The name Macabebe does not mean much to those who have not followed closely the story of our little war in the Philippines, and when the report was published that Gen. Funston took 78 of them in his expedition to capture Aguinaldo it was not strange if many good citizens of the United States were in doubt for awhile as to whether a Macabebe was a new kind of repeating rifle or an army ration.

The Macabebes quite naturally come from the town of Macabebe in Luzon. All the country around the town and including a large part of Pampanga province is also inhabited by the Macabebe's and is generally known as Macabebe land. Macabebe is about 40 miles northeast of Manila, on Manila bay. The Macabebes are a separate tribe of Filipinos just like the Tagalogs, the Illicanos, the Vistyans and others. To an American there is no physical difference between the Tagalog and the Macabebe, except that the latter does not insurrect. The Tagalog can always be set down as being "ag'in the government," while the Macabebe follows the flag better than trade is supposed to do. He followed the Spanish flag loyally and well when it was the recognized emblem of the Philippines and when the American flag was raised and the "parrot" pulled down the Macabebes clambered over each other in their haste to swear loyalty to the stars and stripes. The little warriors were always faithful to Spain and served in large numbers in the native corps of the Spanish army. That may be one reason why they are so hated by all the other Filipinos. They have always been the tories of the island. They are said to differ considerably from the other Filipino tribes in the matter of blood. There is a legend that a couple of hundred of years or so ago several Chinese pirate ships were wrecked on the coast of Lepanto and that the pirates had to forego their honorable vocation of pirating and engage in trade. Since then there have been large bar scimiters on many of the escutcheons of the noble families in Macabebeland and a peculiar slanting of the eyes and a disposition to engage in laundrying have been characteristic of the tribe ever since. Anyhow all the other tribes in the Philippines hate the Macabebe as much as a certain horned and hoofed gentleman hates holy water, and the first thing that the Tagalogs would have done had they secured possession of the Philippine government would have been the inauguration of several thousand lynching bees in Macabebeland. The Macabebes fought in the trenches around Manila shoulder to shoulder against the Americans and Tagalogs who were besieging them. But when the city was surrendered and sovereignty passed to the Americans the Macabebes passed to and swore eternal fealty to the stars and stripes. They were anxious to at once enter the military service of the United States. They were anxious for the insurrection to be put down, for they knew what they had to expect if Aguinaldo's army triumphed. But for a long time the government refused to enlist them. The army officers did not understand the Macabebes and were suspicious of their motives and doubted their bravery and loyalty. Lieut. Matthew A. Batson, of the Fourth United States cavalry, became interested in them and repeatedly petitioned Gen. Otis to permit him to recruit a company of Macabebe scouts. He was finally given permission, and four companies of 100 men each were enrolled. The Macabebes were delighted and the full number was secured in a day or two, and 2,000 might have been enlisted in the same time, so anxious were they to get into the service. Instead of arming his warriors with the infantry Krag-Jorgensen rifle Lieut. Batson equipped them with the cavalry carbine. A boy with his first pair of red-topped boots is a sad and weeping spectacle compared to the little warriors when they received their carbines. The Macabebes are so small that the infantry rifle would have been much too heavy for them, but the carbine fitted them as snugly as though they had been measured for their guns. They are inordinately fond of their carbines, and for the first few months after they received them never laid them down.

When Batson first went into action with his Macabebes it was still a question with the American officers as to whether the Macabebes would fight or sulk. It seemed to be no question with Batson, however. He simply started on a run down the road straight for the enemy, and the little warriors trailed after him like a pack of dogs close behind a fox. Batson did not look back to see whether the Macabebes were following him or not. He had made up his mind on the subject of the loyalty and nerve of his men and he was confident they would follow where he led. So Batson led and his men followed, and the startled Filipinos after two or three volleys broke in wild disorder and fled, with Batson still running as though he was entered in a two-mile race and his Macabebes belonged to a rival college. Batson organized, equipped and disciplined the Macabebe scouts and carried them with great credit through a dozen fights until he was finally badly wounded, and after a long period in hospital at Manila was invalided home. All the commissioned officers of the Macabebes were officers detailed from the various regiments in the Philippines.

Lieut. James H. Blount, of Georgia, an officer of the Twenty-ninth infantry, during his detail with the Macabebes had a most picturesque time. Blount had but just landed in the island when he was assigned to the command of a hundred Macabebes. Blount tried earnestly to acquire the Spanish language in the two days it took him to journey up to his command. He found after he took hold of his scouts and tried to direct them that his knowledge of the language was not as comprehensive as he had hoped. He was in despair for awhile, but one day he was observed to be smiling brightly, and his Macabebes seemed to understand his slightest wish. A brother officer asked Blount how he had managed to acquire the Spanish and Macabebe language in one night.

"Greatest thing in the world," said the gentleman from Georgia. "I have got possession of two words that give me a complete working vocabulary of the Spanish language. All I've got to say is 'sacar estar!' Now, 'sacar,' as I understand it, means to put, to place, to bring, to take away, to fetch, to pick up, to put down, to stand, to sleep, to wake up, to go, to come and a large number of other things. 'Estar' is the verb that must always be used, and which means to be or something like that; anyhow, you always have to use it with 'sacar.' Of course I have to wave my hand, too. For instance," went on the accomplished linguist, "I point to the water bucket and say 'sacar estar,' and the Macabebes run foot races to see who will bring me the water. I point to my saddle and in a low, quiet tone say 'sacar estar,' and the Macabebes have that saddle on my horse before you could say John Robinson. Oh, 'sacar estar' is about 3,000,000 Spanish words rolled up into two. It's a great scheme."

Not long after this Blount and his Macabebes were suddenly fired upon from ambush by a large body of insurgent troops. Blount says that he almost threw himself into convulsions trying to think of the Spanish word for "fire." "I had to give it up. Then I decided that as I couldn't give the command to 'fire' I had better have my men charge, as I was sure I could say 'charge' in Spanish, for I had practiced it for a half hour the day before. But to save my life I couldn't think of the Spanish for 'charge.' I didn't know what I was going to do. My Macabebes were all crouched down, eyeing me, and the Filipinos were pumping it into us as hard as they could work their guns. Finally I had an inspiration. I grabbed off my hat, started on a run for the insurgents, yelling 'sacar estar' as loud as I could holler. Well, sir, those Macabebes understood that right off. They rose up with a yell, fired a volley and then came after me in the grandest charge ever recorded in history. They 'sacarestied' right into the niggers and run them for a mile. I couldn't think of the Spanish for halt, and I was afraid that myself and the Macabebes would keep on until we ran off the island, but all of a sudden I thought of my vocabulary again, and I just shouted 'sacar estar' and the Macabebes stopped as though they had run up against a brick wall, and, quietly forming, marched back in order. My advice is to any officer commanding Macabebes when in doubt say 'sacar estar.'"

The fame of Mr. Blount's magic phrase spread, and their officers used to lead them into battle with the thrilling war cry of "Sacar estar."

The Macabebes are lithe and active as cats. When they start out on a march they dance along like ballet girls, and no matter how far they march they can be found soon after a town is entered skipping about down every street, and the terrified squawks of numerous chickens tell most eloquently of what they are about. The Macabebe is a most accomplished chicken thief, if he sets his mind on it. The American soldier is clumsy and awkward compared to the little skipping Macabebes, who trail an unsuspecting chicken like a shadow and pounce down upon it before it has time to find out that there is a Macabebe within ten miles. I remember at Namigpacah, when three troops of the Third cavalry, a battalion of the Thirty-third infantry and one company of Macabebes were pursuing Aguinaldo up the coast road, of seeing, one bright Sunday morning, the entire outfit of Macabebes drawn up in line in front of the church.

Inquiring the cause of the parade, I found that an old native woman had charged two of the Macabebes with walking into her house and commandeering a pot of rice and two chickens that were cooking on a stove. Gen. Young, in command of the expedition, waxed exceeding wroth and ordered the Macabebes to be paraded that the old woman might go down the line and pick out the natives. Everyone of the Macabebes was accordingly turned out and stood in line while the old woman went back and forth peering into every face. She walked from end to end of the line a half-dozen times, but finally stood nonplussed. Some American soldiers had borrowed the instruments of the Namigpacan band and, while the general commanding, the officer in charge of the Macabebes and the old woman stood doubtfully gazing at the long row of native warriors, the volunteer band suddenly began to discourse "All Coons Look Alike to Me." The general, who had been glaring as black as a cloudburst at the Macabebes seemed to be suffering from a sudden attack of apoplexy, for he turned and hastily disappeared in the direction of his quarters, and the officer in charge of the guilty soldiers repaired to the church and laughed until he cried. And the two looters were never discovered.

When the Macabebes were taken into the service they were equipped with khaki uniforms, but instead of the service felt hat were given wide-brimmed straw hats with a bit of blue ribbon on one side of the upturned brim. They were also given shoes and socks, which were highly necessary to them. The shoes they wore gracefully around their necks, while the socks were stuffed with rice and the extra shirt the government had given each man was used as a haversack. The coats were discarded, and when the Macabebes came out on the road for a "hike" they would appear wearing a blue army shirt and the khaki trousers with the bottoms rolled up to the knees. They would have their shoes swinging from around their necks and their socks stuffed with rice dangling from their belts. Their little carbines would be carried by a strap from their left shoulder. Then with their bare feet pattering in the dust, they would go romping down the road like a lot of schoolboys before going out to play.

I remember a little boyish Macabebe who belonged to Lieut. Conway's command, who lay dying in a corner of a gloomy old church one night up on the west coast. He was shot twice in the breast, and the surgeons said he would die before midnight. He had asked for a priest, and the soldiers had hunted all over the town for one, and finally secured the native padre of the town. Now, down in Macabebe land the people never quarreled with either church or state, but native padres are at a discount, especially native Tagalog padres. The native padre with his accolytes and in all the robes that the regular Spanish priest had left at the church when the Tagalogs had driven him away, appeared by the bedside of the dying Macabebe and began to perform the last service of the church for the dying. The wounded Macabebe's face lit up with a smile of quiet satisfaction. He weakly made the sign of the cross over his heart and muttered a prayer. Then he opened his eyes and saw for the first time the face of the priest bending over him. The look of seraphic peace and joy fled from his face and his features knitted up in a scowl. He calmly reached down by his side and produced a cigarette. Then he lit up one of the holy candles and lit his cigarette by its flame. He puffed a cloud of smoke into the face of the startled Tagalog padre and said: "No querer el padre negro." I don't know that this is good Spanish, but at least I can plead that the Macabebes did not speak anything like good Spanish. But, anyway, what the wounded Macabebe meant was that he did not care for the services of a black priest. It was his lifelong hatred of the Tagalog that was still strong in death. He picked up the crucifix that the Tagalog priest had placed by his side and pitched it straight at the priest's head. He took another pull at the cigarette and in shrill tones cried out: "Padre, negro, no esperar aqui. Vamos, vamos, vamos!" He pulled himself up in a sitting posture and the effort tore the bandage from his wounds, and the blood began to flow afresh.

"Vamos, padre negro!" he shouted. "Vive, vive Macabebe." His voice died away. He sank back on his couch, and with his cigarette still clenched between his teeth and his sins still upon him, the soul of the little Macabebe soldier passed away.

"He's clean grit right up to the finish, all right," said an American soldier who stood by. "That Tagal padre didn't forgive him his sins, but when a fellow fights the way he did to-day and dies as plucky as he did, I guess there's somebody up there that'll forgive him, all right."

I thought so, too.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

All members of the Plainfield Athletic Association are requested to be present at the meeting to be held in the parlors of the Hotel Waldorf next Tuesday evening as several matters of importance are to come up for settlement.

The Plainfield Athletic Association, realizing they will meet worthy opponents in their game with the Arlingtons this afternoon, have strenghtened the football team at every possible point. It is now in the best of condition and an exciting game is sure to ensue. The kick-off will be made by City Collector F. H. Smith.

GOLF.

On the occasion of the opening of the links of the Park Golf Club for play next Saturday afternoon, a ball sweepstakes will be held. Each member competing will give one ball of standard make and the winners will divide the collection. Last year's handicaps will prevail. Although the course is not yet open, temporary greens have been arranged. The new professional, Mr. Glover, is on the ground looking after the improvements now being made to the course. The first of the amateurs to play over the course this year were Samuel Townsend and his son, Morgan Townsend. They found the links in good shape.

WIDENING WELL UNDERWAY.

WORK WAS STARTED ON SOMERSET STREET YESTERDAY.

Street Commissioner Emmons Expects to Have Work Completed in Three Weeks.

Work on the widening of Somerset street began yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock, and this morning the improvement is well underway.

Borough Street Commissioner Wm. Emmons has a force of ten men at work on the roadbed and pavement on the east side of the street between Jackson and Manning avenues. The former width of the pavement was 13 feet and of this 5 feet have been cut away and added to the width on the roadbed. The width of the pavement when the improvement is made will be 8 feet and flag stones 4 feet wide are now being laid in the middle of this space.

The tree stumps and other obstructions at this point have been removed and the curb will likely be set this afternoon. As soon as this strip of walk is completed the men will improve the east side of the thoroughfare, one square at a time, until the brook is reached. When this is finished work will be commenced on the west side of the street.

Street Commissioner Emmons expects to have the work completed within three weeks.

Purchased Park Avenue Property.

John D. Bailey, manager for the Park Avenue Hotel, has purchased from Justice V. W. Nash the strip of land adjourning the hotel property upon which a small building stands. The building is to be moved to some other place. This structure stands between the hotel and the Unitarian church, and ever since its erection it has been a source of annoyance to both the hotel and church people. The news that it is to be moved will be welcome. It is said that Mr. Bailey paid $1,650 for the property.

BOROUGH SCHOOL BOYS WERE BADLY BEATEN.

Y. M. A., of Hope Chapel, Had No Trouble in Winning Their Opening Game Saturday.

THE SCORE WAS 18 TO 6.

ERRATIC PLAYING WAS DONE BY BOTH TEAMS.

Armstrong Pitched Good Game For North Plainfield, But, Except For Two Innings, He Had No Support—Hope's Many Pitchers.

Erratic plays of both teams characterized the game between the nine of the Young Men's Association of Hope chapel and the North Plainfield High School team Saturday afternoon on the Sherman avenue grounds.

It was the opening game of the season for the Hope chapel boys and they appeared for the first time in the new suits. The High School lads did not expect to defeat their opponents, who are much older and stronger, and consequently the result of the game, 18 to 6 in favor of the home team, came as no surprise to Superintendent Wightman's protegees.

Some changes have been made in the Hope chapel team. Harry Mague at left field is a new man as are also Harry and James Montross. The latter is the old pitcher of St. Mary's nine and he is expected to be in the box regularly now for the Y. M. A., but Saturday he was put at right field while Charles Auten was given a trial at pitching. Claude Roseberry who caught last season, is at present placed in the outfield, and William Hartfelder, the former third baseman, is now behind the bat.

A few changes were necessary in the make up of the boroughites' team by reason of the absence of Townsend, whose position at second base was filled by Edward Overton. G. C. M. Smith, was called upon to do duty in right field, and Emmons, the regular man, was sent to the left field. Crite was excused from pitching because of a sprained arm received in the vain attempt to strike out the Leal School batters in the Thursday game. Fred Armstrong took his position in the box and Crite held down third base.

Both pitchers were hit hard as a general rule. Auten, of the Hope chapel team had a slow delivery, of which the High School boys did not fail to take advantage. He was sent to right field in the fifth inning and J. Montross was substituted in the box. After this change the High School boys only made one run.

Armstrong's work was spasmodic. At times he showed good form and his outshoots kept the Hope chapel boys guessing. In the second inning he struck three out of the five batters out, but now and then he was inclined to be wild. The field work of both teams was wretched as a general thing.

The North Plainfield boys started to warm things up in the first inning and both Crite and Armstrong made two baggers. With the exception of three runs made in the fourth inning, by errors of the Hope chapel players, and one run made in the sixth inning, their work at the bat was poor. They could hit the ball, but failed to drive it safely.

Principally because of the faulty fielding of the boroughites, the showing of the Y. M. A. at the bat was decidedly better. Nevertheless ten of them struck out in attempting to decipher Armstrong's curves. In the first inning every man of them got a chance at the bat and four of them scored. The same thing happened again in the third inning with the identical result. However, in the fourth and eighth inning, the North Plainfielders' battery received the support it deserved from the field and not one of the Hope chapel men reached first base. These two innings showed what the boroughites could do, provided they kept their nerves.

Base stealing was successfully resorted to by both teams, but credit should be given the Hope chapel men for quick cornering of George in attempting to steal second base in the ninth inning when two of his fellows were out. This well executed piece of work was the climax of the game as Y. M. A boys did not bat in the latter half of the ninth inning.

The batting order and positions follows:

3 HORSES CREMATED; BARN TOTALLY BURNED

Mysterious Fire Started Early Sunday Morning in Barn of Nicholas VanWinkle.

TOTAL LOSS WAS $2,000.

THREE HORSES ROASTED ALIVE AND FOURTH HAD TO BE SHOT.

Flames Were First Seen By Andrew Jefferson, Colored Man in Employ of Mr. VanWinkle—Barn Burned Down.

A fire, resulting in the death of four horses and the total destruction of Nicholas VanWinkle's barn, in the rear of his house, 6 Coddington avenue, occurred shortly after 1 o'clock yesterday morning. The loss is estimated at $2,000.

Flames were seen issuing from all parts of the structure a few minutes past 1 o'clock by Andrew Jefferson, a colored man who is employed by Mr. VanWinkle to attend to the horses.

Jefferson had just returned from Plainfield, where he had spent the evening, and was in the act of changing his clothes in his room in the house when he made the discovery. His room is located in the back portion of the VanWinkle residence which commands a full view of the barn. The hired man's attention was first attracted by a loud noise sounding like the heavy stamping of horse's hoofs. Thinking that something was wrong, he made haste to reach the barn and was confronted by flames leaping from all sections of the large structure. Immediately he summoned Mr. VanWinkle.

In the meanwhile, Mrs. A. I. Smalley turned in an alarm from box 143 and both the Warren Engine Company and the West End Hose Company responded to the call. On their arrival the barn was one mass of flames and nothing could be done to save it One stream, however, was quickly directed on it and another on the house to prevent the flames from spreading, to it.

Before success could reach them three valuable horses were roasted to death inside the place. A fourth, whose eyes were burned out by fire, had frantically leaped over its stall and rushed through the stable door, which had been forced open by the men outside in an attempt to rescue the animals. This horse was in such horrible agony that Meyers Compton mercifully shot him.

The barn is a total loss, nothing but the skeleton of the structure remaining. It was valued at $750 and on it is insurance amounting to $500. Other losses are: a pair of heavy horses, weighing 3,150 pounds, valued at $500; a pair of horses, weighing 2,165 pounds, $490; three sets of harness, $75; the body of a platform wagon, belonging to Smalley Brothers, $40; farming implements and tools, $25; hay and feed, $20, and a road cart, $15. The total loss is $2,000 and there was no insurance except on the barn itself.

The cause of the fire is wrapt in mystery and Mr. VanWinkle is unable to account for it, but the general belief is that it was of incendiary origin.

The loss falls as a heavy blow on Mr. VanWinkle. Yesterday George Wise and several other friends started to raise voluntary subscriptions to assist Mr. VanWinkle temporarily.

WORK OF Y. M. C. A. AT CALCUTTA, INDIA.

Three Interesting Addresses by J. Campbell White, Seven Years Secretary There.

TOLD OF THE WORK DONE.

SPOKE ON INDIA AT FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH IN MORNING.

Addressed Local Y. M. C. A. in the Afternoon—Told Something of the Work at Crescent Avenue Church in the Evening.

J. Campbell White, who, for seven years was secretary of the Y. M. C. A., at Calcutta, India, and who has recently returned from that country, was present at the First Baptist church yesterday morning and gave an interesting talk concerning India and her people. Mr. White said that he was not present to solicit money for the work he represented but to enlist the sympathy and support of the church people so that they might be induced to contribute through their own channels toward the foreign mission work in India.

In the opinion of the speaker he believed that the most godless nation was the one having the most gods, and this he believed to be true of India. He spoke of the Hindu sacred books, and noted the fact that there is nothing in them to point a person to God or lead a person to live a moral life. These books, he said, compare favorably with the present day fiction. A majority of the people of India represent God as doing wrong things and of being unholy, and it is difficult to rid their minds of these things.

The speaker spoke of the idols and of the power they have over the people. Mr. White also talked of the widows in India of which there are 24,000,000, most of whom are under fifteen years of age. Many of these widows lead evil lives through force of circumstances. They are cast out, never allowed to marry again and life is one long dreary existence for them. During his talk the speaker told of the great good being accomplished in India by missionaries, how thousands are being led to Christ and are being persuaded to give up their lives of idolatory and sin.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. White addressed a large audience of men at the Y. M. C. A. He again told of the condition of affairs in India and illustrated his remarks by the aid of maps, one of which pictured the great many idols worshipped by the people of India. He dwelt at some length on the religious condition of Calcutta, telling of the 10,000 students that go out from the University of Calcutta every four years, and aside from the influence of missionaries and the grand work of the Y. M. C. A. would never hear of Christ and salvation. During the first part of the service W. Paulding DeNike rendered a beautiful solo on the 'cello, and Mrs. F. M. Ward sang a contralto solo, "Jesus Lover of My Soul."

Last evening Mr. White spoke at the Crescent Avenue church and he was greeted by a large audience that deeply enjoyed his earnest and instructive talk concerning India. He cited special features about the work being conducted there by Christian missionaries and the Y. M. C. A. workers, and told of the urgent need for more funds and missionaries.

ANOTHER ENTRANCE.

F. W. Woolworth & Co. Will Take Store in Present Entrance at Music Hall.

Frank W. Woolworth & Co., proprietors of the numerous five and ten cent stores throughout the country, have leased the entrance to Music Hall and a store will be built there where they will conduct one of their stores. The matter was definitely decided Saturday. The entrance will remain as it is until May 4. After that the store will be built as quickly as possible.

Wm. N Stillman, in conversation with a reporter for The Daily Press this morning, said that there is still a chance to maintain Music Hall as a show house. Arrangements can be made with the Babcock estate for an entrance to the hall from Madison avenue, and this would answer every convenience. Mr. Stillman says that he will sell the hall reasonably if any one desires to buy and continue the same for a theatre or anything else.

DEATH OF JAMES H. HALLOCK.

PASSED AWAY SATURDAY EVENING AFTER THREE WEEKS ILLNESS.

Was Well-Known in This City Where He Spent All His Life—Was Valued Employe of M. E. Book Concern.

In the death of James H. Hallock, which occurred Saturday evening at his home, 965 Madison avenue, Plainfield has lost another one of its best citizens. Five weeks ago Mr. Hallock suffered from an attack of the grip. He never fully recovered from this and that illness developed into typhoid fever ten days ago. The case was a severe one from the first. The hemorrhages were frequent and soon produced utter exhaustion, from which the patient was unable to rally.

Mr. Hallock was born in this city thirty-five years ago. He was the son of Mrs. Charlotte and the late James Hallock. For a time in his early years he attended the public schools, but at the age of fifteen years he gave up school to accept a position in the Methodist Book Concern, at 150 Fifth avenue, New York. This position he secured through the influence of Bishop Vincent, who, at that time resided in this city. Through his indomitable energy and pluck he was advanced rapidly, until a few years ago he became manager of the subscription department at that house. This position he held up to the time of his death. He was a hard worker and through a wide knowledge of his business his services were extremely valuable.

Mr. Hallock had a large circle of acquaintances in this city and was very popular. He was a man of sterling qualities and irreproachable character. His true worth was known and appreciated by those who knew him best. A few years ago he was married to Miss Erickson, daughter of Mrs. Delia and the late Eric N. Erickson, and she survives him. A year and a half ago Mr. Hallock erected a handsome residence at 965 Madison avenue, and he and his wife had entered into the happiness that came with a home of their own.

Besides a wife, Mr. Hallock leaves a mother, four brothers, George Hallock, Dr. Frank Hallock, Fletcher Hallock and Willard P. Hallock; also two sisters, Mrs. O. L. Jenkins, wife of Mayor Jenkins, and Mrs. William Bryan, of New York.

GREEN BROOK CLEANED.

Street Department Removed Two Large Cart Loads of Rubbish From Bed of Brook.

Two large cart loads of rubbish were removed from Green brook Friday under the direction of Street Comsioner Gavett. Two men were put to work there and waded down the brook, in the vicinity of the Madison avenue bridge, and cleaned out of the bed of the brook thoroughly. The rubbish was then carted away. Street Commissioner Gavett was authorized to do the work by Councilman R. I. Tolles, chairman of the street committee. He had expected to do it sooner, but delayed in order to allow the brook to get as low as possible.

Yesterday's high winds blew a quantity of papers from the rear of a number of West Front street stores into the brook.

Runaway Horse Hurt

A horse belonging to Wm. R Coddington, of Sandford avenue, ran away from a small colored boy who was riding it on East Front street yesterday morning. In its flight down Watchung avenue it slipped and fell heavily on the trolley tracks. The animal was severely skinned and bruised but the boy escaped injury.

Master Cornelius Schenck still continues to improve and his recovery now seems certain.

MAGGIE BELLE FOUGHT WITH A POLICEMAN.

Made Things Lively on Her Way to the City Lock-up Late Saturday Night.

TRIAL TOMORROW MORNING.

PATROLMAN HIGGINS ARRESTED TWO WELL-KNOWN CHARACTERS.

But It Took Much of the Officer's Strength to Drag Maggie to Headquarters—Maggie Belle's Companion Given Sixty Days.

Maggie Belle Jackson Gibson, colored, and her friend, Mrs. Minnie Barry Schunck, white, two characters whose names are too well-known to the police, were arrested by Patrolman Maurice Higgins Saturday evening on Park avenue. Drunkenness, disorderly conduct and resisting an officer were the trio of chargee lodged against each of them.

The two offenders started to cut high capers around the corner of Second street and Park avenue late in the evening. Shouting to men of various races and colors and making disturbances otherwise attracted the attention of Patrolman Higgins, who promptly ordered the pair to accompany him to the police headquarters. This request was not favorably received by the Gibson woman particularly and she commenced to wrestle with the officer.

Matters became very warm and the woman's Sandow strength gave Higgins all the work he desired. A great crowd gathered. Fortunately a young man nabbed the other woman and headed her for the lockup. In the meanwhile the officer got Mrs. Gibson but a short distance when her ire was raised by the assistance rendered her custodian by a citizen. She let loose a pint bottle of whiskey at the man which, however, fell short and smashed on the pavement.

Higgins resorted to the catch-as-catch-can tactics and after Mrs. Gibson had spent her strength and venom he landed her safely in the police headquarters.

This morning the pair were to have been given a hearing but Robert M. Clark, as attorney for the star offender, Mrs Gibson, obtained a continuance until tomorrow morning.

The Schunck woman was dealt with severely. The police officers testified to her generally bad reputation and on the strength of this City Judge Runyon imposed a fine of $20 or the alternative of sixty days imprisonment.

QUIET WEDDING.

Miss Edith Humphrey Married to Theo. Whitehead, of New Brunswick.

A quiet wedding took place yesterday morning at the home of Robert Humphrey, West Front street, when his sister, Miss Edith Humphrey, was married to Theodore Whitehead, of New Brunswick. The ceremony took place at 11 o'clock, and Rev. A. E Main, of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, officiated.

The bride wore a travelling gown of blue cloth and was accompanied by her sister, Miss Laura Humphrey, as bridemaid. Alfred Yorston, of New Brunswick, was best man. Following the marriage a wedding dinner was enjoyed by the guests, after which Mr. and Mrs. Whitehead left for a wedding trip. They will reside at New Brunswick, where the groom is a tonsorial artist.

FLAMES WERE BUSY; FAMILY WAS ABSENT.

Lively Blaze at Residence of William Brown on East Second Street Saturday Evening.

LOSS WAS NEARLY $1,000.

FIRE SUPPOSED TO HAVE STARTED FROM LAMP ON SECOND FLOOR.

Had Gotten Good Headway When They Were First Seen—Fire in the Walls Had to be Flooded Out—Loss Covered by Insurance.

An alarm from Box 16, at the corner of Front and Richmond streets, turned in at 8:15 Saturday evening by Howard Manning, brought the fire department to the residence of William Brown, on East Second street. A fire had started in a rear room on the second floor and, by means of an open window, had spread to the outside of the house, thence by another window to the attic. Before the flames were fully extinguished, the house and furniture was damaged to the extent of nearly $1,000. The loss is fully covered by insurance.

There was no one home at the time the fire broke out and the flames had made considerable headway before they were discovered. A second delay was occasioned by the failure of the house tappers to work properly, the firemen having to wait for the second round before ascertaining the exact location. On the arrival of the apparatus, however, the blaze was soon gotten under control. It was confined to two rooms on the second floor and in one end of the attic, but owing to the flames eating their way between the walls it was over an hour before they were completely extinguished. Three streams of water were kept going continuously, and for this reason the lower part of the house was badly flooded.

The furniture in the two rooms upstairs was totally destroyed as was also a large sum of money which Mrs. Brown had in a bureau. On the first floor most of the goods were removed in safety. The total loss to the furniture will amount to $500, while it was insured for $1,500. The house is owned by Lawyer William Newcorn, and a conservative estimate places the damage at $500, which is covered by insurance.

Just how the fire started is not clear. The theory of Chief Doane is that it was due to a lamp, which Mrs. Brown had left on a bureau near an open window previous to quitting the house. It was her intention to take a trolley car to Westfield, but before going, she walked to the corner of Fifth and Richmond, looking for her young son. It was less than fifteen minutes after she had left the house that the alarm sounded and she was informed that the fire was at her home. The lamp evidently had exploded or upset soon after she left and by means of the draught from the window had made the progress it did.

Naylor at the corner of Rock avenue and West Front street. This building was purchased Saturday by that firm and after many improvements are made, work will be started there.

NEW CURATE BEGAN DUTIES AT GRACE.

Rev. Charles Judd, Assistant to Rev. E. M. Rodman, Preached First Sermon Last Night.

CONGREGATION PLEASED.

HE HAD A PLEASANT VOICE AND SPOKE EASILY AND DISTINCTLY.

Made a Favorable Impression at His First Appearance at Grace P. E. Church—Rev. W. Brice Morrow Assisted.

Rev. Charles Judd, the announcement of whose selection as curate of Grace P. E. church was made a few days ago, assisted Rev. E. M. Rodman at both the morning and evening services for the first time yesterday. In the evening he delivered the sermon to a large congregation and very favorably impressed all who had the pleasure of listening to his scholarly discourse.

Rev. Mr. Judd is a graduate of the General Theological Seminary in New York city, and at present holds a fellowship in that institution. This honor, which he has won, does not expire for two years, and for the present, at least, the newly chosen curate will retain his position in the seminary. He comes here as an active young man, just beginning his ministerial career, and judging from his general appearance and manner will undoubtedly be able to relieve the rector of much of the irksome duties which fall upon him in connection with parish work.

Choosing as the text for his sermon, last evening, Acts xxvi, 8, "Why should it be thought a thing increditable with you, that God should raise the dead?" the young curate drew from this interrogatory, addressed by St. Paul to King Agrippa, the teaching of the church in relation to the resurrection of man. He referred to the resurrection of the Saviour and pointed out that after Christ rose from the dead He appeared at various places in His material body. That Christ did rise from the dead is accepted as an absolute fact and those who would not believe it are generally possessed of a disordered mind or perverated will. The soul, which is invisible and indissoluble and hence indestructible differs from the natural body in being free from any control by time or space, said he, and it follows that it will exist throughout eternity.

The language of the Creed, "I believe in the resurrection of the body" sets forth explicitely, he declared, the teaching of the Christ concerning the condition of life after the death of the natural body. The body is but the instrument of the soul and on it is impressed the doings of the life in this world. Though the body may die and be even creamated, there is no logical reason why it should not be raised again, but there are many reasons, said he, for the declaration that it will be resurrected.

One after another reason was given to bear out this statement. In so far as the soul is concerned, even the heathen believe that for it there is a life everlasting and the Christian teaching is that there is in addition a life to come for the material body. This, he said, might be declared by some to be contrary to reason, but it was entirely logical and is not any more mysterious than transformations one sees in this life, some of which he cited. A declaration that the soul stripped of the body would be raised from the dead, Rev. Mr. Judd stigmatized as heretical teaching. Christ Himself appeared after death in His body and drew the attention of His followers to the fact. He likewise ascended in a material body and it is not increditable that God will raise the material body together with the soul of man.

Rev. Mr. Judd possesses a particularly clear voice which he modulates in such a manner that it can be heard distinctly in all parts of the church edifice. His manner of delivery is exceedingly attractive and his choice of words to express his thoughts unusually good He used few gestures and appears to be much at ease while addressing the congregation. The new curate speaks rapidly but his ideas are so logical that one has no difficulty in following the thread of the discourse. In all it can be truthfully said that he will be of great aid to Rector Rodman and an honor to the church.

Much of the Easter music was repeated at the services yesterday. In the evening William Tallamy rendered the tenor solo in the offertory anthem "As it Began to Dawn." At this service in the chancel, besides the rector and curate was Rev. W. Bryce Morrow, formerly rector of St. James' church, Bristol, Pa., who assisted in the service.

DEMOCRATIC POSSIBILITIES.

QUARTETTE FROM WHICH CANDIDATE MAY BE CHOSEN.

How The Trenton Times Sums up the Situation in the Democratic Camp.

Although the gubernatorial campaign is months away there is considerable interest as to who will be chosen by the two leading parties to head their respective tickets. The situation in the Democratic camp is summed up by the Trenton Times as follows:

"Every good general, after learning the strength of his forces, must know how the enemy stands before he can intelligently go up against him even in a skirmish. So let us look over the Democratic outfit in this State. For some reason it has been impressed upon the Democratic leaders that they can win over the government if they can get the votes, and to corral the votes they must pick a candidate for Governor, who, if he is not personally wealthy, can at least command a contribution fat enough to do the trick.

"In James M. Seymour they have only a fraction of the essentials. As Mayor of New Seymour has wielded only a local influence. He has been afflicted with the 'big head,' but the big purse is not within his reach. Ex-Senator Smith would throw away $50,000 to defeat him, and if he is up against such opposition on the home plate how could he make the bases? Besides, Seymour is not strong outside of Newark; Essex would oppose him by 10,000 majority.

"Democracy's really strong men are Edward F. C. Young, of Hudson, and Senator Johnston Cornish, of Warren. Both are able and shrewd business men. Young is richer than Cornish and besides commanding the potent influences of vast trolley and trust enterprises he can count upon 20,000 majority in Hudson. Cornish, too, has a stiff financial backing, and either of the two could poll 15,000 more votes than Seymour.

"Alvah A. Clark, who represented the old Third district in Congress between 1877 and 1881 and was the Democratic choice for United States Senator in the last session of the Legislature, stands in line with Young and Cornish for preferment and equals them in financial backing. Many persons believe that he will be the candidate. However, the Republicans must reckon with the probability that one of these four Democrats will be the opponent of the man they name for Governor."

VICE IN HIGH LIFE.

New York Clergymen to Fight Society Gambling.

NEW YORK, April 15.—Spurred on by a secret meeting at which the conditions first laid bare by the Rev. Dr. Huntington were discussed, it is probable that organized efforts will be made by the ministers of New York to stamp out society gambling.

Although reluctance to father the project is expressed and its real purpose more or less disguised, it is palpable that the movement is in reality a vice crusade in the upper circles of the city's social system, in contradistinction to the numerous reforms started for the alleviation of the poorer classes.

That the clergy feel gaming has grown to an alarming rate among their flocks and that the duties of their office compel them to take prompt measure to eradicate the evil is frankly admitted, but that it is in the nature of a crusade—the term is too harsh, and no one cares to acknowledge it.

Quite a little stir has been caused by a case that happened only a few days since in which two students of Yale had been invited to New York to spend a few days with friends. While here they were induced to take part in games of chance that were played on several evenings when friends of the family were invited to meet the young men.

One of the students lost $900, while the other lost $300. They were actually financially stripped in the houses of the very persons who posed as their friends. They were left with so little money that they were obliged to ask their hosts to lend them sufficient with which to return to New Haven.

Austrian Visit of the Crown Prince.

VIENNA, April 15.—Crown Prince Frederick William of Germany arrived in Vienna yesterday in acceptance of an invitation from Emperor Joseph, who, with the Austrian archdukes, greeted him at the railway station. A large and enthusiastic concourse awaited his arrival. Subsequently the emperor received the crown prince in private audience and later returned his visit. During the afternoon and amid popular demonstrations of the most friendly character the crown prince drove to the Capuchin mausoleum, where on behalf of Emperor William he deposited wreaths on the tombs of Empress Elizabeth, Crown Prince Rudolph and Archduke Albrecht. At 5 o'clock a state banquet in his honor was given at the Hofburg, attended by the members of the imperial house, the ministers and the members of the diplomatic corps. A reception followed, and then all attended a gala performance at the opera.

Brave Boy Prevents Robbery.

ASHBURNHAM, Mass., April 15.—Meager reports of a bold attempt at robbery were received here yesterday afternoon, and the town officers are now investigating. Yesterday afternoon a masked man called at the farmhouse of Mr. McCushing, about three miles from the town, where only a 14-year-old boy was present at the time. The stranger, with a revolver in his hand, told the boy that he wanted money, but his demand was refused, whereupon he pushed his way into the house. The boy seized a double barreled shotgun and shot the man in the right arm, knocking the revolver from his grasp. The man picked up the weapon with his left hand and fired at the lad, the bullet, however, going wide of its mark, and then made a hasty departure without securing any money

Ashley Strikers Displeased.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., April 15.—A meeting of the representatives of the trainmen and telegraphers employed on the northern division of the Central Railroad of New Jersey was held at Ashley last night. It is said there was considerable dissatisfaction expressed over the terms of settlement of the threatened strike by the conference in New York. The brakemen and telegraphers feel that their interests have been sacrificed for the benefit of some of the other employees, the engineers in particular. Unless the telegraphers receive some concessions from the railroad officials this week the leaders say there will be a strike, in which they claim they will be joined by the brakemen.

Catholic Church Dedicated.

TOLEDO, O., April 15.—Archbishop Ireland of St. Paul, assisted by Bishop Horstmann of Cleveland, Bishop Foley of Detroit and about 200 prominent Catholic clergymen from all parts of the United States, yesterday dedicated St. Patrick's church, said to be one of the handsomest church buildings in the country. This church will stand as a monument to Father Edward Hannin, who, though 75 years of age, did the architectural work, superintended the entire construction and even staked off the ground. There was no other architect or boss on the structure. The structure is Gothic in style, but is said to be of a design never before attempted in architecture.

Tobin Shot His Wife.

NEW YORK, April 15.—James Tobin of Morristown, N. J., shot his wife yesterday. He claims it was accidental. She says it was not. The couple have frequently separated and as many times become reconciled. He called on her yesterday, and they went out walking. She says he directed her attention to something and when her back was turned fired two shots at her. One struck her on the right and the other on the left side of the neck. It is thought the wounds will prove fatal. Tobin made no effort to escape.

Unique Plan Proposed by a Japanese Merchant.

RAILROADS ARE URGENTLY NEEDED.

Let Powers Agree Upon Indemnity and Then Use Entire Amount In Building Railways Throughout the Celestial Empire.

NEW YORK, April 15.—H. T. Bosman of Hongkong, accompanied by his wife and servants, is in the city. At home Mr. Bosman is better known as Mr. Ho Tung, and he is one of the leading merchants of his native city as well as one of its most extensive property owners. Mr. Bosman, though an oriental, is a British subject and a justice of the peace in his majesty's service, being a resident of Hongkong, a British port.

Mr. Bosman is deeply interested in the trend of events politically in the far east. To a reporter in an interview he said:

"I believe that this is the golden opportunity for the introduction of western ideas into the Middle Kingdom and that the apparent disagreement of the powers on the amount of indemnity to be paid for the Boxer disturbances should lead to some sort of compromise having for its object the development of undeveloped Asia rather than the levying of a mere monetary fine which could be raised by additional taxation and in the end perhaps leave the real situation of the country unchanged. I have a plan in my own mind which I think is worthy of the attention of the diplomats, because I believe it would be a civilizing influence. It is this:

"Let the powers agree upon the amount of indemnity to be paid and then contract among themselves and with the Peking government that the entire sum, say $200,000,000, shall be used for building railroads and for other internal improvements in China under the joint control of the powers, to be operated by them until the full amount of the investment is returned and until China is in a position to become by purchase the sole owner of the improvements.

"Railroads will do more to enlarge the perspective of the Chinese than any other one agency. They will cause the people of the interior to travel and to acquire that breadth of view which comes from contact with the world. Now, China is in great need of railroads, while the rest of the world is clamoring for broader trade facilities. The situation seems to have been created for reciprocal negotiations along a certain line.

"Railroads could be built by the powers on the basis of a 3 or 4 per cent cumulative interest bearing indemnity bond until the claims of all the powers are paid. In after years a chance could be given to China to acquire the properties out of the net earnings after the indemnity had been provided for. Any surplus—and I believe there would be a surplus—could be used to develop more railroads. By that time the Chinese problem would have been solved.

"I honestly believe that the method outlined is the only one that will insure the empire the internal improvements so much desired by western powers within a reasonable time. It would do away with the effort of private parties or independent governments, like Russia, for instance, to secure concessions."

Roosevelt to Take Degree.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., April 15.—Vice President Theodore Roosevelt will take his second degree in Masonry in the rooms of Mattinnecock lodge, in this village, Wednesday night. Previous to his inauguration as vice president he took the first degree, upon which occasion more than 1,000 Masons from lodges within a radius of 100 miles of Greater New York sought to obtain access to the lodgeroom, which will probably hold about 400 persons. This time the attendance will be limited to a certain number, and admission will be by ticket only, and these tickets will not be transferable.

Opening of Racing Season.

NEW YORK, April 15.—The racing season in the metropolitan district opened today and will last until the snow flies. The occasion will be the spring meeting of the Queens County Jockey club at the Aqueduct track, and there is every prospect of a successful season. The Washington meeting brought together some of the moderate class of horses, and the Aqueduct season bids fair to have more and better animals to compete for the purses, as many will be tried out there for the richer fixtures at the big tracks.

Liberal Offer to Methodists.

NEW YORK, April 15.—A prospective gift of $50,000 was made at the New York conference of the Methodist Episcopal church in Yonkers. John A. Andrus, a millionaire of that place, made the offer during the reading of his report as treasurer of the fund for the relief of superannuated ministers. Mr. Andrus said the fund needed building up and offered to give a dollar for every two raised by the conference up to $100,000.

Colliery Firemen Strike.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., April 15.—The day and night firemen at Big Mountain colliery have gone on strike for an increase of $1 per week. The Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron company, which owns the mine, could not get men to take the places of the strikers, and in order to keep the slopes from flooding the bosses had to keep up steam in the boilers to operate the pumps.

A Packing House Project.

CHICAGO, April 15.—It is said that the Chicago packing house industries may invade the British northwest. Representatives of the Cudahy companies are said to be negotiating for territorial concessions in return for the establishment of a modern packing plant at Calgary, a town 800 miles west of Winnipeg, in the province of Alberta.

Attempt to Burn a Convent.

MADRID, April 15.—Dispatches from Lisbon announce that an attempt was made to destroy by fire the Jesuit convent at Aveiro, Portugal, but the flames were extinguished by the police. The incendiaries have not been discovered.

Genoa Dockers to Strike.

GENOA, April 15.—At a meeting of the dock laborers here a general strike was decided upon. This will have the effect of delaying many steamers.

KWANG SU WARNED.

Chinese Emperor's Presence In Peking a Necessity.

LARGE FORCE NEEDED IN MANCHURIA

Integrity of the Empire Demands Speedy Action—The Mongolian Rebellion Not Regarded as a Serious Matter.

PEKING, April 15.—Komoura Yutaro, the Japanese minister, accompanied by General Yamaguchi, the Japanese commander, recently called upon Prince Ching and notified him that the return of Emperor Kwang Su to Peking was urgently desired. Prince Ching was informed that the emperor's wishes would be respected by the foreign troops and that every courtesy would be shown him.

It was pointed out to the Chinese plenipotentiary that the emperor's return was of the highest possible importance as affecting the maintenance of the integrity of the Chinese empire and that he should come accompanied by every available soldier, by at least 20,000 men if possible. These troops, it was further contended by the Japanese minister, must be sent into Manchuria, as the Russians reported great disturbances there, and it was not right that the task of quelling the trouble should be thrown upon the shoulders of one nation.

Finally Prince Ching was assured that if the 20,000 Chinese troops could not suppress the disorders in Manchuria other powers would send an international force to co-operate with China, which all the powers regard as a friendly power.

No reply having been received to this communication, Li Hung Chang was notified to the same effect and told that Emperor Kwang Su must give an immediate answer.

The preparations which the Japanese here are making for an early start indicate that they still expect war between Russia and Japan. Vessels arriving at Taku from Nagasaki report the mobilization of the Japanese fleet and the continuance of preparations on board ship for the anticipated struggle.

Prince Ching says all his reports go to show that the missionary statements regarding a rebellion in Mongolia are not supported by the facts. Neither does he believe that the rebellion of General Tung Fu Siang amounts to much.

"It is the object of certain elements," he asserts, "to make it seem that China is in a condition of constant broil, rendering it unsafe for the foreign troops to be withdrawn. Those who have this in view will magnify a village quarrel into a big rebellion. The missionaries, naturally timid, take these reports in good faith."

What the Powers Ask of China.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—Mr. Rockhill, the United States special commissioner to China, has sent to the state department a revised statement of the claims thus far filed by the powers against the Chinese government. The aggregate of the claims is lower than the first report, being under $400,000,000, but the authorities regard this as exorbitant and will endeavor to cut it in half. Mr. Rockhill's information shows that the claims of the powers to date are about as follows: Russia, $90,000,000; Germany, $70,000,000; France, $40,000,000; Japan, $30,000,000; United States, $25,000,000; Great Britain, $24,000,000; Belgium, $5,790,000; Italy, Austria and Spain, $30,000,000. Some of the powers have not itemized their claims, and Mr. Rockhill's figures are only in the nature of rough estimates. It would not be surprising therefore should the claims amount to more than stated above.

A Youthful Culprit.

UTICA, N. Y., April 15.—Chester Arthur Lisle, 17 years of age, is in Utica jail, charged with using the mails for fraudulent and blackmailing purposes. He sent letters to ex-Mayor Charles A. Doolittle and Thomas F. and William T. Baker, the two latter publishers of the Utica Saturday Globe, to the effect that unless they deposited certain sums, varying from $200 to $500, in a certain place that the writer would disfigure and even kill the daughters of the families and others. The arrest was made through the Pinkerton men, and the boy has made a complete confession, implicating others whose arrest will follow.

Emperor Joseph's Gracious Act.

VIENNA, April 15.—Emperor Francis Joseph has fulfilled a long cherished desire of the Czech population of Bohemi, by ordering the establishment at Prague of a modern national art gallery, toward the foundation of which he has himself donated 2,000,000 crowns. In a letter announcing the fact his majesty expresses a hope that he may succeed in establishing peace in the land through the "conciliating powers of art." He has also created eight new peers, all men of letters or representatives of the learned and artistic professions.

Cowan Dismissed.

DENVER, April 15.—Albert S. Cowan, who was arrested on Feb. 25 last on a charge of murder, which was subsequently dismissed for lack of sufficient evidence to justify his indictment, has been released from custody, a jury before which he was tried on a charge of insanity having decided that he was not so distracted in his mind as to endanger his own life and property or the lives and property of others.

Obnoxious Portraits Withdrawn.

A BRUTAL MURDER.

Body of Maine Woodsman Found. Robbery the Motive.

GREENVILLE JUNCTION, Me., April 15.—The finding of the body of Woodsman Mathison Pare at Askwith has revealed a most brutal murder, with robbery as the motive. The victim, a man of 21, had worked during the winter months on Moosehead lake, and on March 8, when he had finished his winter's work, he received his wages, amounting to $108. On the morning of March 11 he started to walk to Askwith station, some eight miles, to take the train for his home in St. Benoit, Canada.

About 10 a. m. he reached the camp of Percy Johnson, and it was when he departed for the station that he was last seen alive. No tidings as to his whereabouts were learned until Thursday last, when his lifeless, mutilated body was found by a party of woodcutters near the road to Askwith, about half a mile from Johnson's camp. The body, which was frozen stiff, lay in the snow, and the man had evidently been shot by a rifle ball striking him in the face.

There were indications that a struggle took place and that the rifle wound had not proved fatal, as there were knife cuts on the face and neck. The right side of the head was terribly crushed, as if from a blow with the butt end of the rifle.

His money and a valise filled with clothes were missing, which lends to the belief that robbery was the motive for the murder.

County Attorney Gower says that no expense will be spared to discover the murderer.

AMERICA PLEASED HIM.

Mr. Frederic Harrison Says Pleasant Words About Us.

LONDON, April 15.—The Daily Mail publishes an interview with Mr. Frederic Harrison, president of the London positivist committee, regarding his recent visit to the United States, in which he repeats in part his interview of Thursday last.

"I was deeply impressed," said Mr. Harrison to The Daily Mail's representative, "by my American trip. I found a clear intellectual atmosphere, a broad tolerance and a universal hospitality which delighted me. I was much struck with the evidence of deep thinking exhibited by students in the American universities.

"I visited many cities, but nowhere did I see a sign or hear a hint of animosity toward England."

Mr. Harrison expressed the opinion that it was advisable for England to pay less attention to foreign affairs and more to her energetic commercial and industrial competitors in the United States.

Commission Warmly Welcomed.

CAPIZ, Philippine Islands, April 15.—The people of this section of Panay flocked to Capiz yesterday on foot and in carriages to meet the members of the United States Philippine commission and to attend the explanation of the principles upon which provincial government is to be established here today. Thousands were present at the meeting held in the theater. Representatives of the natives asserted that the Federalist movement, combined with the liberality of the laws being enacted by the commission, had caused the recent rapid pacification in the northern part of the island. The province of Capiz has suffered greatly from war, rinderpest and locust plagues, and popular sentiment is unanimously in favor of peace and civil government.

For Guam and Manila.

VALLEJO, Cal., April 15.—The naval transport Solace will sail tomorrow for Guam and Manila, carrying a large cargo of provisions, clothing and stores. There is on board a quantity of machinery, including a large Corliss engine, several huge boilers and shaftings and two 35 foot flywheels which add 30,000 pounds to her weight. These will be taken to Manila. For Guam there is a large quantity of provisions and clothing and 500 good sized orange trees. Fifty officers will go on the ship as passengers. A number of them will be accompanied by their wives. The Solace is weighted down with old guns and chains, taken along as ballast for the return trip. A large draft of sailors will arrive from the east today to take passage on the Solace.

New German Submarine Boat.

BERLIN, April 15.—The German authorities have been making extensive trials and experiments since March 1 near Lindau, on the Lake of Constance, with a new type of submarine torpedo boat. The inventor, who is a civil engineer named Gurt of the navy department, preserves silence concerning the result of the experiments, but it has been ascertained that the tests have so far been successful. The boat dives for a short time to a depth of 300 feet.

Wellman to Visit Us.

LONDON, April 15.—Mr. Walter Wellman sailed for New York from Southampton on board the American line steamer St. Louis, after a visit to Norway, where he inspected the steamer Magdalena, now being refitted at the yards where Dr. Nansen's ship, the Fram, was built. NEW YORK LEGISLATURE.

Seven Days Only Remain to Finish Much Important Business.

ALBANY, April 15.—There are but seven more legislative days remaining of the session of 1901. Within this space of time the Republican leaders have planned to repass the Greater New York charter revision bill over Mayor Van Wyck's veto and to also pass the $26,000,000 canal expenditure proposition bill, the Stranahan mortgage tax bill, the state printing reform bill and a supplementary tenement house reform bill. In addition there are about 100 minor measures which it is likely will be allowed to creep through.

It is stated on reliable authority that but two amendments will be made to the New York city charter revision bill, and these will be introduced tonight. One will strike out the school section of the bill which gives authority to the board of estimate to apportion money to private schools. The other section to be stricken out is the one making compulsory the payment of $20,000 to each of eight newspapers for printing city advertising in the boroughs of Queens, Richmond and the Bronx.

The canal question is the most important one remaining to be settled. Party lines are broken down altogether, and it is a matter of what part of the state a legislator hails from rather than what his politics are. The canal county men and the New York city Democrats can poll enough votes to pass the bill without much doubt. The preliminary skirmishes on the question have revealed that in the senate the Republicans are about evenly divided on the proposition. In the assembly the anticanal Republicans outnumber their adversaries about one-third. The New York city Democratic canal vote, however, is expected to more than counterbalance this superiority.

The New York state grange is a powerful factor in the fight. Even in the canal counties, so called, there is a large farming element, and this tends to keep the legislator representing such district on the ragged edge of uncertainty as to which way he should lean on this great question.

For the Oriental Trade.

SEATTLE, Wash., April 15.—Lyman C. Smith, the millionaire typewriter manufacturer of Syracuse, is the head of a syndicate of eastern capitalists which has purchased a number of steamships on the Atlantic coast to be used in the orient and Pacific coast trade. Seattle will be the home port. The syndicate proposes to build in its own shipyards in this city a number of sailing vessels suitable for the lumber trade of the Pacific coast and China, the Hawaiian Islands and Australia. In the enterprise $1,000,000, it is stated, will be immediately invested and enough additional capital placed to insure the success of the syndicate's operations on a large scale.

Armor Plant Nearly Done.

PHILADELPHIA, April 15.—An immense armor plate plant is now nearing completion at Eddystone, 13 miles from this city. This plant, which is practically an extension of Krupp's German gun works, is known as the Gruson Iron works and will manufacture the coast defenses known as Gruson rotating turrets. P. H. Griffin of Buffalo is president of the new concern and has made the manufacture of chilled steel his life study. He has three other factories in the United States, two in Canada and six in Europe.

General Butterfield Ill.

NEW YORK, April 15.—General Daniel Butterfield, one of the most distinguished surviving officers of the civil war, is lying dangerously ill at his home in this city. He is suffering from a recurrence of the illness which prostrated him in the summer of 1899. General Butterfield has been in Miami, Fla., for about two months, hoping to benefit from the climate. On his return he was prostrated, and his physician, Dr. Frederick A. Castle, found him attacked by paralytic symptoms.

A Conference on Taxation.

CHICAGO, April 15.—The governors of the various states are beginning to announce their appointments of delegates to attend the conference on taxation called to meet at Buffalo May 23 and 24 by the National Civil federation. At the headquarters in Chicago notice of the appointment of the delegates has been received from Governor Dockery of Missouri, Governor Hill of Maine, Governor Longino of Mississippi and Governor Toole of Montana.

Noted Author Dead.

OMAHA, April 15.—Colonel John R. Musick, author, journalist and politician, died of heart failure at his apartments in this city yesterday. Injuries received while rescuing the injured after a cyclone at Kirksville, Mo., were causes which led to his death. Colonel Musick devoted a greater part of his life to writing historical stories for young people. He was for many years a member of the Republican state central committee for the state of Missouri.

Westminster Abbey Pillar Falls.

LONDON, April 15.—Some alarm has been caused by the fall of an 18 foot pillar in Westminster abbey. The pillar stood in the side chapel, northeast of the chancel. It fell with a tremendous crash, was shattered into small pieces and damaged the tomb of Lord Norris. Investigation showed that a similar column in the same chapel was very unsafe. Steps have been taken to assure stability.

To Aid Russian Students.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 15.—The Official Messenger contains the announcement that, in consequence of the closing of the high schools owing to the student disorders, it has been decided that lectures shall be resumed forthwith and be continued if necessary through the summer vacation, extra examinations being held to enable the students to make up for lost time.

To Resume Teaching.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., April 15.—The Rev. L. R. Long, who four years ago resigned the principalship of the Union school at Hancock to enter the Methodist ministry, has now decided to resume his former profession and has accepted the principalship of the schools of Walden.

A Mexican Concession.

CITY OF MEXICO, April 19.—The government has granted a concession to Captain Charles Shillaber of Chicago to open a waterway between the cities of Tampico and Tuxpan, on the gulf coast, for a distance of 125 miles and establish a line of steamboats from those cities

REFORM ATTEMPTED

Second Class Mail Matter Abuses Need Attention.

PLAN TO KILL THE PREMIUM BUSINESS

The Postoffice Department Now Sustains an Annual Loss of From Fifteen to Twenty-five Millions.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—Having repeatedly failed to secure remedial legislation from congress to prevent abuses of the privileges of second class mail matter, the postoffice department officials have under consideration the question of the adoption of a proposed rule by authority of the postmaster general to bring about the desired reforms. With this object in view Mr. Edwin C. Madden, third assistant postmaster general, has addressed a long circular letter to about 400 publishers of newspapers and periodicals setting forth the objects sought to be accomplished by the proposed rule and asking the following question:

"In the judgment of those addressed, will a departmental rule be regarded as injurious to legitimate newspapers and periodicals which will stop absolutely all premium inducements, direct or indirect, and of whatever character for subscriptions—in other words, after a publisher has fixed a price on his publication, any bonus or premium given to the subscriber or any combination with another thing except a second class publication shall vitiate that subscription in its relation to the second class rates of postage?"

Mr. Madden adds: "It is believed that such a rule as that proposed will be of great direct benefit to legitimate journalism and that in a very large measure it will check this draft upon the public treasury for private advantage, with no compensating public benefit, through the elimination of an immense number of publications which are wholly sustained in their second class status by patronage induced by some extraneous thing in conflict with the spirit of the law. Such a consummation has much of promise in the direction of better postal facilities and cheaper rates for other classes of mail matter."

The circular asserts that the loss of revenue to the government from the abuses of the privileges of second class matter is enormous, being estimated conservatively at between $15,000,000 and $25,000,000 a year. Existing regulations, however, faithfully administered, are inadequate to accomplish material reform, and the most prolific means by which the law is circumvented remain undisturbed by regulation.

Of the many means by which publications not properly entitled to this favored postage rate spring into existence and thrive, no other, it is asserted by Mr. Madden, is so fruitful and so insidious as the permission, not of law or rule, but of uninterrupted practice, that subscriptions may be obtained by offers of premiums of merchandise, chances to draw prizes in guessing contests and countless ingenious schemes of kindred character and effect. Circulations running into the thousands and into the millions, the circular says, have been built up by this premium process for publications which upon actual merit could command no public patronage whatever. Such "subscriptions" except in an occasional instance, where some actually meritorious publication employs the plan, represent in no literal sense a public interest in the literature or in the news to which it is claimed such publications are devoted.

Mr. Madden asks that the matter be given prompt attention and says that the reform proposed can scarcely be carried on successfully without the aid and moral support of the standard newspapers and periodicals of the country.

Mrs. Nation Arrested.

KANSAS CITY, April 15.—Mrs. Carrie Nation was arrested in this city last night on the charge of obstructing the street and taken to the police station in a patrol wagon. She was released on a cash bond of $6 and will be tried in the police court today. Mrs. Nation lectured in Kansas City, Kan., Saturday night and came over to the Missouri side in the morning. She started on a tour of investigation among the down town saloons. A crowd of 1,000 men and boys followed her until at Twelfth and Walnut streets she was arrested because the crowd following her blocked the street. She severely lectured the saloon men whom she visited.

A Kentucky Feud.

MAYKING, Ky., April 15.—Later advices from the feud troubles at Boones Fork are that Deputy Sheriff John H. Elkins of Whitesburg, who was on Wright's side, was shot twice, once in each shoulder. Creed Potter, with John Reynolds, was shot twice across the back—only slight flesh wounds. John Reynolds is believed to be shot fatally. Twenty more from the Potters and Bentleys have joined the Reynolds faction. A dozen armed men guard the house where John Reynolds is being nursed. The others occupy positions for picket duty. The Wrights received over a dozen armed recruits yesterday.

Lost Gun Found.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—The 13 inch gun which was shipped from the Washington navy yard a week ago and which was thought to have been lost on the way is safe from harm at the navy yard in this city. Admiral O'Neil, chief of the ordnance bureau, said that some mishap occurred to the car on which the gun was shipped, and it was brought back to the navy yard, that being the only place where the gun could be handled properly in transferring it to another car. This was done yesterday, and the gun, which is intended for the battleship Kearsarge, will be shipped to Brooklyn.

Planning a Mammoth Stock Farm.

BISBEE, A. T., April 15.—William Greene, a millionaire mine owner, has purchased of the Perrin Land and Cattle company the San Ignacio de Babocomari land grant of 35,000 acres, situated in the southwestern part of Cochise county and eastern part of Santa Cruz county. Mr. Greene is negotiating for more land in the same vicinity with a view of establishing one of the largest stock farms in the country.

Korea to Build Fortresses.

LONDON, April 15.—The government of Korea, according to a dispatch to The Daily Mail from St. Petersburg, has decided to build 32 coast fortresses to resist a possible Japanese invasion.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., APRIL 15, 1901.

The Spring Vacation.

The spring vacation in the public schools of the city ended this morning when the children returned to their work after nine days vacation. With the exception of a day's holiday on Memorial Day, the sessions of the public schools in Plainfield will now continue without a break until commencement time in June.

The vacation, which is just passed, is the usual spring holiday. For many years it came during the first week in April so that the families who moved from one residence to another at the opening of April might have the advantage of having their children at home during that period. It was believed that otherwise the attendance at the schools would suffer during "moving week." For the last two years, a change has been made and the spring vacation has been held during Easter week. The change was made so that the spring vacations of the children and their teachers would conform with the spring vacations of most of the other schools through the country. This change has proved generally satisfactory and the attendance at the public schools during the first week in April has not fallen off any appreciable extent.

A change was made in the spring vacation at the borough schools this year. Instead of being held Easter week, the vacation in North Plainfield did not begin until Friday and will last all this week until Monday, April 22. This arrangement was made by the Board of Education of North Plainfield to enable a number of the teachers to take advantage of an excursion to Washington scheduled for this week.

Most of the colleges and universities gave their spring vacation so as to include most or all of Easter week. The result was that the crowd of young people in this city, who are students at these higher institutions of learning, gathered here last week. Most of them have now returned to their studies and city and borough are quieting down after a week of unusual activity.

The association football season in Plainfield has closed. It has been an entirely new game to Plainfield, but it has already achieved much popularity here. The game is dear to the hearts of the Scotch and Englishmen and they have taken an active part in advancing it. To those to whom the game was entirely new, it proved to be very interesting and large crowds have been attracted to the games which have been played here during the winter. The management of the local team has been particularly fortunate in securing some of the best teams in the State to play here, and the showing made by the Plainfield Club has been good. Another winter will probably see the sport high in popular favor if the Plainfield Athletic Association will continue to give such excellent exhibitions of the game as have been witnessed this winter.

The mention of the name of Hon. Alvah A. Clark, of Somerville, as a possible candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, will probably evoke another tirade of abuse against that well-known Democrat from certain of the Democratic newspapers in this and adjacent States. When Mr. Clark was selected as the minority candidate for the United States Senatorial nomination in the New Jersey Legislature, there came a wild howl of opposition from many quarters. If the Democratic party is going to attempt to win in the election in New Jersey next fall, harmony in the ranks of that party will be an all-important requisite. Some of the Democrats of the State want to remember that before they say unpleasant things about their fellow Democrats.

There is not a resident of city or borough who does not breathe a sigh of relief now that there is little or no prospect of trouble between the Jersey Central Railroad and its employes. A strike on that railroad would be a serious thing for Plainfield which is not on the line of any other railroad. While the Pennsylvania and the Lehigh Valley Railroads may be reached by trolley, a tie up on the Central would inconvenience many. There are sensible men among the railway officials and the employes and they have luckily prevailed in the counsels so that the possibility of a strike is growing more and more remote each day.

The head of the Heffley School, in Brooklyn, credits the large attendance enjoyed by his institution to liberal advertising, chiefly in the newspapers, relates the Philadelphia Record. He says he finds it profitable to advertise in the local press all the year 'round. Even well known schools need to remind the public that they are awake and enterprising, and there is no medium that can compare with the first-class newspaper for this purpose.

From every large city in the State are coming reports concerning burglaries more or less successful. Plainfield is not alone in suffering from depredations of that character. In fact, Plainfield has been far more fortunate in that direction than most of its neighbors. Newark and the Oranges, with all the efficiency of their police forces, have suffered greatly.

While good water meters are expensive, there is no doubt that a general demand for them on the part of the people of Plainfield and North Plainfield would cause the Plainfield Water Supply Company to put them in wherever desired, and so allow the patrons of that company to pay according to the amount of water they use instead of on the present unequitable arrangement.

It is to be hoped that the attempt to form a local syndicate to purchase and rebuild Music Hall will be successful and that Plainfield will not be deprived of its only theatre. There is no doubt but that a successful theatre has a good effect on the trade of the local merchants.

While there are comparatively few Plainfielders who were at all affected by the closing of the Plank road which connects Newark with Jersey City, all will be glad to learn that that thoroughfare will probably be opened to the public again in about two weeks.

Unusual interest in local baseball is already manifest. The game promises to be very popular in Plainfield this summer.

The citizens of North Plainfield will be obliged to pay $3 a year for the privilege of keeping a dog. Mayor Smalley says there are too many curs in the borough, and he proposes to thin them out. If the owners do not pay the fee there will be trouble.—Somerville Unionist Gazette.

The action of the Plainfield Street Railway Company, in refusing to wait for a Middlesex and Somerset car at Dunellen terminus, even though the car may be in plain sight, shows a disregard of the rights and conveniences of the public that should meet with the severest condemnation. The Plainfield company, under both the old and present managements, has displayed a mean and petty spirit that has caused no end of annoyance and inconvenience to the people who are compelled to support their road. There should be some effort made by the township or borough authorities to find out where the trouble lies and compel a remedy of it.—New Brunswick Times.

TEA TABLE TALK.

Short and Cossipy Sketches That Are Not Always News, But Just as Interesting.

The announcement of new publications by Houghton, Mifflin & Company, is full of promise of good things as a spring announcement should be. Among the attractions offered is "The Autobiography of a Journalist," in two volumes, with this comment on the writer: "Mr. Stillman is one of the most picturesque characters of the present day, and his interesting career reaches back to an earlier generation." His story covers his childhood; his years as a student at Union College when the wise Dr. Nott was its president; his study of art in America and in Europe; his editorship of The Crayon, which brought him into contact with Bryant, Lowell, Norton and others who have become famous; his English experiences with Ruskin, Watt, the Rossettis, and others; the Adirondack camping party which he engineered, and which included among others Emerson, Agassiz Judge Hoar, Lowell and John Holmes; his terms of service as United States Consul at Rome and in Crete; his experiences in Herzegovina, Montenegro and Greece, while correspondent of the London Times, and later in Rome. Mr. Stillman is a brother of the late Dr. Charles E. Stillman, of this place, and an uncle of Mrs. J. Kirtland Myers, of East Seventh street, and Wm. M. Stillman, the well-known lawyer, of West Seventh street.

AT THE THEATRES.

Something About the Attractions Which Plainfield Theatre-Goers May Care to Witness.

"Down on the Farm," the new musical rural comedy drama, will have its first presentation at Music Hall tonight, and from all accounts it will be a performance well worth seeing. It comes with a good reputation of cleanliness and wholesomeness, and is ranked with the latest rural plays such as "The Dairy Farm," "Way Down East" and "Old Homestead." It abounds in many startling situations and climaxes, with lots of fun and musical specialties, all of which are cleverly rendered by competent people, while the principal characters are in the hands of specially selected actors and actresses. Charles Manley, who appears in the principal role of Seth Huckins, the honest old farmer, is an actor of reputation and experience, and his entire support is good. The "Hayseed Quartette," the "Squashtown Brass Band" and the "Pumpkin Orchestra," are great features, and there will be an open air concert in front of the theatre tonight, an hour before the beginning of the evening's performance.

"The Denver Express," to be presented at Music Hall, Wednesday night, has been held by the Holden Bros. from its first writing and has been added to and improved by this firm of theatrical managers, until it stands today a recognized factor in the theatrical world, and is a welcome attraction at any theatre. It possesses elements of amusements which are calculated to please all classes from the boy in the gallery who yells over the beautiful scenic effects and thrilling massacre of the Indians near Yorkes, Colorada, to the fashionable occupants of the parquet. The special scenery and the costuming are said to be far above the usual run.

* * * * * *

The melo-dramatic comedy of "Nip and Tuck," the rival detective firm, will be presented by Harry Webber and a fine supporting company next Saturday, April 20, matinee and night. This play has won universal commendation both in America and abroad. It is of the "Sherlock Holmes" type and fairly bristles with interest and fun. The scenes alternate between tragedy and comedy, with surprising effect, and the powerful story moves swiftly to the climaxes. There is not a dull moment, and the effects produced are so natural that the auditor forgets he is beholding a stage play and becomes absorbed in the manifold adventures and schemes of the principal characters.

* * * * * *

As before announced, "Mique" Muldowney, general all round assistant to Manager Mazo Edwards, will have a benefit at Music Hall Tuesday, April 30, and desirous of pleasing all classes of friends, has selected the most popular, "fresh and ever green," moral and edifying play in existence—"Uncle Tom's Cabin"—for the occasion. The version to be presented is the Webber version, the same now being played by Wm. A. Brady's company at the New York Academy of Music and it will be a great performance—a gala event. There will be two shows, one in the afternoon at 3:15 o'clock to accommodate school children and women, and the other at the usual hour at night. Reserved seat tickets for either performance can now be obtained at box office.

SALE OF SWEETMEATS.

Given by Class of Grace M. E. Sunday School at Home of Dr. H. K. Carroll.

A sale of sweetmeats were held Saturday evening by Mrs. Annie Most's Sunday school class of Grace M. E. church, at the home of Dr. H. K. Carroll on Westervelt avenue.

The object of the sale was to raise a sufficient fund to cover the amount promised by the class towards the liquidation of the church's indebtedness, and judging by the patronage at the sale the plan adopted by the class was eminently successful.

A pleasant feature of the affair was the musical programme rendered. Some contralto solos sung by Miss Alice Carroll and a number of selections on the banjo by Dykeman Winkler well received and prompted more or less encores.

Those assisting Mrs. Most in conducting the several sales were: Candy table, the Misses Winifred Carroll, Clyde Slater, Mabel Stevens and Hattie Smith. Cake table, the Misses Eva Doeringer, Sadie Winkler and Ethel Forbes. Ice cream table, the Misses Lavina, Viola and Grace Linbarger.

Fred Sears, of Clinton avenue, is visiting at Norwich, Conn., for a time.

KEEPS HIS PROMISE.

The Peculiar Case of Jonathan Reed, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Told His Wife on Her Deathbed She Should Never Be Buried Out of His Sight and Now Lives in Her Tomb.

Among the features of Evergreens cemetery, Brooklyn, there is none that has caused more comment than the Jonathan Reed tomb. It contains the body of Mary E. Reed, who died in March, 1893, and is also the home of Jonathan Reed, who was her husband. They had been married 35 years when Mrs. Reed died. On her deathbed Reed promised his wife that she should never be buried out of his sight, but that he would have her body where he could see it. This promise he has carried out. The metallic coffin which contains the body has been so placed that he can see the face at will.

The handsome tomb was built soon after the death of Mrs. Reed, and was arranged to accommodate only two coffins. The one containing the body stands at the right as one enters the tomb, and on the left is an empty coffin of the same pattern resting on marble slabs. The interior of the tomb is arranged with a view to making it "cosey and homelike." The walls are decorated with the handiwork of the dead woman, pictures, bric-a-brac, etc. The floor is covered with rugs, and the exterior is tastefully decorated with growing plants in costly vases. In speaking of the man who reared the tomb and who occupies it most of the time, a man who knows him said to a New York Times reporter:

"There is considerable misapprehension regarding the motives that induced him to take up his present residence. The casual observer would suppose that he is possessed of a peculiar state of mind bordering on insanity, though one has only to engage in conversation with him for a few moments, when the fact of his sanity will be established in the mind of the visitor.

JONATHAN REED
(At the Door of His Wife's Tomb in a Brooklyn Cemetery.)

He believes religious sentiment to be the result of geographical chance in the matter of birth, and that the crank is the man who breaks loose from the ironbound dogmas of his brothers, and had it not been for the cranks the human race would have remained aborigines. He does not deny his unbelief in a future state, but says: 'If there is a life beyond the grave it will be all right, but I shall make the best of this life, and be with my wife while I can. He thinks the only difference between him and his wife is that the spark has simply gone out of her body, and that she is only sleeping or in a torpid condition. He does not think that God calls anyone from this life, but that death is simply an act of nature, and that he cannot accuse God of being a murderer.'

"Mr. Reed possesses a sense of humor that will save a man from becoming despondent. He laughs like a man who lives amid scenes of mirth, instead of one who spends most of his time in and about a tomb. His memory is as extraordinary as his life. He takes pleasure in relating the experiences of his past life, the humorous as well as the sad side of it, and his manner of expression makes it the more interesting He lives as he does because he enjoys it, and, possessing his theories of life, he could enjoy nothing else. To be separated from the one whom he loved would make him most miserable and wretched."

A picture of his wife hangs on the door of the tomb, and under this the following inscription has been placed:

"Let those who seek not knowledge pass by this tomb, and those who fail to learn the secret of life in death depart.—Reed."

VICTIM OF ALCOHOL.

Booth, Slayer of Lincoln, Was a Confirmed Dipsomaniac.

His Great Crime the Most Potent Temperance Lecture That Has Been Written in the History of Our Nation.

[Special Washington Letter.]

IN THE house of representatives there is not a man to-day who was a member of that body when Abraham Lincoln was assassinated. Senator Stewart, of Nevada, now a member of the senate, was a senator on that occasion, and he is the only senator now serving there who was a senator when Booth's crime was committed. There is a man now in the senate who was a member of the house at that time—Senator Allison, of Iowa.

Recently there have been published in many daily newspapers stories and allegations concerning the disposal of the body of the assassin; some writers saying that Booth's body was never shown to the public, because the officials doubted whether it was indeed Booth who had been killed. The writer found in Louis Dietrich, an elderly gentleman who resided in this city for half a century, a man who refutes these stories. He said:

"I have seen such stories, too, as though the writers believed the nonsense about which they write. But I can tell you that I was one of the very few who actually did see and touch the dead body of the murderer. I knew Mr. Lincoln and I knew the man who slew him. Booth was better known in Washington than Lincoln. I mean, of course, known to the general public. The president was seen on some occasions, and his pictures were seen everywhere, but the people did not often see him. But Booth was seen on the stage of Ford's theater and upon the public streets.

He was usually in some barroom, for he was a hard drinker, almost a dipsomaniac; and if it had not been for the excessive use of brandy he might not have been able to nerve himself to do the dastardly deed, which he hoped would make him famous, but which only made him infamous. He was almost as eccentric as his father, who was in many respects a crazy man. The elder Booth would go and put his body in pawn for liquor, and the theatrical managers were obliged to hunt him up and pay the money which he owed for liquor, in order to get him on the stage.

"John Wilkes Booth was very eccentric and drank to excess every night. He was a noted pedestrian, constantly taking long walks, and everybody in the little city of that day knew him by sight. He was called 'a ladies' man,' always flirting with women on the avenue who would permit him to do so. He was no stranger to the people, and I certainly knew him well and saw him often.

"When his body was brought here on the gunboat I wanted to see him, although it was well-nigh impossible to get a chance. I thought of all manner of schemes to get on board, and at last went to my friend Dr. Todd, of the army, and asked him how I should get to see the body. He said: 'We are going to make a post-mortem examination to-morrow, in the afternoon. You come to the gunboat and tell the guards that you have a message for me. I will be on board and will tell the guard that I am expecting you, and order them to send you to me.' I did so, and was allowed to go on board. Just before the post-mortem examination Dr. Todd lifted the big tarpaulin which covered the body on the upper deck and showed me the face of the dead man. It was as calm and peaceful as a baby's, and it was the face of John Wilkes Booth, the assassin. It is all nonsense to say that he was not there. I knew him well, saw him and touched his head. It was cold and dead. It was Booth. I know what I know, and I saw the man lying there, cold in death. The gunboat was anchored between the arsenal and the navy yard, but nearer the yard than the arsenal."

"What was done with the body after the post-mortem examination I do not know. It was generally understood at that time that the body was buried in the old penitentiary ground, where the arsenal now is; where the bodies of the other conspirators were buried, near the place where occurred the executions of Harold, Payne, Atzerodt and Mrs. Surratt. My impression was, as everybody here believed, that Booth's body was disinterred, ten years later, and laid beside that of his father in the family burying ground, near Baltimore. But those are only impressions and beliefs. As I said before, I do not know what was done with the body. But I do know that it was the face of John Wilkes Booth that I saw and touched on the gunboat in the eastern branch of the Potomac that afternoon."

Persons moving from one part of this great country to another often find the climate and the diet at their new residence so different that their health is seriously impaired. She writes: "The diet being different in Texas from what I have been accustomed, brought on severe attacks of indigestion, and for five years I suffered much pain and inconvenience. I tried everything with no permanent relief. At last I noticed Ripans Tabules advertised. After taking the first five-cent box I began to feel better and I have sent for another supply, so certain do I feel that they will cure me."

During the revolutionary war, and subsequent thereto, after the commission of his crime, the relatives of Benedict Arnold were ashamed of their kinship, and no member of that family has ever since desired to have the kinship known. During the period following the dastardlly deed of the tragedian assassin no member of the Booth family felt free from the disgrace of his tragic act. Those now living and those of subsequent generations will avoid claim of kinship. Because of this natural family pride, which must exist in every family, the great exponent of Shakespeare's plays, Edwin Booth, never came to Washington for a public performance, nor in a private capacity as a visitor. Edwin

THE LAST FAREWELL.

Booth gave exhibitions of his great histrionic genius everywhere else, but he never saw the national capital after that awful crime was committed.

Mr. Dietrich spoke of the assassin as a crazy man, and said that his father before him was on the borderland of insanity. It may be well for us all to take that charitable view, and believe that the deed was that of an unevenly balanced mind. The narrator saw and knew Guiteau, the assassin of the lamented Garfield; and he was undoubtedly a crazy man. We may well believe that no sane man would commit such a deed in a republic like this, where escape from the consequences is impossible.

James C. Lindon, who has lived in Washington until his sands of life are running through the hour glass which indicates 83 years, says: "I have been a temperance man and an advocate of prohibition for 36 years, although I had been a drinking man during the first half-century of my life. I used to say that 'every man is responsible only to himself and his family when he takes a glass of whiskey.' I resented all of the works of the early temperance people; and I hated John B. Gough and all others who talked against saloons. I knew John Wilkes Booth well, and often drank with him. He was what 'we boys' regarded as 'a jolly good fellof,' because he treated oftener than others, and always spent his money so freely.

"But when he went into that saloon, adjoining Ford's theater, fully half a dozen times and maybe oftener, to get his glass of brandy in order to nerve himself to commit that crime, I saw the folly of all my theories of individual rights. I saw that the man who takes alcoholic poison is responsible to the community in which he lives, and to the nation of which he is a citizen. Then I gave up my ideas of private rights, and I learned the power and necessity of respecting public rights. The assassination of Lincoln would not have occurred but for that saloon."

This expression was surprising. The few words thus spoken constitute the best temperance lecture ever delivered. The greatest crime of the past century was committed by a drunkard. There are many drunkards who carry on their business, and are not known by that obnoxious word; but they are drunkards, just the same. They are able to sober up over night, and appear all right during business hours; just as the drunkard-actor appeared nightly before crowded theaters. But they are drunkards, and should be known as such in their several communities. This may seem harsh and uncharitable, but it is simply a statement of fact, and there is some man in every community to whom the characterization will aptly apply.

Senator Stewart, of Nevada, the only member of the present senate who was a senator when President Lincoln was assassinated, says: "I was the last man in public life who saw and talked with Lincoln, and I received the last line ever written by him. I called at the white house that Friday night and sent up my card. It was returned to me with the penciled lines: 'Call to-morrow. Am going to theater with my wife.' I had a friend with me who wanted to meet Lincoln, and we stood on the front portico a few minutes, when the president came out. I introduced my friend to the president and his wife, and went away. Inside of two hours I knew that he had been killed. I was awake all that night, and so was everybody else in this city." SMITH D. FRY.

Crushed by a Heavy Man.

A colored woman in Atlanta, Ga., has brought suit against a street railroad company for $1,000 damages on account of a peculiar accident. She was seated in a crowded car, when the vehicle suddenly started. A fat man, weighing about 200 pounds, who was standing, grabbed at a strap, missed it and fell into the woman's lap, temporarily crushing the breath out of her.

TAILOR MADE GOWNS.

The French Are Liberal, the English Severe.

The Parisian idea of a tailor made gown is more liberal than the English mind permits. England is the birthplace of the fashion and still clings to the strict outline originally characteristic, although the details are more or less modified in different years by the generally prevailing style of dress. Paris, however, has gradually added so many fripperies that it is sometimes difficult to distinguish her tailor made gowns from the rest of the wardrobe.

The cut shows a gown of chamois cloth. The plain skirt has a hollow plait at the back and at the foot, at each side and behind are bands of narrow brown velvet, arranged to form points, at the apex of each of which is a small dull gold button. The tight bodice has a short basque at the sides and back. The basque has points of velvet and buttons at the back, while in front similar points ornament the lower part of the bodice. The corsage closes at one side, with gold buttons, over a projecting fold of red silk, and the turned over collar is faced with red silk. The sleeves are trimmed at the top and bottom with points of velvet and buttons and have large cuffs of red silk. The hat of draped chamois cloth is ornamented with a knot of red silk and a cluster of large red poppies.

DIFFERENT BODICES.

They Are Much Worn With Black or Quiet Colored Skirts.

Separate or, rather, differing bodices, although not worn for costumes of great ceremony, nevertheless occupy an important place in the wardrobe. They are used not only for the house, but for the theater, concert and even for dinners, if the latter are not specially formal. Very beautiful models are shown, and no expense is spared in the devising of corsages of this class. They are worn with a plain skirt, long and admirably fitting, but most often without much elaboration. Velvet, satin, silk or even cloth is the material employed for the skirt, and more often than not it is black. Black taffeta has a decided vogue for these skirts, and they are finished by ruffles at the foot.

Wide corselets of various kinds are the fashionable accompaniments of these bodices. The newest are revivals of the elastic belt and are of strong silk webbing, plain or embroidered with steel, jet or gold beads. There are also elastic belts of gold tissue. One of this sort is shown in the first cut. It is entirely of metal threads, the elastic not showing on the surface, and the wide belt is of enamel. The second corselet is of bias surah, plaited in large folds and fastened at the side by a strip of ribbon which passes from tip to bottom, the ends terminating in knots and loops. JUDIC CHOLLET.

GOD'S GREAT POWER.

Manifested In and Around the Grand Canyon of Arizona.

The Most Wonderful Panorama Presented to Human Eyes by the Grace of the Grand Artificer of the Universe.

[Special Correspondence.]

THAT Americans are beginning to take a genuine interest in the natural wonders of their own country is one of the most pleasing signs of the times. It proves that we are beginning to realize that patriotism consists not merely in bombastic Fourth of July outbursts or in hurrahing for this or that hero of the hour; but, to be genuine, must be based upon a true understanding of the moral and material resources of the nation and the grandeur of its scenic, topographical and historical monuments.

It has been said by historians that mountains breed freemen and give birth to the noblest impulses and highest thoughts. How true this statement may be, the reader can decide for himself. Certain it is, however, that in every age and country, sometimes against most fearful odds, mountain tribes and peoples have fought for their liberty, and usually with success. For centuries the uncouth natives of Albania kept the victorious Turks in check, and the Swiss maintained their independence when mighty powers all around them succumbed to gigantic armies led by world-conquering generals.

To the dweller in the plains nothing is more stimulating than the sight of a mountain range; and dull indeed must be the intellect, and callous the heart, of the man who is not exalted by looking for the first time upon the indescribable grandeur of our Colorado mountains or whose reverence for the Grand Artificer of the Universe is not deepened when beholding such a stupendous marvel as the Grand Canyon of Arizona.

Those of us who take even a superficial interest in the rational development of true patriotism have viewed with delight a tendeney on the part of eastern Americans to visit the mountain country of the west, because such visits are calculated to enlarge the mind and produce an Americanism entirely devoid of provincialism and sectionalism.

Among those who have been most successful in this effort to induce Americans to study their own land none is entitled to greater credit than Prof. George Wharton James, of Pasadena, Cal., who for ten years or more has been exploring the many wild and picturesque trails of the Grand Canyon and has become the trusted friend of the various tribes of Pueblo Indians, such as the Zunis, Hopis, Havasupais, etc. The information thus gained Prof. James has shared with the people of the east, and his lectures on the American southwest have been annual features at many eastern seats of learning.

PROF. G. WHARTON JAMES.

At the earnest solicitation of his friends, Prof. James has recently consented to embody the result of his researches in Arizona in a book entitled "In and Around the Grand Canyon." In it he tells how he followed all possible traces of the early explorers and relates, often in their own fresh, vivid words, the records of their thrilling adventures and hairbreadth escapes—adventures so wild that they rival those we read in the most sensational fiction. The author himself has met with many perilous experiences, and tells them well. He finds the scenery magnificent beyond description, the Indians and their legends and customs picturesque, and the life of the traveler and explorer fascinating in spite of its hardships. The illustrations, consisting of 30 full-page plates and 70 smaller pictures, are reproduced from photographs taken on the spot; and the publishers, Little, Brown & Co., of Boston, have provided the volume with one of the most artistic covers of the year.

Prof. James' detailed description of the Grand Canyon carries out the impression of the late Charles Dudley Warner, who was quite carried away by the vastness of the view and its translucent beauty. "We had," he wrote, "expected a canyon — two lines of perpendicular walls 6,000 feet high, with the ribbon of a river (the Colorado) at the bottom; but the reader may dismiss all his notions of a canyon, indeed of any sort of mountain or gorge scenery with which he is familiar. We had come into a new world. What we saw was not a canyon, or a chasm, or a gorge, but a vast area which is a break in the plateau. From where we stood it was 12 miles across to the opposite walls. We looked up and down for 20 or 30 miles. This great space is filled with gigantic architectural constructions, with amphitheaters, gorges, precipices, walls of masonry, fortresses terraced up to the level of the eye, temples, mountain size, all brilliant with horizontal lines of color—streaks of solid hues a few feet in width, streaks a thousand feet in width—yellow, mingled white and gray, orange, dull red, brown, blue, carmine, green, all blending in the sunlight into one translucent suffusion of splendor. Afar off we saw the view in two places, a mere thread, as motionless and smooth as a strip of mirror, only we knew it was a turbid, boiling torrent, 6,000 feet below us. Directly opposite the overhanging ledge on which we stood was a mountain, the sloping base of which was ashy gray and bluish; it roes in a series of terraces to a 1,000-foot wall of dark-red sandstone, receding upward with ranges of columns and many fantastic sculptures, to a finial row of gigantic opera glasses 6,000 feet above the river. The great San Francisco mountain, with its snowy crater, which we had passed on the way, might have been set down in the place of this one, and it would have been only one in a multitude of such form that met the eye whichever way we looked. Indeed, all the vast mountains in this region might be hidden in this canyon."

A scene like the one described naturally stirs the deepest emotions of a man's nature, and its contemplation leads Prof. James to ask: "Who can gaze upon this weird and wonderful beauty and not feel that God must love beauty for its own sake? The idea that everything is formed solely as a background upon which to display the development of man takes powerful hold upon us when we yield ourselves to the persuasive eloquence of Browning, but a voice louder and more powerful than the great English master's peals forth in one's own soul when he gazes upon God's great work here, and he feels instinctively that the Almighty made this glorious grandeur centuries of centuries before man ever could see it, in order that He, personally, might enjoy its beauty. Just as the garments of Aaron the priest were to be made 'for glory and for beauty,' so do I think this great canyon was made as a revelation to man that God loves to make things solely for glory and beauty."

Still dominated by profound religious fervor, the author continues: "To me this canyon is the holy of holies, the inner temple, where each man may be his own high priest, open the sacred veil, and stand face to face with the Divine. And he who can thus 'talk with God' may not show it to his fellows, but he knows within himself the new power, calmness and equanimity which he has gained, and he returns to life's struggles thankful for his glimpses of the Divine. And yet what words can tell how utterly insignificant man must feel himself to be when he finds himself in the depths of this great gorge, solitary and alone, and finds not this Divine presence? He may be a king on his throne; a despotic ruler in his office; a monarch in his store; a tyrant in his workshop; but here he is so dwarfed, made so small, that, if he have any soul at all, he is humbled and made reverent at this marvelous manifestation of superior power, might and greatness."

The Grand Canyon district, with a faint glimpse of whose wonders we have been made acquainted, lies in the arid regions of southern Utah and northern Arizona. It contains an area which is roughly estimated at from 13,000 to 16,000 square miles, or about the size of the state of Maryland. In this district there are, in less than 500 miles, 520 falls, cataracts and rapids which, in beauty of color or rock and water effects, are without equals anywhere on the earth.

Many famous men have from time to time explored this district, among them Lieut. Ives, of the United States corps of topographical engineers; Capt. George W. Wheeler, and Maj. John Wesley Powell; but none has presented to the American people as graphic an account of its marvels and mysteries as that given by Prof. James.

Many CLAIMANTS for the Collegiate Strength Record

COLLEGE athletes are agog over the various claims made for athletes in the collegiate strength record. Ask a Yale man who is the strongest man in the intercollegiate world and he will quickly answer: "Why Charles A. Carver, of course. He recently made a record of 3,371.3 kilograms, or 5,217 pounds." Ask a Harvard man the same question and he will give you a yard of statistics to prove that Carl Guy Herbert holds the "own and only" college strength record with 1,869 points to his credit, and made by the Sargent system.

Ask a Wisconsin university undergraduate, or an alumnus, for that matter, who is the strongest college man and he will ignore all records except that made by Harry Cochems, the great Badger half back when he was at Harvard. Harry set the mark at the astonishing figure of 1,809. He succeeded in raising the championship mark from 1,761.4 to over the 1,800 mark for the first time in the history of college athletics. To thousands of enthusiastic followers of college athletics there is but one strong man record and that is Cochems'. That Harry was the idol of a big contingent cannot be denied. The old cardinal stone wall ground gainer aid all around athlete is practicing law in Wisconsin now, but it is only necessary to watch him in a throng of people to see that he has lost none of his poise, his elasticity, his broadness of shoulders and his deepness of chest. A more popular athlete never attended a western university. After his record at Harvard the papers throughout the country awarded Cochems the honor of being the "best developed and strongest man in the world."

Talk to a Chicago university man and he will spring two strong men for consideration, and both of them well-known all-around athletes. One will be Walter Scott Kennedy, the former famous quarterback and captain of the championship eleven of 1899, and the other will be Alfred W. Place. Place took his tests in the gymnasium of the maroon university and placed the mark at 4,238 pounds. It was said that when this stocky little southern boy—he is but a little over five feet tall and weighs about 154 pounds—made this record, no athlete in the west would approach it. However, these critics had no means of knowing that Walter Kennedy was in constant training with one ambition in view—that of quitting his college career with a high-water mark for strength tests.

Kennedy had been discussed as the great tower of strength in the championship football team. He had been the recipient of considerable praise for his hard and heavy batting in baseball and carried his 194 pounds of avoirdupois like a well balanced athletic fellow would. By strict attention to daily training Kennedy got into trim and took the tests. He ran up the figures to 4,511 pounds, and there will be little danger of these numbers being displaced by Athlete Place or any other Maroon student.

Both Cochems and Kennedy have declared that there is an art in knowing how to apply your strength to the best advantage in these tests. Possibly there are stronger lads, or, to be more correct, there were stronger young men in the college ranks, than either Kennedy or Cochems, at the time they made their tests. But if there were they did not know their strength, or, what was more likely, they did not train to develop it to the fine point necessary to get the best results out of the official apparatus in the gymnasium. Unfortunately for followers of college athletics, there is no way to make an adequate comparison between eastern and western records in strength tests and even between the tests of Harvard and Yale there is such a discrepancy that no small amount of debate has been caused between the crimson and the blue over the respective records of Herbert and Carver.

Harvard men say that the Yale system is not accurate, as Carver must have used a strap or harness in his work. The Yale men retort that Carver's record when analyzed shows that his marks were not so good as Herbert's in the tests that might have permitted the use of harness, while in those which would not admit of harness being used Carver exceeded the Harvard strong man's figures. So it will never be definitely known to whom this honor really belongs, until some sort of a general system is introduced which will be acceptable to all colleges.

Although Harry Cochems had gained fame on the gridiron at the Badger university, had won points in shot putting and weight throwing, and had commanded attention in many ways by his athletic prowess, it was not until he went to Harvard to study law that he took up the daily work of training for an attack on the kilogram figures. Looking over the field he saw that an athlete who had never done anything surprising in field or track events or in the football world, C. G. Herbert, held the varsity record with a total of 1,595 points. Lovering and Klein, two very strong men, were excelled by Herbert.

"I'll try for the record," said Cochems to one of his old associates in the football world, and then he buckled down to the daily grind of chinning himself, raising bar dumbbells, gripping, etc. The result was he got his record. Great as is Herbert's latest total, Cochems still shows greater points in some of the tests. For instance, in the lung test, Cochems had 47 points, which number has never been reached by a college strong man. Herbert had 32 points. In the back Cochems worked the springs up to 420 points, while the best that Herbert could do was 350. In the points or strength in the legs, Herbert excelled by several points. Herbert was also better in the push up and the pull up.

The effect of Herbert's indomitable pluck in going through his course of training, despite the fact that he was but five feet seven inches tall and weighed but 145 pounds, showed in the chest and upper arm points. He beat Cochems in these by 11 points. But in the right forearm Cochems was 14 points better. In the left forearm the Wisconsin football player excelled by but three points.

Under thet Yale system, Carver's April record last year was 1,755 kilograms. This Cochems eclipsed, as the New Haven authorities admitted. However, Carver, who is a Chicagoan, a graduate of Oak Park high school and a deep student who cares little for football and track and field athletics, attacked the job of record making once more and set the mark at 2,073.2 kilograms. Subsequently Carver increased this to 2,371.4 kilograms and claimed the record at 5,217 pounds. In detail the record of Carver as he gave it is: Legs, 850 kilograms; back, 370 kilograms or 814 pounds; chest and upper arms, 933.3 kilograms; right grip, 100 kilograms or 226 pounds; left grip, 92 kilograms or 202 pounds.

Shirley Ellis, the big football player of Harvard, went into the gymnasium

when Herbert was taking his test and squeezed the machine for 112 points with his right hand. That showed what a football athlete could do. Herbert could only go 73 with his right and 71 with his left. However, Herbert did what the football wonder could not accomplish—he chinned himself 42 times and dipped 50 times. These two simple performances alone give the Harvard man a title.

After leaving college the athletes who join the teams of the various athletic clubs pay little attention to systematic training needed to make college tests. For instance, when I wrote to the New York Athletic club for the name of the strongest athlete there, the reply was that Hugh Baxter, the ex-champion pole vaulter, now 40 years old, was the strong man. Training but two weeks Baxter set the club record at 1,082 points. He got close to 400 on the lung test, pulled 875 pounds in weight lifting, chinned the bar 19 times and did the "dip" on the parallel bars 21 times. This record looks like that of a novice compared with the marks of the collegians.

For the New Jersey State tournament, at Engleweed, June 27, 28 and 29, the course has been lengthened to about 6,000 yards. At a meeting of the executive committee of the State Golf Association the following programme of events was adopted:

June 27—Qualifying round for first sixteen and a second sixteen. Team match of four men from each club, qualifying scores to count in the match. The best gross scores will be counted and a medal awarded to the leader. Medals also will be given to each member of the winning team and a banner to the club represented by the winners.

June 28—The first eight will continue play for the championship. The second eight of the first sixteen will continue at play for a prize, as also will the first eight of the second sixteen and the second eight of the second sixteen, making thirty-two players to play on the second day. Prizes will be awarded to the winners in each of these four classes.

June 29—Handicap limited to eighteen strokes. The survivors of the first eight will play for the championship at thirty-six holes, and the winner and runner up each will receive a prize. The survivors in each of the remaining sub-divisions of eight will play at thirty-six holes for a prize in each class.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

The match shoot between Scott Terry, of this city, and F. Knevels, of South Orange, which took place at Campbell's Club House Saturday, resulted in a tie. Both men killed 44 out of 50 birds. Knevels refused to shoot the tie off and drew his money. The match was for $100 a side. Both contestants were in excellent form, the Plainfield man at one time making a run of 25 straight.

A stomach tube, 66 centimeters long, with a diameter of 11 millimeters, is introduced, having at the lower end an electric lamp and at the upper end a camera. The stomach is first emptied and washed and then distended with air. Then 50 pictures can be taken in rapid succession in from 10 to 15 minutes. By turning the apparatus on its axis all parts of the mucous membrane can be pictured. The photographs are about the size of a cherry stone, but, of course, they can be enlarged to any extent.—London Globe.

Species of Salt-Water Fishes.

The number of species of fishes living habitually in the salt waters of the world can only be approximately estimated, probably about 10,000. Those classed as "shore fishes" live, as a rule, close to the surface and near the land, and are well known to the salt-water angler in his outings as the weakfish, striped bass, kingfish, etc. Of the shore fishes there are about 4,000 species. The "pelagic fishes," or those which inhabit the upper waters of the seas, are relatively few in number. The "deep-sea fishes," which live in depths varying from 200 to 2,500 fathoms, cannot be even approximately estimated, as new species are being constantly discovered.—Field and Farm.

ARLINGTONS WON LAST GAME OF THE SEASON

The Association Football Season Closed Saturday With Game With Crack Newark Team.

SCORE WAS FIVE TO ONE.

WONDERFUL TEAM WORK WON FOR THE VISITORS.

Plainfield Team Was Strengthened by Several Outsiders—Local Eleven Scored Only in the First Half—Game Was Exciting Throughout.

For the third time this season, the Plainfield Association Football Club met defeat at the hands of the Arlingtons, of Newark, in their game on the Clinton avenue grounds Saturday afternoon. But while the score, which was 5 to 1, may seem to indicate that it was a one sided affair, this was by no means the case. The Plainfield boys put up a most excellent game, playing with far more vim and dash than in any previous contest and never relaxing their efforts for a moment. It was all to no purpose, however, as the Arlingtons, who were in their old time form, continued the clever team work which has characterized all their games and won for them the title of the State champions.

The kick-off was made by City Collector Frank H. Smith. Brisk playing followed on both sides but despite Plainfield's endeavors, the Arlingtons made the first goal. This was soon followed by two more and for a time it looked as if the visitors were to have things their own way, when by a dexterous move McGee, who is a member of the Newark Scottish-American team, passed the ball through the goal, scoring one for Plainfield. In the remaining few minutes of the first half neither side scored, although the local team had the ball within a few yards of the goal several times.

In the second half, both sides worked harder than ever without either securing any advantage. The individual work was very good with the local team and the players made strenuous efforts to shut the visitors out, but all to no purpose. Their superior team work enabled them to increase the score to five goals for their side while Plainfield still had but the one when the referee's whistle closed the game. This also closed the association football season for Plainfield as hereafter the members will devote their efforts to ball playing. Arrangements have been made for placing a competent team in the field before the season is fully advanced.

The line up was as follows:

PLAINFIELD		ARLINGTONS.

Nicholson	full back	Smithe. bee

Head	half back	Donald
Pollock	"	Eagan

DEATH OF MRS. GAVIN.

Passed Away At An Early Hour This Morning After a Brief Illness.

Mrs. Laura Gavin, the wife of Joseph Gavin, of Mountain avenue, died after a short illness at an early hour this morning.

Her decline in health was rapid during the past few days and a consultation was held last evening by her attending physician and Dr. Zeglio, but all efforts were futile.

She is survived by her husband and two infant daughters, who are but a few days old. Lawrence Powers, of Westfield, is a brother of Mrs. Gavin.

Arrangements for the funeral have not yet been made, but it will probably be held Wednesday morning.

GREAT MANY THERE.

The funeral services of Elizabeth VanMiddlesworth, wife of Charles H. VanMiddlesworth, were held yesterday afternoon from her late residence on Chatham street. Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, officiated.

A host of friends attended to pay their last respects and over a hundred people were unable to gain admittance to the house to hear the services. Flowers in profusion, cut and in designs, filled the parlors.

The pallbearers were William Trembath, Willard Martin, Charles Lang, Edward Lang, Willard Swick and Rex Pollock.

Interment was made in the North Plainfield cemetery.

Public Meeting Tonight.

A discussion of the merits of municipal ownership will be the feature of the Board of Trade meeting this evening. Frank Bergen, president of the Plainfield Water Supply Company, and James E. Martine will speak. An opportunity is extended to anyone who desires to express his views on the subject.

BRIDGE NOT NEEDED

Miners Travel Across a Wild River on a Thread.

Men Who Use the "Sky Trolley" in Western Pennsylvania Laugh at What Strangers Call the Perils of Their Daily Trip.

Sky ferries are probably unknown to the citizens of any other section of the country than those of the Youghiogheny river valley, in western Pennsylvania.

The Youghiogheny river is the largest tributary of the Monongahela, and although only navigable for about six or eight miles of its length above its mouth at McKeesport, where it empties into the Monongahela, it is a most important stream, as along its banks are situated the great Pennsylvania coking coal fields.

The Youghiogheny is a brawling, rough stream, that tumbles over rocks most of its way from its source away up in the Blue Ridge mountains of southern Pennsylvania to its mouth at McKeesport.

Rolling along through the mountain passes, nature has not always been kind enough to furnish a town site at the same point where the mouth of a mine shaft is located, and it is frequently necessary for the hundreds of miners who work in the mines along the river to seek habitations on the opposite side of the stream from the coal works.

This is where the "sky ferry" comes in handy, says the Philadelphia Press.

Nothing ever disturbs the ferries. High water never reaches them, and when the ice goes out in the "Dare Devil Yough," as the stream is locally known (it is pronounced "Yock," by the way), the "sky ferry" carries its passengers high and dry above all danger.

There are a number of these ferries along the river.

The first one built was at Greenock, about six miles south of McKeesport. The river is about 150 yards wide at this point and the nature of the ground and the financial status of the residents of Greenock both prohibited the erection of a substantial bridge.

SKY TROLLEY AND PLATFORM.
(Used by Pennsylvania Miners to Cross Rivers and Creeks.)

In this emergency two geniuses of the little mining hamlet, W. H. Heath and E. F. Cloman, solved the problem of all-the-year-around transportation for the Greenock people over and back across the Youghiogheny river.

They built the first "sky ferry" and since then the scheme has been adopted by a dozen or more mining towns on the river.

The ferries are purely cooperative affairs.

To become a member of the company owning and operating a ferry requires a membership fee of two dollars. Upon the payment of this sum the applicant for membership in the company is furnished with a key, or with several keys, for his family, if he needs them. Until the trap door leading to the platform on either bank of the river is opened with this key passengers are unable to reach the cage in which the passage from one side of the river to the other is effected.

A small windlass, in the cage, enables the passenger to grind himself along the wire if the cage fails to make the run all the way across the river on gravity. A similar windlass is provided on the platform at each side of the river to draw the cage over if it chances to be on the opposite side when an intending passenger climbs the steps to the cage platform.

These ferries have now been in use for a number of years and are the most popular form of communication between the opposite banks of the brawling Yough.

No accidents have ever occurred, and they are considered as safe as a bridge, even in a heavy windstorm. The overhead cable, on which the cage is suspended, is stout, half-inch steel and is guaranteed to last a lifetime in this kind of work.

It is kept thoroughly covered at all times with coal tar to protect it from the weather, and men, women and children make hundreds of trips a day through the air, in the cage which is suspended 100 feet or more above the swiftly rushing Youghiogheny.

PAYING OFF MORTGAGE.

Pastor of Hope Chapel Announced That the Desired $1,000 Had Been Raised.

At the evening service in Hope chapel, yesterday, Rev. G. Kennedy Newell, the pastor, announced that the necessary $900 which the congregation has been striving to raise during the past few months, had been over subscribed by $45. The conditional $100 offered by a friend of the chapel, will now be added, bringing the grand total toward the elimination of the $2,000 mortgage up to $1,045.

While the amount to some would appear to be comparitively small it represents a great deal to the members of the chapel. When the movement was first started, $1,000 was set as the goal to be striven for, but no one expected this would be reached, while a surplus would have been regarded as impossible.

LIVELY DEBATE ON CITY WATER PLANT.

Much Interest at Public Meeting of Board of Trade on Municipal Ownership Question.

MARTINE VS. SWACKHAMER.

THEY WERE THE PRINCIPAL SPEAKERS FOR AND AGAINST.

Superintendent Andrews of the Water Company Gave Company's Side—General Sentiment Seemed to Favor Municipal Ownership.

Should the city control the water supply plant? The public meeting of the Board of Trade last evening practically resolved itself into a debate between James E. Martine and Councilman S. S. Swackhamer on that subject. The large attendance of citizens at the meeting found the discussion a decidedly interesting one as both speakers were thoroughly in earnest and advanced every possible argument in defense of their respective sides. There were several other speakers but the bulk of the time was occupied by these two men. The general sentiment seemed to be in favor of municipal ownership.

Mr. Martine took the affirmative of the question. He said that air and water were two essential necessities to existence and there was no reason why the former should be controlled by a few individuals to be dealt out to the public for personal benefit. The local company, he declared, jacked up the already high rates and to the anxious queries of the consumers stated that they were simply equalizing matters. But so far only two citizens had been found whose rates had be reduced one dollar, while there may be a still greater raise in the future. The taxpayers own the highways, he said, and it is they who should utilize them for the distribution of commodities and not private corporations.

In defense of public ownership, Mr. Martine quoted figures obtained from cities where it is in operation. One of these was Madison, where, in addition to laying up a sinking fund for extinguishing the cost of construction, the plant was furnishing electric light at one half the rate charged by the Plainfield corporation. He also referred to Scottish cities where municipal ownership extended to the building of homes for poor people.

The principal argument advanced by those opposed to the plan, the speaker said, was the fear of placing it in the hands of a few representatives such as a council. In this case, he declared, it is the fault of the citizens, as they are enabled by their vote to help place men in office whom they are not afraid to trust. It was his opinion that every citizen should be compelled to vote and when a secret system of balloting was devised, most of them would. The gas plant in Philadelphia, he related, had been run profitably by the city until designing politicians had leased it to a private corporation which advanced rates. The corruption which exists in the Quaker City he thought would prevent the public owning of any plant.

It was expected that President Frank Bergen, of the Plainfield Water Supply Company, would be present but he was not. Mr. Martine regretted his absence as he said he would enjoy hearing his side of the matter. He told of the comprehensive charter of the local company which permitted them to sell water to adjoining towns not direct but by means of the Union Water Company which, he declared, was virtually John Kean and Frank Bergen. The Plainfield wells, he said, were pumped dry and then the water was sold back to the citizens at exorbitant rates. In conclusion, Mr. Martine stated that this city could build a plant and run it at a profit, and that it could not act too quickly in the matter.

He was followed by James Bell, who spoke very briefly quoting a few figures from cities where there is municipal ownership, after which Mr. Swackhamer arose. He asked permission to take the negative side to the question but said that he did not wish to be quoted as opposing it. His action, he said, was merely for the purpose of replying to questions raised by Mr. Martine. He was anxious to see low water rates in Plainfield and if municipal ownership would do it, he would be one of its strongest advocates. But it is a question, he explained, as to whether public ownership is the most feasible method of avoiding high rates. Whenever a few

TELEPHONE TO NEW MARKET

STRINGING WIRES TO CONNECT WITH DUNELLEN.

Trouble Has Not Been Settled But Telephone Company Bought Right of Way Over Electric Company's Poles.

Linemen in the employ of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company began work yesterday completing the line between Dunellen and New Market. It was commenced last summer but left unfinished owing to the action of the Central Railroad in prohibiting wires being strung over the tracks on Washington avenue. At that time, the poles erected by the telephone people were taken down by the railroad section gang and since then the matter has been in the courts.

The trouble has not yet been settled, but the telephone company, undesirous of a further delay, has purchased the right of way over the Central Electric Company's poles from North avenue to New Market road where its own poles still stand. The telephone was placed in C. T. Rogers' office at New Market yesterday and it is expected communication with this city will be established by tomorrow.

HEAVY SENTENCE FOR MAGGIE BELL GIBSON

Will go to Jail For a Hundred Days For Her Experience of Saturday Evening.

TRIAL WAS VERY TAME.

BIG CROWD COLLECTED EXPECTING TO HEAR SOMETHING SENSATIONAL.

Patrolman Higgins Told His Story—Lawyer Clark Conducted The Defense—Maggie Bell Denied All Wrong Doing—$50 And Fifty Days.

Police headquarters was filled this morning by a motley crowd, containing a goodly percentage of the colored population, all eager to see justice meeted out to Maggie Belle Jackson Gibson, against whom rested the triple charges, drunkeness, disorderly conduct and resisting an officer.

"Maggie Belle," for such she is known to the bluecoats of this and other cities, faced the Court clad in glorious raiment. Rosie Jackson, her mother, had retained Robert M. Clark and he was present to look after his client's interests. Everyone expected to see some fun, for Maggie has a reputation of being equal to all occasions, but the excitement banked upon did not materialize.

Patrolman Higgins, who achieved renown by arresting the woman, recited an account of her wrongful doings, as detailed in The Daily Press yesterday, and his testimony was corroborated by the man who lent succor to him when besieged by Maggie.

Lawyer Clark put Maggie on the stand and she piously disclaimed any violation of the peace and order of the city. Several of her friends, whom she had accosted that evening, backed up her defense very willingly.

After Clark had pleaded for mercy, City Judge Runyon in a few terse words referred to the notorious character of the Gibson woman and said that, inasmuch as there were no redeeming qualities in her, the court was bound to inflict a severe penalty. The judgment of the court was that she pay a fine of $50 and undergo an imprisonment of fifty days, which practically means that Maggie Belle Jackson Gibson will abide at Elizabeth for the next hundred days.

TEAMS WILL PLAY.

No Break in Friendly Relations Between City High and Leal's Schools Probable.

The opening game between the baseball teams of the Plainfield High School and Leal's School will, in all probability, be played tomorrow afternoon according to schedule.

For a time it looked as if there might be a break in the friendly relations between the two schools over the question of eligibility. While there is no formal agreement existing among the local schools as to who is to play on school teams, there has been a tacit understanding between the Plainfield High and Leal's.

Representatives of the two teams met this afternoon and everything was adjusted satisfactorily to both sides so that there will not be any further question. Both teams have been very careful to allow only bona fide students to play.

Successful Affair Given in Camera Club Rooms Last Evening.

A subscription dance was given last evening at the Camera Club rooms, under the direction of H. H. Coward, J. G. MacLoughlin, H. C. VanEmburgh, F. H. Smith. It was one of the most enjoyable affairs of the season. The delightful programme of dances furnished by Westervelt's orchestra was not the least of the features.

Miss Hulbert was very prettily attired in a gown of white chiffon, trimmed with lace. She carried bridal roses. Her bridemaid was Miss Alice Higgins, of this city, who wore white organdie over green silk and carried swansonia blossoms. The best man was Elmer D. Cutting, of this city. As the young people took their places before the officiating clergyman the Lohengrin wedding march was played by Andrew Carpenter.

They will leave this afternoon by way of the Sunset Route for San Francisco, where the groom will assume a position with the Union Iron Works, a large ship building concern.

While Mr. Warde is a comparative stranger in Plainfield, he has been employed in this vicinity for two years and is well liked by all with whom he has come in contact. AT THE THEATRES.

Something About the Attractions Which Plainfield Theatre-Goers May Care to Witness.

The big sensational melodrama "The Denver Express" will be the attraction at Music Hall tomorrow night. It tells a story of strong heart interest. Though bordering at times upon the extremely sensational, there is said to be plenty of laughter providing comedy interspersed throughout the action, and nothing inconsistent or unnatural in the production. The management has provided the play with special scenery and ingenius mechanical effects, which are said to be unexcelled in beauty, massiveness and startling surprises. It is full of "go" from start to finish and its comedy features are highly amusing. The company presenting "The Denver Express" is an excellent one. The author thoroughly understands that this is a rapid age, that people think quickly and when they go to a theatre they want the play to have plenty of movement and life.

Saturday, April 20, the comedian, Harry Webber, supported by a capable company, will present a melo dramatic comedy new to Plainfield theatre goers, but which has received the endorsement of press and public all over the English-speaking world. It is entitled "Nip and Tuck," and its original presentation was in Paris, France, at the Porte St. Martin Theatre, under the title of "Tricochet et Cucolet," Adolph D'Ennery, who also wrote the "Two Orphans," being the author. It is in four acts and describes the marvelous adventures of two shrewd scheming detectives, who getting on opposite sides of a celebrated murder case, use marvelous ingenuity, skill and subterfuge to unravel the mystery, and outwit each other. Their dilemas, disguises, plots and plans form the subject of a most amusing and interesting series of scenes and situations.

Doan's Kidney Pills act quickly.
Cure all distressing, dangerous kidney ills.

Plenty of evidence to prove this:

Mrs. Margaret Reville, of 752 West Third street, says: "For a long time I was troubled with a lame and weak back and I never found anything which gave me any relief until I obtained Doan's Kidney pills from L. W. Randolph's drug store and began to use them according to directions It was only a short time before I felt the good effects and from that time on I improved steadily under the treatment. My back pained me and was so weak and sore that I dreaded to bend and when I had a cold or over exerted myself I suffered severely. I used several different kidney remedies but got little if any relief. I give Doan's Kidney Pills all the credit for my improvement. I think they are a fine medicine for a lame back."

HEAVY FINE FOR MRS. NATION

Judge Tells Her Missouri Is No Place For Short Haired Women.

KANSAS CITY, April 16.—Mrs. Carrie Nation was fined $500 by Judge McAuley in police court yesterday.

"I'll give you a stay until 6 o'clock tonight," added his honor. "If you're found about Kansas City after that hour, the fine goes. I advise you to leave the city at once and the state too. Missouri is no place for you. This atmosphere does not agree with short haired women, long haired men or whistling girls. Go back to Kansas."

Mrs. Nation had been occupying a seat of honor on the bench. She was speechless. All the comment she made was "Sentence, humph!"

Mrs. Nation came to Kansas City with Mrs. Mary E. White of Topeka. They created a disturbance in M. J. Flynn's saloon at 117 East Twelfth street. The two had dropped in at the saloon in the course of an exhorting tour. They took exception to its pictures.

"You strip your mothers and hang them up here to drag young men to hell!" she shouted. Then Bartender Montville bounced her, and Detective Sparks, who happened along, found her holding forth to a crowd in the street. He called the "hoodlum wagon," and Mrs. Nation and her companion were haled to the Central police station.

DIED IN PESTHOUSE.

Supreme Court Judge's Son Buried In Potter's Field.

NEW YORK, April 16.—Judge James M. Rae of the supreme court of Nassau, N. P., a man of wealth and influence in the British colony, has asked a friend in this city to begin an investigation of the death from smallpox of his son, Hugh Campbell Rae, 21 years old, on North Brother island March 31. Judge Rae writes that none of the young man's friends could communicate with him and that the first news of his illness accompanied the report of his death.

John B. Sexton, president of the board of health, has made inquiries about the case. Dr. Ray, in charge of the hospital, said Mr. Rae was taken on March 14 from Brooklyn in an advanced stage of smallpox. The patient said his nearest friend was Allen A. Rae of Manhattan. Dr. Ray said several telephone inquiries were made the first three days, when the bulletins were encouraging. Those who inquired did not give their names.

When Mr. Rae died, word was sent to his friend he had mentioned, but the letter was returned with the report that the person could not be found. Mr. Rae had no money. His body was kept for two weeks and then sent to the potter's field.

President Smith Has a Revelation.

KANSAS CITY, April 16.—President Joseph Smith of the reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints has announced to the conference in session at Independence, Mo., that the Lord had revealed his will to him relative to two subjects which have been mooted questions in the church. The two questions are whether women delegates should be allowed to act in legislative capacity in the church and whether priests and teachers who are not delegates should be allowed an ex officio vote in the conference. The body of the church will not be told the substance of the revelations until the quorum of 12 and other official bodies have approved it.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 16.—The transports Logan and Thyra sailed for Manila yesterday. The Logan took a battalion of the Ninth cavalry, a battalion of the Tenth cavalry, Companies I and M of the First infantry and the First battalion of the Eleventh infantry. The Thyra was to have taken the horses of the Ninth cavalry, but it was found at the last minute that glanders had broken out in the horses of the Ninth at the Presidio, and the horses of the Sixth cavalry which were brought back by the disabled Arab were substituted.

Potters' Strike Unlikely.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., April 16.—Indications seem favorable for an adjustment of the differences between the operative potters and the manufacturers without a strike on May 1. The brotherhood officials seem disposed to grant the request of the Western Manufacturers' association to deal with them rather than with the United States Potters' association. The national executive board of the brotherhood is in session here and is expected to take favorable action.

COMMISSARY FRAUDS

Trial of Sergeant Meston at Manila Finished.

FORMER COMMISSARY READ ARRESTED

Tales of Riotous Living and Lavish Expenditures Brought to Light by Recent Investigations—New Treasurer Assumes Office.

MANILA, April 16.—The trial of Commissary Sergeant John Meston, charged with complicity in the commissary frauds, is finished. No verdict was announced, and Meston's conviction is uncertain. Other trials of those implicated will follow.

Captain James C. Read, formerly depot commissary at Manila, has been arrested.

It is alleged that entries upon the books of Evans & Co., government contractors, indicate that the commissary officers received the following sums: Major George B. Davis, upward of $1,000; Captain James C. Read, $1,000; Captain Frank H. Lawton, $750; Mr. B. Tremaine, Colonel Woodruff's chief clerk, $700.

It also appears that Evans & Co. furnished the handsome residence of Colonel Woodruff. Harold M. Pitt, manager of Evans & Co., who is now under arrest, was notoriously lavish in entertaining commissary and other officers, while the depot commissary, a frequenter of the "Tenderloin district," occasionally spent days at Pitt's house in questionable society. Pitt's house is a bacchanalian rendezvous, and prominent officers frequently visited it, drinking champagne and playing poker. Women of doubtful reputation have often been known to be there. It is alleged that Pitt had the inside track in securing government contracts, and it is also asserted that he was the prime mover in the scheme to re-establish cockpits in Manila, Mrs. Lara being subsidized in securing a cockpit.

It is asserted that the commissary department made unauthorized purchases of quantities of champagne. Pitt sold some. In addition to what the transports brought the commissary imported 200 gallons in February and a like amount in March. The commissary and the commissary sergeant kept private carriages and indulged in other extravagances.

Today Mr. Frank A. Branagan assumes the office of treasurer of the archipelago.

Arrested by Philadelphia Detectives.

NEW YORK, April 16.—Four Philadelphia detectives, aided by a local constable, arrested Paul N. Goldsmith yesterday at Babylon, N. Y., and he is now being held to await requisition. The detectives claim that Goldsmith is wanted in Philadelphia on a charge of robbing the residence of W. S. Bateman on North Seventh street, Philadelphia, on March 20 of a large amount of jewelry, diamonds and money. They also charge him with other robberies, saying that his method was to palm himself off as a piano tuner. Goldsmith has been living at the leading hotel in Babylon for two weeks with his wife and, having plenty of money at his command and being refined in manner, had no trouble in making his way in the best society of the town. The wife claims that her husband is innocent, and when Goldsmith was arraigned before Justice Cooper he refused to make any statement.

Boston's Poor Remembered.

BOSTON, April 16.—The poor of Boston are liberally remembered by the will of George L. Thorndike, who was a real estate dealer and lived in East Boston, which has just been offered for probate. The city of Boston is given $10,000 in trust, the income of which is to be used to purchase coal for distribution among the widowed women of East Boston. There are many personal bequests, and the testator suggests that "on the death of the last legatee of the will the trustees of the will shall co-operate with the trustees of the Boston City hospital," so that when the estate exceeds the value of $200,000 the entire value shall be devoted to the establishment of a free hospital by the city.

New Jersey School Appropriation.

TRENTON, April 16.—The state board of education has apportioned to the several counties of the state the amount each will receive out of the money to be raised through the state school tax. This money represents the $5 for each child of school age and aggregates in round numbers $2,250,000. The money is apportioned to the counties on a basis of their ratables, with the exception that a small amount is taken from Essex and one or two others of the larger counties to assist Ocean and two or three more of the rural counties where the ratables are not so high in proportion to the number of children.

Cubans Name Commission.

HAVANA, April 16.—At yesterday's session of the Cuban constitutional convention five delegates, Senors Diego Tamayo, Capote, Berriel, Portuendo and Lorente, were appointed a commission to go to Washington to lay before President McKinley the desires of the convention regarding the future relations between Cuba and the United States. The commission was instructed to confer with Governor General Wood regarding the date of departure and the best conditions for an interview with the president.

Chicago Publisher Dead.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., April 16.—General Alexander C. McClurg of Chicago is dead from Bright's disease after a long period of ill health. His wife was at his bedside. General McClurg was the head of the book publishing house of A. C. McClurg & Co. of Chicago. Early in February he came to Florida for his health. Mrs. McClurg accompanied him Ogden McClurg, now a student at Yale was his only child. General McClurg was born in Philadelphia.

Prosperous Horse Show Association

CHICAGO, April 16.—The Chicago Horse Show association has broken a record for such enterprises and will declare a dividend of 25 per cent tomorrow on a capital stock of $25,000. This is the first official indication of the financial success of the exhibition in the Coliseum during the winter.

Settled the Claim.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., April 16.—The Ontario and Western Railroad company has settled the claim of Mrs. Howard R. Schofield of Fishkill, whose husband was killed in a wreck at Hurleyville Feb. 6, by the payment of $7,500.

BOERS SUFFER LOSS.

Kitchener Reports Three Small Engagements.

STORY OF FRENCH'S CAPTURE DOUBTED

Through Private Sources the News Has Reached London That the General and Five Hundred of His Men Are Prisoners.

LONDON, April 16.—The war office has received the following dispatch from Lord Kitchener, dated Pretoria, April 15:

"Colonel Sir Henry Rawlinson's column rushed the south laager northwest of Klerksdorp at daylight. Six Boers were killed, 10 wounded and 23 taken prisoners. He captured a 12 pounder, one pompom, complete, and two ammunition wagons with ammunition. Our casualties were three wounded.

"Colonel Plumer captured a field cornet and seven men, with ten wagons and 18 rifles.

"During Colonel Pilcher's operations in Orange River Colony seven Boers were killed."

General French has been reported captured by the Boers, with 500 of his men, in the hills northeast of Pretoria. London, while not crediting the report, is fully startled, for it is admitted that the general may have fallen into a trap set for him.

The news of the capture came through private sources, and the war office has received nothing to confirm it.

Lacking confirmatory information, the officials dispute the truth of the report.

This, however, does not relieve the tension, it being pointed out that General French, having had matters all his own way for some time, may have incautiously been led on by the Boers in a new campaign in the north and surrounded and captured while separated from the main body of his troops.

Dispatches from South Africa are eagerly awaited.

General French was last heard from in active skirmish at Vryheid, in the southeastern section of the Transvaal, where he arrived on March 25. With Dartnal's and Poultney's columns he had been sweeping the country, driving the Boers to the north, he reporting on his arrival having killed, wounded or captured 1,200 of the enemy during a seven weeks' campaign in the eastern Transvaal.

In addition he had also taken 7 guns, 1,000 rifles, 1,800 wagons and a large number of horses, cattle and sheep.

General French has since been at Pretoria, but his movements were not given in detail.

The British newspapers and magazines, commenting upon the alternating periods of hope and apprehension which characterize the later stages of the South African campaign, compare these with the later stages of the American war of independence as though to emphasize these fluctuations.

While the letters of responsible correspondents in Pretoria depict the situation in a rather despairing mood the Pretoria representative of The Daily Mail sends a dispatch of the most hopeful character.

"The next six weeks," he says, "will see a resumption of active campaigning. Lord Kitchener will renew his sweeping movements. He has an army of 250,000 efficient troops, including 60,000 mounted men, with a good supply of horses, 40,000 having been secured in Cape Colony alone.

"The army is in good spirits, and Lord Kitchener is satisfied with the progress of events, slow though it seems."

Peace Developments Expected.

CAPE TOWN, April 16.—It is officially announced that Generals Botha and De Wet were near Heilbron on April 8 and met again at Witkoppies on April 11. Some of the commandos are on leave of absence until today, when, it is said, developments may be expected in the matter of the peace negotiations.

Fifty Bishops Named.

ROME, April 16.—At a consistory yesterday the pope nominated 50 bishops. No North American bishop was named. There were several in Italy, France and Russia, and Mgr. Lunguiuto was appointed bishop of Panama at Colombia. The pope made an address to the cardinals in which he deplored the war which, he said, was being waged in several countries against Catholicism and the religious associations, such as that against the Jesuits. He expressed his condemnation of the proposition to introduce the law of divorce in Italy and deplored the socialist movement as due to a lack of religious training or belief.

Crowley Not Guilty.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, April 16.—Mr. Harold Crowley of Lockport, N. Y., son of ex-Congressman Crowley and an employee of the postal department, who was recently arrested on a charge of misappropriating postal funds, was formally arraigned yesterday and found not guilty The grand jury indicted him last Wednesday, and he was held in $2,500 bail, failing to furnish which he was locked up Mr. William H. Holt, United States district judge for the district of Porto Rico, will hold court at Ponce May 13.

Lost Life In Saving Others.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., April 16.—After having successfully rescued fellow workmen from what would probably have resulted in death, J. C. Wilson, a pipe fitter, whose home is in Salt Lake City, fell off a platform at the plant of the Ohio Steel company and struck on his head, dying instantly. Three fellow workmen of Wilson were at work on a high scaffold. They had been overcome by gas, when Wilson went to their aid. In a few minutes Wilson succumbed to gas and rolled off the platform.

High Water In the Rappahannock.

RICHMOND, April 16.—Fredericksburg reports the highest water in the Rappahannock since the year of the Johnstown flood. There has been great loss to tie and lumber cutters along the banks. Late last night the river was falling slowly. The James river above here did not reach the danger point at its highest, and it is now falling.

Two Men Drowned.

ROCKLAND, Me., April 16.—The capsizing of a dory in which three stonecutters were being rowed to the mainland from Long cove by a 12-year-old boy cost two lives. The drowned were named Colson and Hendricks, Swedes, who came here from Cape Ann, Mass., Saturday looking for work.

STEEL TRUST THREATENED.

Workmen at McKeesport, Pa., May Call For Closing of All Mills.

PITTSBURG, April 16.—About 200 workmen at the Dewees wood department of the American Sheet Steel company at McKeesport are out on strike. They demand the reinstatement of the workmen who were discharged, it is alleged, because they had organized a local branch of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers. All is quiet in the vicinity of the works.

The breach between the men and their employers is widening, however, and the situation may become serious very soon. The Amalgamated association officers seem determined and may demand that the advisory board exercise its power to suspend work in every department of the United States Steel corporation and close the coal mines supplying the mills with fuel.

A Monument to Lawton.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 16.—Daniel C. French, the designer of the Garfield memorial in Fairmount park, Philadelphia; the Richard M. Hunt memorial in Central park, New York, and many other monuments, will receive a commission from the Lawton Monument association to construct a memorial to General Henry W. Lawton, who was killed in the Philippines. Mr. French was chosen as a result of a long correspondence with the National Sculpture society. Governor Durbin, as ex officio chairman of the association, has taken an active interest in its work. About $4,000 has already been subscribed, and the association believes $2,000 additional can be obtained.

Miners Refuse to Obey Orders.

LOUISVILLE, April 16.—Coal miners to the number of 3,000 in Hopkins, Christian and Webster counties, this state, who were ordered some time ago by officials of the United Mine Workers to strike yesterday, failed to obey the order. Only about 2 per cent of the men are said to have struck, and the mines are operating as usual. There appears to be a difference of opinion between the miners and union officials, this being the second occasion on which the former have disregarded an order to strike.

Shamrock II's Launching.

NEW YORK, April 16.—David Barrie, American representative of Sir Thomas Lipton, has received a cable message from Sir Thomas that the Shamrock II, the challenger for the America's cup, would be launched on Saturday next and that the Marchioness of Dufferin would christen the vessel. The husband of the marchioness is commodore of the Royal Ulster Yacht club, through which Sir Thomas Lipton's present challenge and that of two years ago were sent to the New York Yacht club.

Pitcher Callahan Laid Up.

CHICAGO, April 16.—Pitcher James Callahan of the Chicago team of the American league has broke his right arm, and it will be at least a month before he is able to play. In a game played by the team Callahan was hit by a pitched ball on the arm. The injury was painful, but Callahan did not pay much attention to it. Yesterday morning when he visited a physician to see what was the matter with him he was told that one of the bones of the forearm had been fractured.

The losses are partly covered by insurance.

Morgan Buys a Dog.

LONDON, April 16.—"Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan's investments in British enterprises," says The Daily Mail this morning, "have thus far been confined to the purchase of a Scotch collie for £300. We are informed that the following is an authentic expression of his views: He declares that the steel trust will not make a specially aggressive fight for the control of the British market.

NEW YORK LEGISLATURE.

Vetoes by Van Wyck—Convict Work For Canals.

ALBANY, April 16.—Mayor Van Wyck of New York city returned three bills to the senate last night with vetoes. They were all referred to committees. One was Senator Hennessy's bill providing for the acquiring of land for a hospital in the Bronx. The mayor says that the bill is entirely unnecessary, as the city now has power to do such things. Another was the bill of Senator Cocks forbidding railroad construction on certain avenues in Jamaica. The mayor says that the constitution fully protects streets against railroad construction by allowing property holders' objections to stop them. The third was Senator Trainor's bill providing for different processes of summons in municipal courts. The mayor says that a commission is now at work on revision of the court procedure.

Senator Davis has introduced a bill designed to help curtail the expense of improving the canal. It provides that 6 per cent of the convicts in the state prisons shall in the event of the passage of the $26,000,000 improvement act be placed at work on the canal. The superintendent of public works shall designate the sections on which the work shall be done and shall erect barracks for the temporary care of the convicts and pay their living expenses and the expense of guarding them, taking it out of the appropriation for the new canal.

A flaw has been found in the trust company tax bill, and Senator Krum has introduced a bill to remedy it. It was found that the new bill taxed the companies three months during which they would have to pay a tax under existing laws. The bill provides for a refunding of the three months' tax by the state comptroller.

Odell Sends Five Vetoes.

ALBANY, April 16.—Governor Odell sent in a batch of five vetoes to the legislature last night. The principal bill vetoed is one introduced by Senator Donnelly authorizing the receiver of taxes in cities to commence proceedings to recover uncollected taxes amounting to over $10 levied against personal property, with interest from the day on which the assessment rolls were delivered to the proper officer. The governor declares that $10 is too small a sum for city officials to haggle over and that taxpayers might be unduly persecuted and the legal costs and disbursements amount to more than the tax itself.

Italian Minister Recalled.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—Baron Fava, the Italian embassador to the United States, who has served here longer than any other member of the diplomatic corps, has been recalled, and Marquis Obizzo Malispina di Carbonari, minister of Italy to the Argentine Republic, has been appointed in his place. This information came to the state department in a telegram from the United States embassy at Rome. No reason for Baron Fava's recall was stated in the dispatch. There were rumors several months ago that the Italian government would recall Baron Fava because of dissatisfaction, but nothing to confirm these has ever appeared from any authoritative source. His services here began in 1881.

A Lineman's Heroic Deed.

CUMBERLAND, Md., April 16.—John Cooper, chief lineman of the Baltimore and Ohio telegraph between Cumberland and Rockwood, saved a fast mail train from crashing into a freight train near Ellerslie, this county, by swimming Wills creek, which was a torrent from rain and melting snow, and repairing the broken wires. Had he crossed on the nearest bridge he would have been obliged to have come to Cumberland, and in the meantime an accident would in all probability have occurred. He risked his life by swimming the wild mountain stream.

Boston Horse Show Open.

BOSTON, April 16.—The Boston horse show, which for society is the greatest event of the spring season and which, with the grand opera season, is looked forward to for months, has begun at the Mechanics' building with considerable gayety and color at the ringside. The gathering of equines with blue blood pedigrees is remarkably good, fully up to the first show, which has always been referred to as the criterion for judgment.

Engineer Killed In a Wreck.

POINT PLEASANT, W. Va., April 16.—A south bound freight train on the Ohio River railroad ran through a temporary trestle near here. The engine and five cars went through and were destroyed. Engineer John Pennock of Parkersburg remained on his engine and was killed. Several trainmen were slightly injured.

Suicide at Glens Falls.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., April 16.—Mrs. Mary E. C. Centerbar of this village committed suicide at her home by the use of chloroform. She was found dead in bed by her sister, who had called to see her. A towel saturated with chloroform was over her face. The coroner pronounced the case one of suicide.

Claims Heavy Damages.

SYRACUSE, April 16.—Charles Edward Derby, the motorman of the car which went down with the James street bridge over the Oswego canal on the night of April 6, has brought action for $25,000 against the state because of his injuries. He was injured about the spine and also internally.

New Capital Selected.

SHANGHAI, April 16.—Advices from Sian-fu to the local mandarins assert that the court is preparing to go to Hsian-yang, in the province of Hupeh. The permanent officials of the six boards are described as having quietly left Peking for Sian-fu in anticipation of the selection of a new capital.

Electric Road For Lyons.

LYONS, N. Y., April 16.—The Newark Electric Railway company was incorporated with a capital of $50,000 to operate a five mile electric road from the New York Central and West Shore railroads to and through this village.

Another Load of Mules.

NEW ORLEANS, April 16.—The Elder, Dempster & Co. steamer Monterey has cleared for Cape Town with a cargo of 1,100 mules for the British government military operations in South Africa.

Trout Season Opens.

KINGSTON, N. Y., April 16.—The trout season opened yesterday, and hundreds of anglers are in the Catskills. The weather is still cold, and trout do not bite readily.

A TREASURE ISLAND

Ship Returns From a Gold Hunting Cruise.

WONDERFUL TALE OF PIRATE PLUNDER

Skipper Declares That the Search For Buried Wealth on an African Island Was Partially Successful.

NEW YORK, April 16.—The two masted schooner Kwasind, named after the strong man of Longfellow's "Hiawatha," came into port yesterday with the reiteration of a yarn that even the Indian Hercules might have found burdensome. It is about a pirate ship and treasure buried in a nameless coral island somewhere off the west coast of Africa. Captain Frederick T. Horton of the Kwasind said he had pledged himself not to reveal the latitude and longitude of the island and therefore wouldn't point it out on the chart. But he found it all right, he declares, and the representatives of speculators in piratical spoils landed on it and dug out of the soil an iron treasure chest of the regulation make as per all truly piratical tales containing more than enough silver and gold to pay for the expense of the expedition, computed to have cost about $15,000.

The Kwasind sailed from Flushing, N. Y., for the nameless island early in November. She had aboard besides Captain Horton and his crew of five men C. W. Henderson, E. H. Campbell and W. C. Spenney, a cousin of a member of the syndicate.

Henderson's story was that about 40 years ago, when he was a young man, he was an ordinary seaman aboard a slaver, the skipper of which was a Philadelphian of good family. The civil war came on, interrupting the slave traffic, and the adventuresome skipper decided to turn pirate. He cruised along the Spanish and South American coasts and, being a good Protestant, employed himself robbing Catholic churches.

He accumulated a great cargo of jewels and bullion and sailed away. While the ship was off the west coast of Africa the skipper fell sick and died. Some said that he had been poisoned. It was perfectly proper that he should be in a truly conventional pirate story. Be that as it may, he desired to be buried ashore.

The first land sighted by the lookout was an island off the African coast. The skipper's body was landed on the island and buried. Henderson, who was a favorite with the skipper, promised him that some time, if it were in his (Henderson's) power, he would return to the island and bring the bones of the skipper to his native land. After the burial all hands rowed back to the ship.

There was trouble aboard, and she was beached through a conspiracy of the mate and other navigators on a little coral island of about seven acres. All hands landed on the island, taking with them the great treasure of the ship. The men in the last boat to leave the ship set her afire. The crew divided into factions and engaged in battle until there were only two men alive, Henderson and a sailor familiar with navigation who died last year in New Orleans. They were taken from the island by a passing vessel. Henderson and the other survivor saw most of the treasure buried. The man who died at New Orleans made a chart of the island, which Henderson obtained.

Captain Horton was somewhat reticent about the subsequent proceedings and wouldn't let his log talk for him. Some time in the early part of January the island was found. The captain was not permitted to go ashore, but he says he saw the small iron chest containing the bullion brought aboard. He learned, he declares, that the treasure seekers didn't find the gold and silver where Henderson said he had seen it buried.

It had been dug up, presumably by the relatives of the piratical Philadelphia skipper, several years before. Henderson expressed the belief that his shipmate, who died in New Orleans, had given the secret to the Philadelphia folks, who had sent out an expedition and secured most of the treasure.

The small war chest was found on the other side of the island.

China Thanks Japan.

LONDON, April 16.—According to a dispatch to The Daily Express from Tokyo, dated yesterday, the detachments of Russian marines stationed at Ma-san-pho have been recalled owing to Japanese representations. "The Chinese imperial court, through the Chinese minister at Tokyo, has thanked Japan for assisting China to resist the Manchurian convention," says the Shanghai correspondent of The Standard, "and has asked for Japanese aid and support in any future contingencies."

Thunderstorms In Germany.

BERLIN, April 16.—From various parts of Germany come reports of heavy thunderstorms. Lightning killed three persons and maimed four others near Fredelsloh, Hanover. Heavy snows have fallen in Rudolstadt and throughout the whole of Thuringia, while the rains have caused the Oder to overflow, covering large districts in Silesia. The Rhine is still very high at Cologne, and the district of Caub is flooded.

Russian Towns Under Guard.

LONDON, April 16.—"Until after the Russian Easter," says the Odessa correspondent of The Daily Express, "the towns of Odessa, Kiev, Kharkov, Elizabethgrad, Ekaterinosla and Nikolaiev will be held virtually in a state of siege All the public buildings are occupied by troops. The streets are patrolled by Cossacks, and assemblages are forbidden. These conditions result from a fear of the renewal of the student riots."

After Mountain Robbers.

BERLIN, April 16.—The German war office has received the following dispatch from Count von Waldersee: "Major von Schoenberg, with companies of infantry, mounted infantry, cavalry and artillery, has been sent from here to disperse robbers in the mountains northeast of Chang-ping-chau, 30 kilometers north of Peking. A company of troops from Chang-ping-chau will intercept the retreat of the robbers."

Appointment of Lyman Confirmed.

ALBANY, April 16.—The senate last night received from Governor Odell the appointment of Henry H. Lyman as state excise commissioner to succeed himself. He was immediately confirmed, as were also the new managers of the Rome Custodial asylum and the Rochester Industrial school.

Well Done.

The Daily Press desires to thank Councilman R. I. Tolles, chairman of the street committee, and Street Commissioner Andrew J. Gavett, for providing for the proper cleaning of that portion of Green brook which can be seen from the new bridge connecting Madison avenue and Duer street. The view of the brook has heretofore been anything but picturesque with a motley collection of tin-cans and other rubbish strewn along the course of the stream. Two large cartloads of this rubbish were collected and taken away.

While the street department of the city is not supposed to be responsible for the condition of the brooks which flow through the city, this cleaning of the brook was an eminently proper thing to do. There will never be any objection to the small amount of money spent in the work. The situation as it existed was not a credit to the city. The Borough Board of Health took in the case and acted. The Plainfield Board did nothing. Then the officials of the street department realized the necessity of action and took the burden of the work upon themselves. They are to be commended for it.

But all the efforts of the officials of the city and borough will be in vain if the owners of the property along the brook do not co-operate in the attempt to keep the brook clear. Within forty-eight hours after the cleaning of the brook by men from the street department, a quantity of waste paper was blown into the stream. Those business men, whose establishments are located near the brook, should see that particular care is taken not to allow waste paper to be heaped up where the wind will scatter it over the surrounding property and into the brook.

The history of the introduction of the automobile into general use somewhat resembles that of the bicycle. There was a day when most of the horses through this section would rear and plunge at the very sight of a bicycle while the sudden approach of one of those silent steeds often resulted in a runaway. Now that the automobiles are becoming more and more frequent on the public thoroughfares in this part of Jersey, reports of accidents and runaways as a result of encounters between these vehicles and horses are numerous. It is only a question of a little time, however, before the automobile will be a common sight on the road and horses will cease to be afraid of them.

The improvements at the city sewage disposal plant are going steadily forward. All through the State considerable interest is being taken in Plainfield's attempt to solve the sewage disposal question. While we naturally do not hear so much about it here, there are other cities in New Jersey which have had far more trouble than Plainfield has had in trying to provide the proper means for the disposal of sewage. The cities which have been sewering into the Passaic river are, at present, deeply interested in any plan which promises to offer them some relief. Then there is North Plainfield which has just decided to investigate the subject.

Hundreds of people, who pass along North avenue every day and see the signs of activity and bustle where the wreck of the old Thompson building stood for so many months, are thankful at the prospect of another business block on that thoroughfare. When the old ruins faced every stranger who came into town by the way of the Jersey Central Railroad, they did not give a wonderfully fine impression of the enterprise of the city. With a handsome business structure erected there, a far different idea will go forth.

While nature has been attending to the sprinkling of the streets herself for the last few days, the season is here when the street sprinkler will be gladly welcomed once more. It does not take long for the fine macadam roads to dry up and the dust begins to fly within twenty-four hours after the windup of the storm.

Plainfield merchants are offering a remarkably large line of spring goods of all kinds this year. The wise purchaser will visit the local stores before taking the trouble of a pilgrimage to New York. The prices here compare very favorably with those in the great city and the grade of goods is just as high.

The city High School is going to open its baseball season tomorrow if the weather happens to be good. The other two schools have already taken part in several contests on the diamond.

There is still a possibility of retaining Plainfield's only theatre. It is to be hoped that the proposed syndicate will be successful in its attempt to organize and obtain control of Music Hall.

Consolidation of trolley companies has some advantages. There will then be no petty animosities between companies from which the public will have to suffer.

The only immediate prospect of relief from the high water rates is in the introduction of water meters by the Plainfield Water Supply Company.

Spring seems to be having its troubles this year. Here it is the middle of April and the spring flowers are hardly out yet.

Another addition is soon to be made to the already long list of lawyers who have offices in this city.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence.)

Dunellen, April 16—A very quiet wedding took place at the home of Mrs. L S. Palmer, on Greenbrook road, yesterday, when her daughter, Miss Mary Palmer, was united in marriage to W. S. Shotwell, of Brooklyn. Only a few immediate friends of the family were present. Rev. A. S. Phelps was the officiating clergyman. The ceremony was devoid of all display, the young people being unattended. Mr Shotwell is a New York broker and is quite well known in the borough, having spent several summers at the Palmer farm. The young couple will take up their residence in Plainfield.

The goods belonging to Col. W. B. Hayes, which have been stored in the Hetfield building since the owner's departure from town, were disposed of at auction by Constable Groves, of New Brunswick, yesterday afternoon. The goods were bought by Lawyer Harry Cook, o New Brunswick, who held a claim against the Colonel. It is said the price paid was $125.

(Special Correspondence.)

New Market, April 16—Employes of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company placed a telephone in C. T. Rogers' office yesterday, establishing the long hoped for connection with Plainfield. SOUTH PLAINFIELD

(Special Correspondence.)

South Plainfield, April 16—At the annual business meeting of the Baptist church which was held Saturday, there were many interesting facts brought out by the numerous reports, in regard to its growth during the past twelve months. Not only has the gain in membership been very satisfactory but the spiritual interest has been correspondingly so. According to Rev J. A. Cubberly, the pastor, twenty-seven persons were admitted during the past year, making a total membership of 125. Two members have been dropped for non-observance of rules. The Ladies' Aid Society was shown to have a membership of forty-seven. It has paid the organist's salary and has donated $150 to the church. Reports were also received from the Women's Missionary Society and the Farther Light Society, each of which has contributed $18 for missionary purposes

The Christian Endeavor Society now numbers twenty-eight members, a gain of eight. It has furnished the church with new song books and Easter music. The Junior C. E. has a membership of seventeen.

Treasurer R B. Manning gave an encouraging report. The receipts from all sources have been $901.90, while the expenditures were $879 16. There is still a debt of $387 99 for janitor's salary and interest which is partially offset by the sum of $229 due from delinquent subscribers. The trustees asked that some means be taken to obliterate this debt.

Deacons Campbell and J. C Morris, whose terms as trustees have expired, were re elected, as were also Clerk Charles H. Brantingham and Sunday school Superintendent R B. Manning. Albert Brundage, Bethune Dunham and William H. Manning were elected to the advisory committee. Mrs. J. A. Cubberly was appointed local manager to the Home for the Aged and R B Manning was re-instated treasurer.

Henry Meeker, while riding his wheel on the road between New Market and South Plainfield, caught the front tire in a wagon rut and was thrown forcibly to the ground. At the same time he smashed the front wheel of his bicycle into small pieces.

The regular Tuesday evening prayer-meeting will be held this evening in the lecture room of the church. All are invited to attend.

The Ladies' Aid Society will meet Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Oscar Thorn.

Today is pay day for the employes of the Lehigh Valley Railroad.

Freiberg. Daß der Bergbau in hiesiger Gegend immer mehr und mehr im Rückgang sich befindet, dafür liefert einen neuen Beweis, daß dieser Tage der Grubenvorstand von „Gesegnete Bergmanns-Hoffnung Fundgrube" zu Obergruna bekannt gab, daß die Gewerkschaft zufolge Aufgabe ihres Bergbaurechtes zu bestehen aufgehört habe. Kurze Zeit zuvor hatte die Gewerkschaft „Einigkeit-Fundgrube" bei Brand sich aufgelöst und auf ihre Bergbaurechte Verzicht geleistet.

Letztere soll unter Zuziehung von Sachverständigen in eine Gesellschaft mit beschränkter Haftung umgewandelt werden, um sie in dieser Form den minderjährigen Enkeln zu erhalten.—Einen schrecklichen Tod auf hoher See fand der an Bord des Hamburger Dampfers „Hamm" bedienstete Koch Andreas. Während der Reise von Swansee nach Limerick (Irland) begab er sich auf die Kombüse, um den kleinen Kombüsenschornstein nach der entsprechenden Windrichtung zu drehen. Dabei wurde er über Bord geschleudert, gerieth in das Schraubengewinde und wurde in Stücke gerissen, so daß die einzelnen Körpertheile alsbald in die Tiefe sanken.

THE SANDWICH MAN.

His Income Is Not Princely, But His Cares Are Light.

Protected by a Union Which Keeps a Close Eye on Scabs — Other Unique Methods of Street Advertising.

[Special New York Letter.]

THE sun was shining brightly, the air was mild, and it seemed like spring. On the corner a wheezy hand-organ was striving its best to please. Slowly ambling up the street was a "sandwich man." His clothes were rusty, his beard was scraggly, and on his head was a "plug" hat of the vintage of '81. He pulled regularly at a small black pipe, and his air was one of leisure.

Of course you know what a "sandwich man" is. He isn't like a "gingerbread man"—good to eat. He is far from tempting. He is a man of flesh and blood, and that is only his "professional" name. He makes his living—40 or 50 cents a day—walking up and down the streets of the big city, bearing on straps across his shoulders two large signs—one before and one behind—advertising the wares of some dealer or manufacturer.

This particular "sandwich man" whom I had noticed paused at the corner of William street. He looked wistfully at a basket of big molasses cake that an old woman had deposited on the curbing.

"How much?" asked I of the old woman.

"A penny apiece," said she.

I produced a nickel and the deal was closed.

"My treat," said I to the "sandwich man," as I handed the five cakes in a paper bag to him.

"T'anks, boss," said he, and for a few seconds he was a very busy man.

"Hard work?" asked I, for a starter.

"Naw," said the sandwich man in a friendly tone—the molasses cakes had opened his heart. "'Tain't work 'tall. If yer ain't doin' this ther cop'll tackle yer w'en yer standin' on ther corner, an' say: 'Move on.' An' if yer must move yer might as well be movin' w'en there's sumthin' in it fer yer. Yer can't hang aroun' ther barrel houses all day. That's sure, boss. This is a good perfession. Before I joined ther union—"

"Union? A union for sandwich men?"

"Sure. Mebbe yer don't t'ink sandwich men mus' be pertected. Well, I guess they does, boss. Before I joined ther union I dropped inter Casey's place. I was good an' hungry—Casey keeps a 15-cent-open-all-night feedin' house on Third avenue. I said: 'Mis-

ONE OF THE STREET ACTORS.

ter Casey, would yer please an' give me er handout?'

"Casey says, says he: 'Would you carry ther banner?'

"'Carry anything,' says I, an' I starts on me mission wid ther tags tacked on ter me. Down by Broome street I sees two gents wid ther boards before an' after them. One taps me on ther shoulder and he says:

"'Where's yer card, Blokie?'

"'W'at card?' said I.

"'Union,' says he.

"'Go 'long,' says I. 'Tain't much of a story, boss. Me back is all right now. All Casey lost was his banner. I pays me twinty-five cints an' I'm in ther union."

"Move on,'" said a policeman who had just come around the corner. The sandwich man ambled on up the street, puffing away at his pipe.

On Park row seven men were marching in Indian file. Swung across the shoulders of each man was an advertising "sandwich" informing all who cared to read that a certain manufacturer made an excellent brand of hair dye that would change one's flowing locks to any desired hue. Wherever one goes there is the sandwich man.

And it is not the sandwich man alone that is the walking advertisement. With the first evidence of spring the principal streets of the city are traveled by men bearing quaint banners and queer devices on their backs and in their hands, forcing on the attention of the public various articles—wearing apparel, foods and nostrums. Over 4,000 men in New York alone make their living by perambulating the thoroughfares and advertising the wares of their employers.

There are various grades of this class of work—just as there are grades in other lines of business—that call for a different scale of wages. The sandwich man is about the lowest in the scale. He simply is a machine. The "sandwich" is swung across his back and he must walk up and down a certain beat for ten hours. But the sandwich man does not go around looking for his own job among the advertisers. There are certain advertising firms in the city to whom the merchant who desires to have street advertising applies. Those firms furnish the sandwich men and others who advertise goods on the streets in different ways.

One popuar form of street advertising is for a man, dressed up for the occasion, to portray the character of a countryman let loose in a big city. The men who do this work call themselves "street actors." It is the highest type of street advertising. Their duties consist in walking along the streets—generally the middle of the road—with an old-fashioned carpet bag in their hand. They must gawp at the high buildings, stare into the shop windows and in every way make themselves conspicuous as a "greenhorn."

One man in New York is so clever at this work that he receives three dollars a day, which is remarkably good pay for "street-acting." I have seen half Broadway uptown for the distance of nearly a block looking and laughing at his antics. He, of course, is a "star." The usual pay for the performance is $1.25 a day.

Another high grade of street advertising is the jackass richly caparisoned and covered with a long blanket of bright colors, bearing some advertisement in glaring letters. On the back of the beast is a boy attired like a circus prince. This form costs the man who believes in letting the public know what he has about three dollars a day, but it is said to be very effective.

The giant—that is, the man on stilts—is a familiar type to all who live in or who visit the cities. When he is a good acrobat, and doesn't fall down too many times and get mixed up in a street jam, he is worth about one dollar a day. The bicycle firm that has been advertising its wheels with a four-story specimen of its work ridden through the streets by an expert has attracted some attention, but has been forbidden the use of the congested highways.

"Yes, it is a queer business," said an old advertising man the other day, "and few people realize the extent to which it has grown. Advertising outdoors is older than advertising in the newspapers. Men began putting up signs long before they utilized the columns of the journals. The daily paper first put them in the way of using printer's ink, but in the start they were very sparing of the space they employed. The merchant in New York who first used a half page was looked upon by his competitors as crazy and they all predicted his failure. Robert Bonner was regarded as insane when he came out with a full page in one of the New York dailies reiterating one fact about his business for column after column. Then there was a run on newspaper advertising and the out-door advertising waned. But within the last few years the outdoor business has started up again and every possible form is adopted, while the newspaper methods are as fierce as ever. People of the present age are ever looking for novelty. If your method of advertising is not bizarre you are wasting your money."

And it is the desire for the unique, for the odd and the sensational, that has created the "sandwich man" who trudges wearily up and down the streets for his pittance of 40 cents; that has made possible the "street actor," with his monkeyish grimaces and awkward gestures; the giant on his wabbly stilts; the circus prince and the jackass, and the other monstrosities of the street who make fools of themselves that they may not die in the gutter, and "keep moving" because there is "something in it."

BLACK COSTUMES.

They Are of General Utility in the Wardrobe.

A black gown is a necessity in every wardrobe. It always looks well, and there are many occasions when nothing else is so suitable. The same may be said of black evening costumes—they are more generally serviceable than any others and may be varied infinitely by the addition of colored accessories of one kind and another. Net, crepe de chine, spangled or chenille embroidered tulle, taffeta and lace are all attractive materials for a black evening gown, and grenadine is also pretty and serviceable.

Many low cut gowns have sleeves of elbow length or even full length, although the latter are usually transparent.

Stitching continues to be excessively used as a decoration, appearing on all sorts of material. A picture is given today which shows a bodice of hussar blue cloth decorated in this manner. The bodice is perfectly plain and tight and is entirely covered with lines of stitching which run diagonally, forming points at the back and front. The basque is pointed and is formed of four stitched folds hemmed with black cord. There is a triple pointed pelerine to match the basque and a high, double, flaring collar. The sleeves are stitched diagonally and have two flaring cuffs extending over the hand.

ing wear are often very elaborate. Plain and figured silks of all kinds, silk handkerchief squares, crepe de chine, lace and guipure are immensely employed, and oriental embroidery in silk and metal threads upon a coarse ground of linen or cotton is now often utilized as a decoration.

The cut shows a gown of mastic cloth. The skirt is closed at the sides by silver buttons and tabs bordered with stitched bands of white cloth, showing a lower skirt of rose taffeta. The tight bodice has a short, round basque and is trimmed with white cloth bands, which outline tabs in front and around the shoulders. These tabs have each a silver button. The plastron to which the front tabs fasten is a prolongation of the top of the skirt. The collar and full chemisette are of rose taffeta. The tight sleeves are ornamented at the wrist by tabs, buttons and stitched bands over plaitings of rose taffeta. The hat is of stretched mastic silk trimmed with large pink poppies with black hearts.

Cupid Seated the Manchu Dynasty on China's Throne

Love for a Slave Girl Was the Power That Swayed the Avenging Sword of Gen. Sankwei

CUPID, the little god of love, has played a prominent part in the history of this world of ours. Through the ancient and middle ages, even more than in modern history, love of woman made and unmade nations.

Prosaic China, the China that we know, seems the last place in which to look for a love story of this kind, and yet the rulers of China to-day owe their occupancy of their positions to love of woman, the love that a great soldier bore a slave girl in his household.

The rise of the Manchu dynasty in China is probably the most interesting chapter of all Chinese history of which there is any authentic record. The story of the magnificent courage displayed by a mere handful of northern invaders fighting hundreds of thousands of the sons of southern China is as enthralling to the student of history as the most dramatic stories to the lover of fiction. When to this is added the interest of a real love story in which a great Chinese general and a slave girl figure as hero and heroine the interest but deepens.

For nearly three centuries the Ming dynasty had ruled China, first with a capitol in Nanking and afterwards in Peking. Experience had taught the rulers that the foes most dreaded came from the north, but as a protection against them they pointed to the great wall which stood as a massive breastworks between China and the savage tribes of Manchuria, and later that wall proved to be the fighting ground for the Chinese throne. Of it the late Rounseville Wildman says: "The bones of countless armies lie on both sides of this line; and the great wall might stand as the most gigantic gravestone in history."

The rise of the Manchus began under Narhachu, who first welded together the scattered tribes of Manchurian Siberia, which covered the territory from the great wall to the Amur river, the territory for which Russia is now contending. The then emperor of China incurred the enmity of Narhachu by supporting the claims of a rival chief, and he determined upon a retaliatory movement. It took but the first engagement between his own comparatively small army and the thousands who marched against him under the banners of the Chinese Emperor Wanli to prove to him the superiority of his forces over those of China, and he pushed his way southward into the Liaotung peninsula and again defeated and routed another Chinese army far superior in numbers to his own. But Narhachu died in 1626, a year after he had entered the Liaotung peninsula, and was succeeded in the chieftainship of the Manchus by his son Tientsung, who continued the war against China, but was defeated and driven back from the very walls of Peking. In place of the Manchus came two formidable rebellions headed by Li and Chang. The former was successful. He reduced several of the great provinces of China to subjugation, captured Peking and proclaimed himself emperor of China. His descendants might be ruling China to-day but for one seemingly trivial circumstance. He permitted the seizure of a beautiful slave girl belonging to the imperial Gen. Sankwei, and afterwards presented her to one of his officers.

Sankwei had himself fought the Manchus successfully, and at the command of his father was at the time he heard of the seizure of the slave girl, whom he loved, on his way to Peking to submit to the new emperor. But this act so aroused his anger that instead of continuing his march to the capital he sought an allegiance with the Manchu regent and invited him to join him in the subjugation of the empire. Dorgun, the regent, accepted the proposition, and they formed a junction of their forces. Against these Li marched an army of 200,000 men, and one of the most noted battles of eastern history followed. In the van of Li's army was the father of Sankwei, who pleaded with his son to submit to Li, but love of a slave girl rose above filial obedience, so dear to the heart of every Chinaman, and he refused, only to see his father murdered before his eyes.

The armies of Sankwei and the Manchu regent were greatly outnumbered, but to his lesser number Sankwei brought not only excellent generalship but the courage of an outraged lover, and he won. For miles he drove the defeated forces of Li, slaying them by the thousands.

The defeated emperor Li was followed to Peking by the revengeful lover, who cared nothing for the empire that might have been his had he so desired. That was left to the Manchus, and Dorgun proclaimed his youthful charge emperor of the most populous nation of the earth.

The defeated Li retreated southward, closely followed by Sankwei. Battle after battle followed, in all of which the tireless, remorseless lover was successful. The troops of Li deserted by the hundreds and thousands, and he was finally left without even a personal bodyguard and with no means of securing the necessities of life. What would have been his fate had he fallen into the hands of the enraged Sankwei, who had not only the death of his mistress to avenge, but the death of his father and his family as well, is terrible to contemplate. But from such a fate Li was spared by being killed by rustics whom he was plundering for food, and Sankwei got nothing but his corpse.

Of this incident in Chinese history Rounseville Wildman, in the last book which he ever wrote, entitled "China's Open Door," published by the Lothrop company, says:

"This slave girl, who is historically nameless, gave the present dynasty its throne. But for her the Manchus would have remained to this day a league of scattered tribes and malcontents on the frontier of China. Sankwei never saw her again, but he burned on her grave a dynasty, a city, and gave a vast empire to a small body of foreigners. The queue that every Chinaman wears might justly be claimed as a badge of mourning for the beautiful slave girl of the general Sankwei."

The queue as a feature of the Chinaman's dress came into prominence during the first reign of the Manchu dynasty. Shunchi, the first of the Manchu emperors, had considerable trouble in subjugating all parts of the empire which had fallen to him so easily. Spies and rebels lurked about everywhere, and he ordered that all Chinimen should adopt the Tartar mode of wearing the hair in a long braided queue as a sign of submission to the new dynasty. For nearly half a century the order was stoutly resisted by many, and many executions were ordered because of such resistance, but the mandate was gradually enforced, and for more than two centuries the queue has been the distinguishing mark of the Chinaman.

Bicycle Racing at Buffalo.

Providing the programme arranged at present for the world's championship bicycle races in connection with the Pan-American exposition at Buffalo, N. Y., is accepted, there will be given in the sprint, and middle-distance professional races of the great exposition meet, about $4,000. There will be four days of racing in all, probably the last four days of the week. The foreign entry blanks will have to be sent out immediately, as the European riders will want ample time in which to make their preparations for their expected visit to America. A considerable invasion of the cycling hosts of both Europe and the antipodes is promised. While there is considerable disappointment among the racing men over the decision of the exposition authorities to hold but the one meet, this disappointment will be greatly mitigated by the large prize list offered for that one meet.

Growing Importance of the Game of "Squash" in America

SQUASH, squash tennis, squashball and squash rackets is a game that, despite its many unfortunate names, has risen to the dignity of having a national tournament and national champions. While it may never attain the popularity of outdoor tennis or golf, the sport is destined to interest a great following, especially in the vicinity of New York, where the very rich people have declared in its favor and built courts in their residences and in their clubs. At Harrow, in England, squash rackets is as great a sport in its season as is cricket or tennis. It was but a short time ago that the Tuxedo Racquet and Tennis club gave a tournament which was won by T. S. Tailer, a well-known eastern player, who has the custody of the $500 trophy emblematic of the championship.

How did the game get such a queer name? When first played a soft rubber ball with a hole in it was used, and the player, using a racket, would hit hard against the wall. Of course the ball would "squash," hence the name. Now the ball has no hole in it. Sometimes, when the lawn tennis ball is used and a modified and small lawn tennis racket is swung by the player, the game becomes known as squash tennis. If a small racket and a small uncovered ball are used the contestants frequently call it squash rackets. Two players facing the front wall of the court alternately hit the ball with their rackets, the object being to have the ball strike above a certain height and within certain limits. Yet there is considerable to the game. Eustace Miles, amateur champion of this country at rackets and squash, and a writer on the game of squash, is one of those vigorous athletes whose word that he saves doctor's bills by playing squash should be convincing.

According to Mr. Miles, the court may be about 31 feet by 16 feet and need cost no more than $500. If the enthusiast had to play in a flat building he might make the wall of a large room serve for the necessary face of the court. A single wall with a line on it two feet from the floor would serve the purpose. But the best courts have three or four walls. One New Yorker has built a fine squash court on the roof of his house, and George Gould has added squash courts to his elaborate tennis court buildings. Mr. Gould is an excellent sportsman, and he says that squash is the very best practice for tennis—better than tennis itself, for the player has more strokes in a shorter time and has to keep his eye in good form.

How many times have the spectators at a lawn tennis match declared that something should be done to keep the balls from going out of the court? The experts in action at tennis give grand exhibitions of "rallying," volleying and returning, which are improved upon in a good squash court. The walls serve to throw the ball back when a particularly hard or wild stroke is made and enable the contestants to keep up the play. Champion Miles says that when he played in the opening match at the Marion club courts near Philadelphia—the home of a great army of golfers who play squash in winter and during the wet spring weather—he kept up some rallies to over 100 returns, although both he and his colleague were hitting hard nearly all the time. The long rallies, he says, and the various angles the ball makes with the walls furnish the same fascinating features that are afforded by court tennis and racquets. To master those angles is as delightful to the player as to gain facility in mastering angles on a billiard table.

To persuade tennis players to try squash, Champion Miles adds that the game can be made a very cheap one after the court is provided. Should the player wish, he can use an old lawn tennis racket and a dilapidated tennis ball for squash. By stripping the cover from a tennis ball you have an excellent substitute for the real squash ball. If played in an unpainted court electric lights do not cast shadows that will interfere with fast play. Continuing, Mr. Miles says:

"The scoring of the game is very simple. There are several ways in which we can score, and this gives the game great variety. But the commonest is for the player who first gets 15 points to win the game. If two players are not evenly matched then the weaker can have a handicap—that is, he can start with seven points. Thus any two players can meet in a friendly match.

"The game is not so simple as it looks, for there is a vast deal to be learned in it. To avoid putting the ball too high or too low, to place the ball now down this side and now down that, to stand in the sideways position, all these and many other features of good play, are not acquired in a moment. The sideways position is with the face or head of the racket up before the stroke, as at golf. But at golf the player hits a stationary ball at his leisure; at squash he has to hit a moving ball rapidly. He has to form one position or another the reverse of this in a moment if he wishes to make a face stroke. Then, again, he has to choose whether to let the ball bounce before he strikes it or to take it on the volley, as he has to choose at other racket games, such as lawn tennis.

"This demands quick judgment. Hence there is opportunity for real skill, and there is no other game in which a good player can beat a bad player in every point, and in which at the same time the bad player will play well enough to enjoy himself.

"In squash there is none of the despair of the golfer, who takes 50 strokes for a single hole. It is partly for these reasons that the game is so excellent for business men, even if they have had no previous training in ball games. In English schools we play these games 'from our youth even up to now.' Business men too often give up exercise because usually they can only take it (at least in an interesting form) during the daylight or business hours. This applies to rackets and court tennis, as well as to baseball, football, etc., which latter games are seldom kept up after the age of 25, especially by business men. Golf also demands daylight. It takes a long time and is expensive. So business men will often read the paper, 'talk shop,' play cards, drink, smoke, etc., before their dinner. Gymnastics do not attract them."

But Mr. Miles knows better than many others the men and women that are taking up squash in the east. Among the clubs that own squash courts are the Boston, Newport, New York, Ardsley, Haverford and Tuxedo country and golf clubs. Some of the wealthiest people in the United States have become devoted squash players.

"Women can and do play the game remarkably well," continues Mr. Miles. "One need only to cite Mrs. Duncan, Miss Potter, Mrs. J. J. Vatable, Mrs. T. S. Tailer and Mrs. W. R. Garrison. The health of the women is of vital importance for the health of the nation, and I have always endeavored to show that squash is a real inducement to women to take healthy and regular exercise.

"How the American public schools need winter games! I don't mean gymnastics or track athletics, but games. At Marlboro we used to play squash in the open air, even on rainy days. In England we had football and hockey in the cold season, and still we had squash, 'fives' and racquets. Squash is invaluable as a supplementary form of exercise to football, etc. Future tennis and racket players are the squash players of to-day.

"Another reason why squash is a very healthy game is that it promotes heart action and induces the most abnormal sort of perspiration. One man recently declared that it was the most pleasant form of a Turkish bath he had ever taken." E. G. WESTLAKE.

Rather Late Payment.

Richard Brinsley Sheridan was continually in debt—continually being dunned for sums loaned him. From a person of recent acquaintance he had borrowed quite a sum. Meeting a short time afterward, Sheridan remarked: "Well, as I live, I owe you money. When shall I pay you back?"

"Oh, any time you set," answered the acquaintance.

"Well! well! any time? Let's say judgment day," answered Sheridan. Then after a pause, he added: "Judgment day will be such a busy day; let's make it the day after."

It is needless to remark the money has not been paid.—Argonaut.

THE SANDWICH MAN.

His Income Is Not Princely, But His Cares Are Light.

Protected by a Union Which Keeps a Close Eye on Scabs — Other Unique Methods of Street Advertising.

[Special New York Letter.]

THE sun was shining brightly, the air was mild, and it seemed like spring. On the corner a wheezy hand-organ was striving its best to please. Slowly ambling up the street was a "sandwich man." His clothes were rusty, his beard was scraggly, and on his head was a "plug" hat of the vintage of '81. He pulled regularly at a small black pipe, and his air was one of leisure.

Of course you know what a "sandwich man" is. He isn't like a "gingerbread man"—good to eat. He is far from tempting. He is a man of flesh and blood, and that is only his "professional" name. He makes his living—40 or 50 cents a day—walking up and down the streets of the big city, bearing on straps across his shoulders two large signs—one before and one behind—advertising the wares of some dealer or manufacturer.

This particular "sandwich man" whom I had noticed paused at the corner of William street. He looked wistfully at a basket of big molasses cake that an old woman had deposited on the curbing.

"How much?" asked I of the old woman.

"A penny apiece," said she.

I produced a nickel and the deal was closed.

"My treat," said I to the "sandwich man," as I handed the five cakes in a paper bag to him.

"T'anks, boss," said he, and for a few seconds he was a very busy man.

"Hard work?" asked I, for a starter.

"Naw," said the sandwich man in a friendly tone—the molasses cakes had opened his heart. "'Tain't work 'tall. If yer ain't doin' this ther cop'll tackle yer w'en yer standin' on ther corner, an' say: 'Move on.' An' if yer must move yer might as well be movin' w'en there's sumthin' in it fer yer. Yer can't hang aroun' ther barrel houses all day. That's sure, boss. This is a good perfession. Before I joined ther union—"

"Union? A union for sandwich men?"

"Sure. Mebbe yer don't t'ink sandwich men mus' be pertected. Well, I guess they does, boss. Before I joined ther union I dropped inter Casey's place. I was good an' hungry—Casey keeps a 15-cent-open-all-night feedin' house on Third avenue. I said: 'Mister Casey, would yer please an' give me er handout?'

ONE OF THE STREET ACTORS.

"Casey says, says he: 'Would you carry ther banner?'"

"'Carry anything,' says I, an' I starts on me mission wid ther tags tacked on ter me. Down by Broome street I sees two gents wid ther boards before an' after them. One taps me on ther shoulder and he says:

"'Where's yer card, Blokie?'

"'Wat card?' said I.

"'Union,' says he.

"'Go 'long,' says I. 'Tain't much of a story, boss. Me back is all right now. All Casey lost was his banner. I pays me twinty-five cints an' I'm in ther union."

"Move on,'" said a policeman who had just come around the corner. The sandwich man ambled on up the street, puffing away at his pipe.

On Park row seven men were marching in Indian file. Swung across the shoulders of each man was an advertising "sandwich" informing all who cared to read that a certain manufacturer made an excellent brand of hair dye that would change one's flowing locks to any desired hue. Wherever one goes there is the sandwich man.

And it is not the sandwich man alone that is the walking advertisement. With the first evidence of spring the principal streets of the city are traveled by men bearing quaint banners and queer devices on their backs and in their hands, forcing on the attention of the public various articles—wearing apparel, foods and nostrums. Over 4,000 men in New York alone make their living by perambulating the thoroughfares and advertising the wares of their employers.

There are various grades of this class of work—just as there are grades in other lines of business—that call for a different scale of wages. The sandwich man is about the lowest in the scale. He simply is a machine. The "sandwich" is swung across his back and he must walk up and down a certain beat for ten hours. But the sandwich man does not go around looking for his own job among the advertisers. There are certain advertising firms in the city to whom the merchant who desires to have street advertising applies. Those firms furnish the sandwich men and others who advertise goods on the streets in different ways.

One popuar form of street advertising is for a man, dressed up for the occasion, to portray the character of a countryman let loose in a big city. The men who do this work call themselves "street actors." It is the highest type of street advertising. Their duties consist in walking along the streets—generally the middle of the road—with an old-fashioned carpet bag in their hand. They must gawp at the high buildings, stare into the shop windows and in every way make themselves conspicuous as a "greenhorn."

One man in New York is so clever at this work that he receives three dollars a day, which is remarkably good pay for "street-acting." I have seen half Broadway uptown for the distance of nearly a block looking and laughing at his antics. He, of course, is a "star." The usual pay for the performance is $1.25 a day.

Another high grade of street advertising is the jackass richly caparisoned and covered with a long blanket of bright colors, bearing some advertisement in glaring letters. On the back of the beast is a boy attired like a circus prince. This form costs the man who believes in letting the public know what he has about three dollars a day, but it is said to be very effective.

The giant—that is, the man on stilts—is a familiar type to all who live in or who visit the cities. When he is a good acrobat, and doesn't fall down too many times and get mixed up in a street jam, he is worth about one dollar a day The bicycle firm that has been advertising its wheels with a four-story specimen of its work ridden through the streets by an expert has attracted some attention, but has been forbidden the use of the congested highways.

"Yes, it is a queer business," said an old advertising man the other day, "and few people realize the extent to which it has grown. Advertising outdoors is older than advertising in the newspapers. Men began putting up signs long before they utilized the columns of the journals. The daily paper first put them in the way of using printer's ink, but in the start they were very sparing of the space they employed. The merchant in New York who first used a half page was looked upon by his competitors as crazy and they all predicted his failure. Robert Bonner was regarded as insane when he came out with a full page in one of the New York dailies reiterating one fact about his business for column after column. Then there was a run on newspaper advertising and the out-door advertising waned. But within the last few years the outdoor business has started up again and every possible form is adopted, while the newspaper methods are as fierce as ever. People of the present age are ever looking for novelty. If your method of advertising is not bizarre you are wasting your money."

And it is the desire for the unique, for the odd and the sensational, that has created the "sandwich man" who trudges wearily up and down the streets for his pittance of 40 cents; that has made possible the "street actor," with his monkeyish grimaces and awkward gestures; the giant on his wabbly stilts; the circus prince and the jackass, and the other monstrosities of the street who make fools of themselves that they may not die in the gutter, and "keep moving" because there is "something in it."

BLACK COSTUMES.

They Are of General Utility In the Wardrobe.

A black gown is a necessity in every wardrobe. It always looks well, and there are many occasions when nothing else is so suitable. The same may be said of black evening costumes—they are more generally serviceable than any others and may be varied infinitely by the addition of colored accessories of one kind and another. Net, crepe de chine, spangled or chenille embroidered tulle, taffeta and lace are all attractive materials for a black evening gown, and grenadine is also pretty and serviceable.

Many low cut gowns have sleeves of elbow length or even full length, although the latter are usually transparent.

Stitching continues to be excessively used as a decoration, appearing on all sorts of material. A picture is given today which shows a bodice of hussar blue cloth decorated in this manner. The bodice is perfectly plain and tight and is entirely covered with lines of stitching which run diagonally, forming points at the back and front. The basque is pointed and is formed of four stitched folds hemmed with black cord. There is a triple pointed pelerine to match the basque and a high, double, flaring collar. The sleeves are stitched diagonally and have two flaring cuffs extending over the hand.

THE MODE.

Prognostications Regarding the Approaching Summer.

Alpaca will be a summer material, although not to the prejudice of thin, light grades of cloth. Cloth now belongs to all seasons, varying in thickness and weight as occasion demands.

ing wear are often very elaborate. Plain and figured silks of all kinds, silk handkerchief squares, crepe de chine, lace and guipure are immensely employed, and oriental embroidery in silk and metal threads upon a coarse ground of linen or cotton is now often utilized as a decoration.

The cut shows a gown of mastic cloth. The skirt is closed at the sides by silver buttons and tabs bordered with stitched bands of white cloth, showing a lower skirt of rose taffeta. The tight bodice has a short, round basque and is trimmed with white cloth bands, which outline tabs in front and around the shoulders. These tabs have each a silver button. The plastron to which the front tabs fasten is a prolongation of the top of the skirt. The collar and full chemisette are of rose taffeta. The tight sleeves are ornamented at the wrist by tabs, buttons and stitched bands over plaitings of rose taffeta. The hat is of stretched mastic silk trimmed with large pink poppies with black hearts.

Cupid Seated the Manchu Dynasty on China's Throne

Love for a Slave Girl Was the Power That Swayed the Avenging Sword of Gen. Sankwei

CUPID, the little god of love, has played a prominent part in the history of this world of ours. Through the ancient and middle ages, even more than in modern history, love of woman made and unmade nations.

Prosaic China, the China that we know, seems the last place in which to look for a love story of this kind, and yet the rulers of China to-day owe their occupancy of their positions to love of woman, the love that a great soldier bore a slave girl in his household.

The rise of the Manchu dynasty in China is probably the most interesting chapter of all Chinese history of which there is any authentic record. The story of the magnificent courage displayed by a mere handful of northern invaders fighting hundreds of thousands of the sons of southern China is as enthralling to the student of history as the most dramatic stories to the lover of fiction. When to this is added the interest of a real love story in which a great Chinese general and a slave girl figure as hero and heroine the interest but deepens.

For nearly three centuries the Ming dynasty had ruled China, first with a capitol in Nanking and afterwards in Peking. Experience had taught the rulers that the foes most dreaded came from the north, but as a protection against them they pointed to the great wall which stood as a massive breastworks between China and the savage tribes of Manchuria, and later that wall proved to be the fighting ground for the Chinese throne. Of it the late Rounseville Wildman says: "The bones of countless armies lie on both sides of this line; and the great wall might stand as the most gigantic gravestone in history."

THE GREAT WALL SEPARATING MANCHURIA FROM CHINA PROPER.

The rise of the Manchus began under Narhachu, who first welded together the scattered tribes of Manchurian Siberia, which covered the territory from the great wall to the Amur river, the territory for which Russia is now contending. The then emperor of China incurred the enmity of Narhachu by supporting the claims of a rival chief, and he determined upon a retaliatory movement. It took but the first engagement between his own comparatively small army and the thousands who marched against him under the banners of the Chinese Emperor Wanli to prove to him the superiority of his forces over those of China, and he pushed his way southward into the Liaotung peninsula and again defeated and routed another Chinese army far superior in numbers to his own. But Narhachu died in 1626, a year after he had entered the Liaotung peninsula, and was succeeded in the chieftainship of the Manchus by his son Tientsung, who continued the war against China, but was defeated and driven back from the very walls of Peking. In place of the Manchus came two formidable rebellions headed by Li and Chang. The former was successful. He reduced several of the great provinces of China to subjugation, captured Peking and proclaimed himself emperor of China. His descendants might be ruling China to-day but for one seemingly trivial circumstance. He permitted the seizure of a beautiful slave girl belonging to the imperial Gen. Sankwei, and afterwards presented her to one of his officers.

Sankwei had himself fought the Manchus successfully, and at the command of his father was at the time he heard of the seizure of the slave girl, whom he loved, on his way to Peking to submit to the new emperor. But this act so aroused his anger that instead of continuing his march to the capital he sought an allegiance with the Manchu regent and invited him to join him in the subjugation of the empire. Dorgun, the regent, accepted the proposition, and they formed a junction of their forces. Against these Li marched an army of 200,000 men, and one of the most noted battles of eastern history followed. In the van of Li's army was the father of Sankwei, who pleaded with his son to submit to Li, but love of a slave girl rose above filial obedience, so dear to the heart of every Chinaman, and he refused, only to see his father murdered before his eyes.

The armies of Sankwei and the Manchu regent were greatly outnumbered, but to his lesser number Sankwei brought not only excellent generalship but the courage of an outraged lover, and he won. For miles he drove the defeated forces of Li, slaying them by the thousands.

The defeated emperor Li was followed to Peking by the revengeful lover, who cared nothing for the empire that might have been his had he so desired. That was left to the Manchus, and Dorgun proclaimed his youthful charge emperor of the most populous nation of the earth.

The defeated Li retreated southward, closely followed by Sankwei. Battle after battle followed, in all of which the tireless, remorseless lover was successful. The troops of Li deserted by the hundreds and thousands, and he was finally left without even a personal bodyguard and with no means of securing the necessities of life. What would have been his fate had he fallen into the hands of the enraged Sankwei, who had not only the death of his mistress to avenge, but the death of his father and his family as well, is terrible to contemplate. But from such a fate Li was spared by being killed by rustics whom he was plundering for food, and Sankwei got nothing but his corpse.

Of this incident in Chinese history Rounseville Wildman, in the last book which he ever wrote, entitled "China's Open Door," published by the Lothrop company, says:

"This slave girl, who is historically nameless, gave the present dynasty its throne. But for her the Manchus would have remained to this day a league of scattered tribes and malcontents on the frontier of China. Sankwei never saw her again, but he burned on her grave a dynasty, a city, and gave a vast empire to a small body of foreigners. The queue that every Chinaman wears might justly be claimed as a badge of mourning for the beautiful slave girl of the general Sankwei."

The queue as a feature of the Chinaman's dress came into prominence during the first reign of the Manchu dynasty. Shunchi, the first of the Manchu emperors, had considerable trouble in subjugating all parts of the empire which had fallen to him so easily. Spies and rebels lurked about everywhere, and he ordered that all Chinimen should adopt the Tartar mode of wearing the hair in a long braided queue as a sign of submission to the new dynasty. For nearly half a century the order was stoutly resisted by many, and many executions were ordered because of such resistance, but the mandate was gradually enforced, and for more than two centuries the queue has been the distinguishing mark of the Chinaman.

Bicycle Racing at Buffalo.

Providing the programme arranged at present for the world's championship bicycle races in connection with the Pan-American exposition at Buffalo, N. Y., is accepted, there will be given in the sprint, and middle-distance professional races of the great exposition meet, about $4,000. There will be four days of racing in all, probably the last four days of the week. The foreign entry blanks will have to be sent out immediately, as the European riders will want ample time in which to make their preparations for their expected visit to America. A considerable invasion of the cycling hosts of both Europe and the antipodes is promised. While there is considerable disappointment among the racing men over the decision of the exposition authorities to hold but the one meet, this disappointment will be greatly mitigated by the large prize list offered for that one meet.

SQUASH, squash tennis, squashball and squash rackets is a game that, despite its many unfortunate names, has risen to the dignity of having a national tournament and national champions. While it may never attain the popularity of outdoor tennis or golf, the sport is destined to interest a great following, especially in the vicinity of New York, where the very rich people have declared in its favor and built courts in their residences and in their clubs. At Harrow, in England, squash rackets is as great a sport in its season as is cricket or tennis. It was but a short time ago that the Tuxedo Racquet and Tennis club gave a tournament which was won by T. S. Tailer, a well-known eastern player, who has the custody of the $500 trophy emblematic of the championship.

How did the game get such a queer name? When first played a soft rubber ball with a hole in it was used, and the player, using a racket, would hit hard against the wall. Of course the ball would "squash," hence the name. Now the ball has no hole in it. Sometimes, when the lawn tennis ball is used and a modified and small lawn tennis racket is swung by the player, the game becomes known as squash tennis. If a small racket and a small uncovered ball are used the contestants frequently call it squash rackets. Two players facing the front wall of the court alternately hit the ball with their rackets, the object being to have the ball strike above a certain height and within certain limits. Yet there is considerable to the game. Eustace Miles, amateur champion of this country at rackets and squash, and a writer on the game of squash, is one of those vigorous athletes whose word that he saves doctor's bills by playing squash should be convincing.

According to Mr. Miles, the court may be about 31 feet by 16 feet and need cost no more than $500. If the enthusiast had to play in a flat building he might make the wall of a large room serve for the necessary face of the court. A single wall with a line on it two feet from the floor would serve the purpose. But the best courts have three or four walls. One New Yorker has built a fine squash court on the roof of his house, and George Gould has added squash courts to his elaborate tennis court buildings. Mr. Gould is an excellent sportsman, and he says that squash is the very best practice for tennis—better than tennis itself, for the player has more strokes in a shorter time and has to keep his eye in good form.

How many times have the spectators at a lawn tennis match declared that something should be done to keep the balls from going out of the court? The experts in action at tennis give grand exhibitions of "rallying," volleying and returning, which are improved upon in a good squash court. The walls serve to throw the ball back when a particularly hard or wild stroke is made and enable the contestants to keep up the play. Champion Miles says that when he played in the opening match at the Marion club courts near Philadelphia—the home of a great army of golfers who play squash in winter and during the wet spring weather—he kept up some rallies to over 100 returns, although both he and his colleague were hitting hard nearly all the time. The long rallies, he says, and the various angles the ball makes with the walls furnish the same fascinating features that are afforded by court tennis and racquets. To master those angles is as delightful to the player as to gain facility in mastering angles on a billiard table.

To persuade tennis players to try squash, Champion Miles adds that the game can be made a very cheap one after the court is provided. Should the player wish, he can use an old lawn tennis racket and a dilapidated tennis ball for squash. By stripping the cover from a tennis ball you have an excellent substitute for the real squash ball. If played in an unpainted court electric lights do not cast shadows that will interfere with fast play. Continuing, Mr. Miles says:

"The scoring of the game is very simple. There are several ways in which we can score, and this gives the game great variety. But the commonest is for the player who first gets 15 points to win the game. If two players are not evenly matched then the weaker can have a handicap—that is, he can start with seven points. Thus any two players can meet in a friendly match.

"The game is not so simple as it looks, for there is a vast deal to be learned in it. To avoid putting the ball too high or too low, to place the ball now down this side and now down that, to stand in the sideways position, all these and many other features of good play, are not acquired in a moment. The sideways position is with the face or head of the racket up before the stroke, as at golf. But at golf the player hits a stationary ball at his leisure; at squash he has to hit a moving ball rapidly. He has to form one position or another the reverse of this in a moment if he wishes to make a face stroke. Then, again, he has to choose whether to let the ball bounce before he strikes it or to take it on the volley, as he has to choose at other racket games, such as lawn tennis.

CHARACTERISTIC STROKES EMPLOYED IN SQUASH.

"This demands quick judgment. Hence there is opportunity for real skill, and there is no other game in which a good player can beat a bad player in every point, and in which at the same time the bad player will play well enough to enjoy himself.

"In squash there is none of the despair of the golfer, who takes 50 strokes for a single hole. It is partly for these reasons that the game is so excellent for business men, even if they have had no previous training in ball games. In English schools we play these games 'from our youth even up to now.' Business men too often give up exercise because usually they can only take it (at least in an interesting form) during the daylight or business hours. This applies to rackets and court tennis, as well as to baseball, football, etc., which latter games are seldom kept up after the age of 25, especially by business men. Golf also demands daylight. It takes a long time and is expensive. So business men will often read the paper, 'talk shop,' play cards, drink, smoke, etc., before their dinner. Gymnastics do not attract them."

But Mr. Miles knows better than many others the men and women that are taking up squash in the east. Among the clubs that own squash courts are the Boston, Newport, New York, Ardsley, Haverford and Tuxedo country and golf clubs. Some of the wealthiest people in the United States have become devoted squash players.

"Women can and do play the game remarkably well," continues Mr. Miles. "One need only to cite Mrs. Duncan, Miss Potter, Mrs. J. J. Vatable, Mrs. T. S. Tailer and Mrs. W. R. Garrison. The health of the women is of vital importance for the health of the nation, and I have always endeavored to show that squash is a real inducement to women to take healthy and regular exercise.

"How the American public schools need winter games! I don't mean gymnastics or track athletics, but games. At Marlboro we used to play squash in the open air, even on rainy days. In England we had football and hockey in the cold season, and still we had squash, 'fives' and racquets. Squash is invaluable as a supplementary form of exercise to football, etc. Future tennis and racket players are the squash players of to-day.

"Another reason why squash is a very healthy game is that it promotes heart action and induces the most abnormal sort of perspiration. One man recently declared that it was the most pleasant form of a Turkish bath he had ever taken." E. G. WESTLAKE.

Rather Late Payment.

Richard Brinsley Sheridan was continually in debt—continually being dunned for sums loaned him. From a person of recent acquaintance he had borrowed quite a sum. Meeting a short time afterward, Sheridan remarked: "Well, as I live, I owe you money. When shall I pay you back?"

"Oh, any time you set," answered the acquaintance.

"Well! well! any time? Let's say judgment day," answered Sheridan. Then after a pause, he added: "Judgment day will be such a busy day; let's make it the day after."

It is needless to remark the money has not been paid.—Argonaut.

SPORTING.

ON THE DIAMOND.

The Plainfield High School nine played a scrub team a five inning game Saturday afternoon. The battery for the school boys was Mason Townsend, p., and Buckley, c., and Wm. Thiers and Bert Moore filled the same positions for the scrub. The score was 10 to 7 in favor of the High School lads.

The Underwood A. A. defeated the Washington Park Juniors in a base ball game yesterday on the old golf grounds, by a score of 16 to 9. The game was exciting throughout. The batteries were Barlow, Hegeman, Waring and Howard for the Juniors and Jack Douglas, Will Douglas and and James T. Scott for the Underwoods.

A thirteen inning game was played yesterday morning on the Jackson avenue grounds between the Borough Grammar School nine and the North Plainfield Juniors' team. The aggregation of Juniors won out by a score of 14 to 13. The contest was at fever heat at the close of the 9 innings the score stood 13 to 13. Harry Conover, pitcher, and Benjamin Rutledge, catcher, constituted the Grammar School battery, and George Conover, pitcher, and Lawrence McCann, catcher, filled the bill for the Juniors.

The North Plainfield High School baseball team goes to Elizabeth tomorrow afternoon on the 2:12 train to play the Pingry School team, of that city. Blatz, who was ill, will fill his old position at second base. The High School team has missed him greatly in the last two games played. The borough team is not confident of winning, but it expects to make a good showing. Crite will probably be tried in the box again if his shoulder is all right. He did not sprain it as stated in the paper yesterday by pitching; it was hurt by sliding to second and also by being hit by a pitched ball.

WHIST.

The executive committee of the New Jersey Whist Association has made the following drawings for the tournament, the first game of which will be played next Saturday, at the rooms of the Knickerbocker Athletic Club, (holders,) between that club and the Forest Hill Whist Club, the Passaic Whist Club having defaulted; Forest Hill Whist Club, Elizabeth Chess and and Whist Club, Jersey City Club, Park Club, Knickerbocker Whist Club, Passaic Club, Brooklyn Whist Club and New Jersey Whist Club.

GOLF.

The Westfield Golf Club course is rapidly being put in condition for play. It is predicted that the course will be one of the finest in the state owing to its many natural hazards. Michael Higgins, of this city, has been at work on the grounds for many months. Fred Coverly, formerly with the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club and the Park Golf Club, has been engaged to look after the clubhouse.

BASKET BALL.

There will be a match game of basket ball Thursday evening, in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, between the Wasserpachers and the leaders of the local "gym." The game will be called at 8:30. The proceeds will be for the benefit of the Chess and Checker Club.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

An important meeting of the Plainfield Athletic Association will be held in the parlors of the Hotel Waldorf this evening at 8 o'clock. All members are requested to be present as important matters will be brought forward for discussion.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

The Park Club and Casino bowling teams will meet tomorrow evening on the Park alleys in the fourth contest between these teams. The Casino team believe that they will be victorious.

FUNERAL OF J. H. HALLOCK.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICES HELD FROM THE HOME ON MADISON AVENUE.

Rev. Dr W. C. Snodgrass, Rev. Dr. J. L. Hurlbut and Rev. E. M. Rodman Officiated at the Services.

The funeral services of the late James H. Hallock were held yesterday afternoon from the home, 965 Madison avenue, and there was a very large attendance of friends. Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass, of the First M. E. church; Rev. Dr. Jesse Lyman Hurlbut, of New York, formerly of this city, and Rev. E. M. Rodman, rector of Grace P. E. church, took part in the service. Dr. Snodgrass and Mr. Rodman read appropriate Scripture selections and offered prayer, while Dr. Hurlbut, who had knew Mr. Hallock all his life, spoke a few words concerning him personally. He paid deserving tribute to his character and true worth and referred to his faithful services at his place of business in New York.

There was a beautiful display of floral tributes from relatives and friends, including many set pieces. During the services, "Abide With Me," and "Hark, Hark, My Soul," were sung by a quartette composed of Miss Julia Ketcham, Miss Mabelle Smith, E E Runyon and Wm. N. Runyon.

The interment took place in Hillside cemetery. Those who acted as pallbearers were; L W. Serrell, James DeGraff, Arthur Baynon, J. R. Joy, of this city; Thomas Aldrich, David Lennox, Ashley Grace and Mr. Douglass, of New York.

Ants, Cockroaches, Bed Bugs.

Mix, say, a 25c. box of "Rough on Rats" carefully with a pound or so of mashed boiled potatoes, or with a loaf of finely crumbled dampened bread, or two tin cups of fine powdered sugar, and place about their haunts, out of reach of children or pet animals. Even the hardier Black Cockroaches, Beetles, Wood or Water Bugs, in one or two applications will be completely annihilated. "Rough on Rats" is the only thing that will effectually and permanently annihilate Bed Bugs, and it stands unrivalled the world over for the prompt and effective extermination of Rats and Mice. 15 and 25 boxes at druggists.

Paid His Tax.

Michael Coyne has paid the $1 40 tax he owed the city and Collector F. H. Smith has released the sewing machine and tailor bench, upon which a levy was made.

LIVELY DEBATE ON CITY WATER PLANT.

men are given the powers to spend public money, they do so without stint. The proper running of an electric light or a water plant requires experienced men, but only friends of the politicians obtain the positions. They make many costly mistakes knowing they are safe from dismissal, but the city is the loser.

He claimed the plant at Madison was being run at a loss as were also many others in western cities. To put municipal ownership in the hands of the government, he said, was to give it to scheming politicians, who would make a great outlay of money, but when the crash came they would be the last to admit it.

As Mr. Swackhamer concluded, Mr. Martine defended the politicians and also advanced many further arguments in regard to his side of the question. He spoke at some length of the danger to the public of the great aggregation of wealth and instanced the mail service as one of instances where government control has proved a success.

The next speaker was Superintendent Amos Andrews, of the Plainfield Water Supply Company, who spoke in defense of the water company. He said the raise in rates was simply an adjustment of the old plan of charging, admitting a mistake had been made in them at first. He declared it would not increase the company's income in the slightest. The storage tank on the mountain had also proved a mistake but no hydraulic engineer would have thought so at the start. The company's purpose in building it, he said, was for an adequate supply in case of fire, as at certain hours in the summer the consumption is so great that there is but little water in the tower. He declared that if Plainfield had built a plant years ago, it would now be in the hands of a receiver, and that to build one now would be a difficult matter as the necessary wells were not to be found every where. It is not a question of building a plant, he said, but of getting the water.

A few remarks were made by Councilman Chas. L Lee, of North Plainfield, who spoke of the strong sentiment in the borough in favor of owning its plant and of the appointment of a committee to take up the matter in a calm, deliberate way. He explained that Mayor Smalley had already offered to donate a site free and furnish the stone for building a plant. A Boston syndicate had also offered to build a plant capable of supplying the city and borough at reduced rates and at the end of a number of years to give it to the borough free of cost.

The closing address was made by Mr. Swackhamer who simply replied to the previous one made by Mr. Martine It was very interesting, however, and even after he had finished and the meeting was declared over there were many who remained and discussed the matter with him and his opponent, both of whom were congratulated for the manner in which they had conducted their sides.

Clothes Line Is Anchored.

The high winds of yesterday twisted the clothes line which runs from the flat of Edward C. Searing, in the Hart building, corner of Park avenue and East Fourth street. Then the rain caused the rope to shrink. Now the line with the wash attached is anchored fast where it is and will have to be cut down before the wash can be rescued.

MAN IN THE STREET.

London's New Bishop Has Faith in Him and His Future.

Dr. Ingram a Practical Man of Affairs Rather Than a Scholar—One of the Originators of "Settlement Work."

English folk at home and over seas are yet talking of the new bishop of London; of his early work, his "discovery" by Dr. Maclagan, now archbishop of York, his labors at Oxford house, his disputations in Victoria park and now his elevation after only 17 years in holy orders to the most responsible position, next to the primacy, which the Church of England has to offer.

It is as the friend, the practical friend, of that multitudinous British individual, the man in the street, that Dr. Ingram has won his reputation. The winning of it has been done since 1888. Before that his life had been much like that of any young Englishman destined to the church.

He was born 43 years ago in Worcestershire. His father was Rev. E. Winnington-Ingram, of Stanford rectory and Ribbesford house; and on his mother's side he is a grandson of Dr. Pepys, who was bishop of Worcester from 1841 to 1861. He was educated at Marlborough college, and took a scholarship at Keble college, Oxford, where he was under Dr. Talbot, with whom he will now share the episcopal oversight in London. He was ordained deacon and priest by the bishop of Lichfield in 1884, and licensed to the curacy of St. Mary's, Shrewsbury. Two years later he became private chaplain to his bishop, Dr. Maclagan, now archbishop of York, who may fairly be said to have discovered him. Then, in 1888-89, he entered on the work which ultimately brought him to the front, as head of Oxford house, at Bethnal Green. Canon

RT. REV. DR. INGRAM.
(Recently Created Bishop of London by King Edward VII.)

Henson had preceded him, and had found the task almost more than his strength could cope with. Mr. Ingram brought to it an untiring vigor, and he established at once a close bond of interest between the young Oxonians and the work of the settlement. He developed its activities both on the social side and on the argumentative.

Sunday after Sunday he stood in Victoria park, welcoming the arguments of the atheists and meeting them with a style of eloquence which began insensibly to assimilate itself to their own. In Victoria park, that arena of free speech, he took his stand among the socialists with their red flag, the Salvation Army with its brass band, the labor party, the secularists, the Mormons, ubiquitous gentleman with fads, and cranks of all varieties. The appearance of a "real parson" in the midst of these groups was sufficiently novel to bring a crowd, and it is to Bishop Ingram's credit (and the secret of his success in other directions) that he could hold it. Humor, point, repartee and pertinent anecdote—all of these are his; and they only kept the people agape while serious words were deftly inserted. It is still easy, as one hears him preach in St. Paul's, to reconstruct the scene in the park, and as a preacher the bishop will probable carry the effects of it through life.

It is his practical way of doing the day's work in the slums around Bethnal Green that is his chief characteristic, and no sketch of the new bishop is complete without a reference to it. When he went to Oxford house, near by stood the first church that was built in that district. The inhabitants had given nothing to it, but some of them said they would subscribe sixpence to hang the bishop when he came to consecrate it. For these people the mission of Oxford house was threefold; it sought to save their bodies, minds and spirits. It got at the bodies and minds first, and as these grew cleaner it touched their souls. The creation of clubs was the first process—self-governing clubs, with all sorts of amusements and athletics. The boys are reached first, and they came in out of the streets, and learned to behave, keep clean, play fair and idolize their club. Then followed the men, and, elsewhere, the girls and women. The clubs were purely social clubs—there was no buttonholing for evangelistic purposes; but out of the clubs grew debating societies and lectures and a spirit of inquiry, and this led to personal intercourse and influence, and so on to Bible classes, and Sunday talks, and all the rest. To all this Ingram gave the ideal and the impetus, and over it and in it he worked night and day.

Scarcely a Good Pleader.

A well-known lawyer here was called on recently by a woman who was anxious to secure his legal advice and his interest in her case. She explained with tears the circumstances and begged him for advice.

"I hope," she sobbed, "that you will not refuse my case. I am so eager to have you for my lawyer, for I believe you can pull me through. Some one told me you would not take the case, but tell me that you will."

The lawyer was touched.

"Madam," he replied, kindly, "you have my sympathy. Certainly I will take your case, for, you know, everybody who knows me is aware of one thing, and that is that I am always for the under dog in the fight."

He meant well and kindly, but we must admit that his language was not felicitous.—Louisville Times.

ENDEAVOR MUSICALE AT SEVENTH-DAY CHURCH

Excellent Programme Rendered at Seventh of the Annual Musicales of That Church.

LARGE AUDIENCE PRESENT.

SOMETHING ABOUT THOSE WHO TOOK PART IN PROGRAMME.

Selections By Quartette From Choral Society—Instrumental Trios Well Rendered—Vocalists Were Miss Palmiter rnd Mr. McIlroy.

The annual musicale given by the Christian Endeavor Society of the Seventh-Day Baptist church has been for several years one of the pleasantest musical events of the spring. The musicale which took place last night was the seventh of the succession, and was no exception to the rule, the programme being at least as fine, and the musicians as uniformly successful in the rendition of their various numbers as on any previous occasion.

The church was crowded, in spite of the fact that admission was only by ticket. Plants banked about the organ and platform added to the attractiveness of the room.

The opening number of the programme was the overture from Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream," played by Miss Mabel A. Maxson and Mrs. W. O. Hubbard at the piano, and Miss Jessie M. Utter at the organ. The delicate harmonies of the overture were chiefly given by the two pianists, the organ furnishing depth and solidity. The three instrumentalists played with much unity and sympathy.

The vocal quartette of the Choral Society, Miss Etta Raybert, Miss Grace Carroll, Edward Maxwell Honeyman and David E. Titsworth, had several numbers on the programme. Mr Titsworth was, however, unable to sing, and his place was filled by Charles L. Lewis. Four short part-songs were sung by this quartette, "Moonlight," by Faning, Jensen's "The Mill," Parker's "Who Knows What the Bells Say?" and Mendelssohn's "Hunting Song." These selections, which varied greatly in style, were all given in a very pleasing manner, with spirit and sympathy, the parts being well balanced and in perfect harmony.

Two numbers for violin, violoncello and piano, played by Mrs. W. D. Beach, Dr. Leonard Waldo, and Miss Jessie M. Utter, received much favorable comment. The first number consisted of two short selections, a Menuett of Schubert's and Chopin's Funeral March, and the second of the Ehrhardt Suite, in three movements. Dr. Waldo and his daughter are well known to Plainfield musical people by their exquisite rendering of the highest type of music, and their playing on this occasion was characterized by beauty of both execution and interpretation.

Dr. Waldo also played, as 'cello solos, Bach's "My Heart Ever Faithfull" and Schubert's "Ave Maria," in a most enjoyable manner, producing with his deep-toned instrument a warmth of feeling impossible for a violin to effect, yet managing it with the utmost delicacy.

The two vocal soloists of the evening, Miss Daisy Palmiter, soprano, and Walter H. McIlroy, tenor, were both from Brooklyn. Both were much enjoyed. Miss Palmiter sang Meyerbeer's "Parden de Ploermel," and the waltz song from "Romeo and Juliet," both very difficult, and showing to advantage the clear, flexible and birdlike voice of the singer. Miss Palmiter also sang as encores two lighter selections, rendering them with delicacy and sympathy.

Quite a different type of songs were those given by Mr. McIlroy, who sang old English songs and dainty ballads. He had a pleasing and sympathetic voice, thoroughly well trained, and a simple and attractive manner of singing. One humorous song, "Young Richard," was much enjoyed.

During the receiving of the silver offering, A. L. Titsworth played as an organ solo, Dudley Buck's "Evening Idyl" with much skill and expression.

Much of the success of the evening was due to the accompanist, Miss Jessie M. Utter, who accompanied both vocalists and instrumentalists, managing the difficult music with ease and taste, and following the lead of singers and stringed instruments with sympathy and precision.

Ladies' Aid Society Meeting.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the German Reformed church will hold their regular monthly meeting tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. Rudolph Weegler, 453 Webster place.

SECURED CONSENTS TO STRING POWER WIRES.

Central Electric Company is Preparing to Distribute Current Through the Township.

POWER HOUSE AT METUCHEN

CONSENTS SECURED TO OAK TREE, SOUTH PLAINFIELD, NEW MARKET.

Will be Able to Light Those Villages at a Reasonable Figure—No Trouble in Securing Consents—To Furnish Light and Power.

The first move toward expansion by the Central Electric Company, the mammoth power house of which is located at Metuchen, has been made and within a short time power from that plant will be circulating over a vast territory. Consents have been secured for the company to locate poles and string wires from the powerhouse to Oak Tree, thence to South Plainfield, New Market and Lincoln, for the purpose of furnishing light and power for anyone who desires to use it.

Thus far no provisions have been made to light the streets in these various towns but, no doubt, steps will be taken at an early date whereby the various townships will arrange to light the streets. This improvement is right in line with many others that are bound to come to these outlying districts and bring them closer to the larger cities.

In securing consents for the erection of poles and stringing wires, little or no difficulty was experienced, showing that the people are anxious for the improvement. This will give a great many people in the towns named to secure a good light at a reasonable figure, and if they have need of electric power for any purpose whatsoever they will be able to get it at a low price. The towns mentioned are located and so nearly situated to larger places that they cannot afford to remain in their present condition.

FRUIT STAND.

Has Been Established for Benefit of Pupils at the Plainfield High School.

The pupils in the Stillman High School are now provided with a fruit stand, where oranges, apples and the like can be purchased at cost during the recess hour.

The idea was originated by Principal Travell some time ago. At first cakes and cookies were sold, but it was lately decided to change the affair into a fruit stand. A pupil is put in charge.

As all the goods are purchased at wholesale rates the pupil is enabled to obtain a small quantity of fruit at less than the retail market price.

WILL CLOSE MAY 4.

Manager Edwards Has Agreed to Give up Possession of Music Hall.

Mr. Edwards had a lease which expires July 1, but owing to the present arrangements to make a store of the entrance, he has consented to give up the hall on that date. In case plans are formulated to maintain the theatre or build a new one, Mr. Edwards consents to entertain a proposition to manage the same.

Will Visit Westfield Lodge.

The members of Queen City Lodge, No. 226, and Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, I O O F, will visit Westfield Lodge, No 169, on Sunday evening, April 28 and attend service in a body at the Presbyterian church. The eighty second anniversary of Odd Fellowship falls on April 26 but the local lodges will observe it two days later in the above manner.

MISS MESSLER RESIGNED.

Will Give Up Her Position As Superintendent of Muhlenberg Hospital.

Miss Emma S. Messler has tendered her resignation as superintendent of Muhlenberg Hospital, having decided to devote herself to private nursing.

Miss Messler has been connected with Muhlenberg Hospital since 1895, when she entered the institution as pupil nurse. Upon completing her term of training she was appointed assistant superintendent and last summer, when Miss Moss resigned as superintendent, Miss Messler became acting superintendent. A few months later, upon the unanimous recommendation of the medical staff and by the unanimous vote of the managing committee, she received the appointment of superintendent, which position she has filled with credit.

Miss Messler has shown marked ability both as nurse and superintendent and her resignation will undoubtedly be greatly regretted by very many friends of the Hospital.

NO ASYLUM FOR THIS COUNTY.

UNDERSTOOD THAT THE GOVERNOR WOULD OPPOSE SUCH PROJECT.

Most of the Freeholders Believe That It Would Be An Economical Thing for Union County.

The chances of Union county having an asylum of its own, where the insane could be taken care of, is for the present out of the question. This matter was talked of strongly by the members of the Board of Freeholders, who even went to the trouble of appointing a committee to look into the question with a view of establishing such an institution.

A prominent member of the board, in speaking of the matter a few days ago, said that plans were being made to carry through such a project, when it became known that any bill offered in the Legislature providing for an institution, would be vetoed by Governor Voorhees. It was then decided to drop the matter until a more favorable time.

That such an institution would be economy for the taxpayers of Union county there is said to be no doubt. The matter has been investigated thoroughly and most of the members of the Board of Freeholders are convinced that the county can provide for its insane people much cheaper and just as well as at the State Hospital at Morristown or Trenton. Essex county has given the question a fair trial by erecting such an institution, and the expense to that county is not as heavy as under the former plan.

Great Luck for Frisbie

While walking along West Front street, near Crosby & Hills, yesterday morning, Mail Carrier Frisbie detected a greenback lying in the gutter. On examination it proved to be a ten dollar bill. It was immediately claimed by a poor woman who had dropped it. A short time later as Frisbie was waiting for a train at the station he picked up a two dollar bill. This time no one claimed the find and the genial Frisbie is that much in.

EXERCISES IN REFORM HALL.

MEMORIAL DAY EXERCISES ARE ARRANGED BY JOINT COMMITTEE.

Have Heretofore Met in Music Hall That Day—Other Details Will Soon be Arranged.

For the first time since Music Hall was erected, the Memorial Day exercises will not be held in the old playhouse this year. They will instead take place in Reform Hall, this being decided upon at the meeting of the committees from Winfield Scott Post, Women's Relief Corps and Sons of Veterans, held in Comrade Moffett's office last evening. There was a very good attendance and it was the unanimous agreement of all that Reform Hall would be the most suitable building for the purpose, it having been used before the theatre was built.

The exercises will take place in the afternoon and will be in charge of the Women's Relief Corps. They will consist of the usual chorouses by the children, tableaux and an appropriate address by a speaker yet to be chosen. In the morning the members of Winfield Scott Post will march to the various cemeteries and decorate with flowers and flags the graves of their departed comrades. This will be followed by a parade, the route of which has not yet been arranged. A number of local organizations, in addition to the veterans, will participate.

All the committees present last evening reported progress in regard to the arrangements, and by the next meeting, which is to be held April 30, everything will be in readiness for the proper observance of the day.

CLUBS UNITED.

The affair was planned and arranged by the Twentieth Century Club and they extended an invitation to the other club and some out of town friends. There was a large attendance and the event was one of the most pleasant of the season.

The whole club served as a committee, while the women took charge of the refreshments and arranged that part of the programme. Long tables were prettily decorated with flowers, smilax, etc., while a feast of good things occupied a good part of the space on these tables. Music for dancing was furnished by Carpenter. About midnight refreshments were served and dancing was then continued till the small hours of the morning.

WORKED ON AFRICAN COAST.

TWO MISSIONARIES RELATED THEIR EXPERIENCES THERE.

Interesting Meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of Crescent Avenue Church Yesterday.

The Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue church held an interesting and helpful meeting yesterday afternoon in the chapel of the church, when Mrs. DeHeer and Mrs. Beutlinger addressed the meeting. These women have been working as missionaries on the west coast of Africa for the past thirty years, and in that time have gained a wide knowledge concerning the people and the conditon of the country at that place.

They both told of the advancement and progress made in civilizing the people and bringing them from darkness into light. When they first went to their stations the natives wore costumes known as "witchcraft," and they were the subjects of all sorts of superstitious ideas. These conditions are now changed and, indeed, the natives are rapidly becoming Christianized and they show a strong desire to live for Christ. The addresses by these women were very encouraging and stimulated a desire to do more than ever for the work in foreign fields.

Mrs. Milliken, president of the society, was in charge of the meeting. After the addresses a question-box was conducted and in this way much valuable information was obtained.

CONSUL DISCHARGED.

Proved He Was Not Partner in Fruit Stand, Charged With Being Disorderly House.

John Consul, an Italian, connected with the fruit store of James Yaumzza, on Somerset street, was given a hearing last night on the charge of being implicating in the keeping of a disorderly house at the fruit stand.

It was claimed that Consul is a brother of Yaumzza, and is a partner in the business. This, however, was successfully disproved by Walter L. Hetfield who appeared for the prisoner.

Recorder Doud discharged Consul and later ordered a warrant to be issued for his arrest on the charge of disorderly conduct. As yet the borough police have been unable to locate him.

BOARD OF HEALTH ACTED IN FANWOOD.

Required Strict Quarantine at Ellis House, Where Case of Contagious Disease Exists.

WILLIAM ELLIS WAS ILL

MRS. ELLIS IS SAID TO BE BELIEVER IN CHRISTIAN SCIENCE.

Said That She Objected to Having Physicians Come to the House—Dr. Smith, Westfield, Attending Case—Trouble Over Quarantine.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Fanwood, April 17.—Several days ago William Ellis, son of Mr. and Mrs LeRoy J. Ellis, of Forest avenue, developed a case of diphtheria, and there was some concern felt on the part of residents hereabouts owing to the fact that the house was not quarantined. Dr. Westcott, who is president of the Board of Health, investigated the matter and decided that a quarantine must be established at once. Some opposition was met with on account of the fact that Mrs. Ellis is a believer in Christian science, and she had been entertaining members of this belief who reside at Cranford.

Mrs. Ellis believes that physicians are unnecessary, and, it is said, strongly objected to a physician coming to her home.

Official notice was sent to Mrs. Ellis that no one must enter or leave the house, neither must anything be sent or received there. Despite this, it is alleged that mail was sent from the house. All this has now been effectually stopped and, through the efforts of the Board of Health, a strict quarantine has been established. Samuel Taynor, formerly chief of police at this place, has been put on duty and he is watching the Ellis residence to see that everything is done according to rules and regulations.

Dr. Hunt, of the State Board of Health, has been notified and he is expected to visit this place soon to make an investigation for the purpose of ascertaining if possible what has caused the outbreak of diphtheria. Dr. Smith, of Westfield, has been called to treat the case of William Ellis, and for the present no further trouble is anticipated.

AFTER THE DOGS.

Borough Collector and Chief Marshal Campbell Waging War Against Unregistered Dogs.

Borough Collector George F. Brown is using every effort to collect the delinquent dog tax. He proposes to carry out the order of the Borough Council that all dogs unregistered upon which no tax was paid for 1899, shall be shot, in accordance with the State law.

Chief Marshal Campbell has served the delinquent dog tax bills and is now engaged in ascertaining the whereabouts of unregistered dogs in the borough.

On The War Path.

Constable George E. Rogers is still kept very busy hunting delinquent taxpayers. Several times it seemed as though he would have to cause the arrest of a delinquent, when the amount has been paid and thus further trouble averted. In a short time Collector F. H. Smith will start the sales under the provisions of the Martin Act.

Housecleaning at Headquarters.

Housecleaning in the police headquarters has been finished and the interior has a much more wholesome appearance. The floors and woodwork have generally been re-oiled and the cells whitewashed. In Chief Kiely's private office some changes have been made in the general arrangements.

High Wind Broke Glass.

The high winds of yesterday caused the door to the store of Harry Dreier, at West Front street and Madison avenue to slam with such force as to crash the door glass. The same accident happened at Meyer Leichtentritt's store at 205 West Front street.

Struck on Her Nose.

Miss Mary Drake, of Richmond street, fell down a few days ago on the sidewalk and struck her nose on the curb. The end of the nose was lacerated slightly, but prompt treatment on the part of Dr. Lufburrow will prevent any disfigurement.

APPOINTMENTS MADE BY THE NEWARK CONFERENCE

Concluding Day of the Session Was Held at Hoboken Yesterday.

TEMPERANCE QUESTION UP.

CONFERENCE PASSED RESOLUTIONS ON THE SUBJECT.

No Changes Made Among Local Charges—Dr. Hurlbut Goes to Morristown—Former Pastors Were Changed About in Several Cases.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Hoboken, April 17.—The concluding day of the session of the Newark Conference of the Methodist church was held here yesterday. The most important business done was the appointment of the various clergymen to their different charges.

Several important changes, some expected and others unexpected, are made in the pastors of churches in the Newark district. Dr. Henry Spellmeyer goes to Centenary church and is succeeded at Roseville by Rev. T. I. Coultas, who in turn is succeeded at Morristown by Rev. J. L. Hurlbut, former corresponding secretary of the Sunday-school Union and Tract Society. Rev. Dr. F. Clare Baldwin, as expected, goes to Calvary church, East Orange, to succeed Rev. Dr. A. H. Tuttle, who becomes pastor at Summit.

Rev. Richard Johns succeeds Rev. Chester J. Hoyt at the Ferry church, East Orange, and Mr. Hoyt will be pastor at Montgomery street, Newark. J. K. Cecil succeeds C. E. Hastings as supply at the West Orange church.

Dr. Daniel Halleron leaves Halsey Street, Newark, to become pastor at Grace church, Paterson. The new pastor at Halsey Street is Rev. Dr. J. A. Cole. DeGroot Memorial church, Newark, is to have Rev. W. E. Palmer as its new pastor, to succeed Rev. W. Boyd, and Rev. C. F. Hull will take Rev. W. M. Trumbower's place at the Davis Memorial, Harrison. Rev. C. Davison is to succeed Rev. R B. Cushberry at South Market Street, Newark.

No changes were made in the Plainfield churches although several former pastors of the Plainfield churches were given new charges. Chief among these was Rev. Dr. J. L. Hurlbut, whose change has already been mentioned. Rev. Dr. Charles R. Barnes was transferred from Washington, N. J., to the Palisades church, in Jersey City Heights. Rev. H. J. Johnson, formerly at Mariner's Harbor, Staten Island, was made pastor of the Centinary church, Jersey City. Rev. William C. O'Donnell was returned to the M. E. church at Flemington.

Rev. Charles F. Scudder, who formerly lived in this city, is now quartered at Milford, Pa. Rev. E L. Jamison, formerly of Dunellen, is located at Raritan. Rev. S. K. Doolittle is still the pastor of the Dunellen church. Rev. E. S. Bacon, a student at Drew Theological Seminary, succeeds Rev. P. A. Bright, another student, as the supply at the Scotch Plains Methodist church. Rev. C. M. Anderson is retained at Westfield. Rev. Dr. George H. Whitney, of Plainfield, is still president emritus of the Hackettstown Centinary Collegiate Institute and a member of the First church, Plainfield Quarterly Conference.

The report on the prohibition question, which had been turned over to a special committee, referred to the evils of intemperance, censured the leading political parties and praised Mrs. Nation for her saloon smashing, and resolved that the members of the Newark Conference refuse to support any political party that favors the liquor traffic or the granting of any licenses, either high or low, and that they urge their congregations to do the same. In the report of the committee the clause committing the members of the conference to antagonism of all political parties except the Prohibition party was stricken out. The local option recommendations were included in a majority report, which denounced everything relating to the liquor traffic and the government's attitude in licensing the manufacture and the sale of liquor. There was a minority report, which showed that, after consultation, the committee could not agree.

The full list of appointments will be found on the eighth page.

AT THE THEATRES.

Something About the Attractions Which Plainfield Theatre-Goers May Care to Witness.

"The Denver Express" appears at Music Hall tonight. It is not the wildly melodramatic creation that one would imagine. It unfolds a neat, clean, interesting story in a lively manner. While there are strong situations in it, there is also an abundance of humor. The characters lay well against each other, and they are diversified ones at that, being drawn from the rough frontiersmen and Indians of Colorado in the early acts, and later from the swell circles of San Francisco society, with English noblemen thrown in for a foil for the rough, good hearted millionaires, made rich by the discovery of "Garvey's luck." Specialties and comedy scenes abound, and the company and scenery are the strongest yet presented.

* * * * *

"Nip and Tuck" is the English title given to an interesting and very successful play by the great French author, Adolph D'Ennery, who became well known through his other work, "The Two Orphans," will be seen here for the first time at Music Hall, Saturday matinee and night. It has been highly successful wherever produced—in Paris, London, New York and all over the United States, and Harry Webber, himself an author and adapter of plays, has been particularly well received wherever he has presented the play. It abounds in marvellous doings, situations and climaxes. It is a story of two friends, detectives, who are trying to outwit each other in trying to discover the reasons and mysteries of a great crime. Mr. Webber appears as one of the detectives, and assumes a number of disguises in order to circumvent his rival. There are laughable features in the piece and the matinee will be very enjoyable for ladies and children.

* * * * * *

Ticket speculators are said to be causing more or less trouble for Vogel & Deming's Minstrels which are booked for appearance in this city at Music Hall Tuesday, April 23, the management of the organization having found it necessary to warn local managers to use every care and means to prevent these leeches buying up the major portion of the house that they may exact exhorbitant prices from intending purchasers. The sale of seats for this attraction will begin tomorrow, and an order has already gone forth prohibiting the sale of more than six tickets to any one purchaser, unless the person is sufficiently well known to prohibit the possibility of an alliance with the dishonest speculators.

A Raging, Roaring Flood

Washed down a telegraph line which Chas. C. Ellis, of Lisbon Ia., had to repair. "Standing waist deep in icy water," he writes, "gave me a terrible cold and cough. It grew worse daily. Finally the best doctors in Oakland, Neb., Sioux City and Omaha said I had Consumption and could not live. Then I began using Dr. King's New Discovery and was wholly cured by six bottles." Positively guaranteed for Coughs, Colds and all Throat and Lung troubles by L. W. Randolph. Price 50c and $1.00.

LITERARY.

The leading feature of The Smart Set for May is a novelette entitled "The Wage of Character," by Julien Gordon (Mrs. Van Renselaer Cruger.) Mrs. M. E. W. Sherwood contributes to the number an appreciation of Edward VII, entitled "England's Princely King." Another striking feature of the number is "A Monarch of a Small Survey," by Gertrude Atherton, perhaps the most powerful short story yet written by this author. Edgar Saltus contributes one of his brilliant essays, "The Queen of Paradise," and Edgar Fawcett treats of the evil and the good in the blood in a strong story entitled "Debtors to Heritage." Besides a $100 prize poem, "The Dancing of Suleime," by Clinton Scollard, there are poetic contributions by Theodosia Garrison, Caroline Duer, Ella Higginson, Carolyn Wells, Charles Henry Webb, Catherine Young Glen, Charlotte Becker, and Ethel M. Kelley

—There will be an important meeting of Iona Council, Degree of Pocohontas, this evening.

—Noah Dove Encampment, No. 28, I. O. O. F., will meet tomorrow evening in regular session.

—There will be initiation at the meeting of Columbia Lodge, No. 58, A. O. U. W., Friday evening.

—Mr. Nevius, of Elmwood place, who recently purchased Henry Van-Name's residence on the same street, will take possession May 1.

—You cannot enjoy perfect health, rosy cheeks and sparkling eyes if your liver is sluggish and your bowels clogged. DeWitt's Little Early Risers cleanse the whole system. They never gripe. L. W. Randolph.

A HUMAN NEEDLE CASE.

More Than a Hundred Needles Extracted From French Girl's Body.

PARIS, April 17.—A dispatch from St. Germain, near this city, describes the extraordinary case of Julienne Landrieux, a servant girl, from whose body dozens of needles are being extracted. The girl complained of considerable irritation of the skin and last Thursday went to a local druggist, who found a number of needles emerging from various parts of her body. He extracted them with pincers. The girl has returned several times a day since, and up to yesterday morning the druggist had drawn out 120 needles from her arms, hands, feet, breast, the lobe of her ear, her eyelids and the corner of her right eye. The girl experiences no pain until she feels the needle piercing the epidermis. The needles always emerge thick end first and unless immediately extracted disappear again.

Two reputable newspapers, the Matin and the Temps, have investigated the matter and vouch for the authenticity of the story. Mlle. Landrieux says that five years ago, when she was 11 years old, she amused herself, with other children, by swallowing quantities of needles. She swallowed 49 in one day and never felt any inconvenience until recently and has enjoyed the best of health. While relating the foregoing to the reporter of the Temps who saw her at the druggist's, she exclaimed, "I feel one in my eye now." The druggist then upturned her right eyelid and with a magnet drew out four fragments of needles.

Brave Act Rewarded.

DAYTON, O., April 17.—Henry H. Hawthorne, one of the invalid soldiers in the Soldiers' home here, has just received notice that he has been made the beneficiary to the amount of from $200,000 to $500,000, left him by a woman out of gratitude for having saved her life many years ago. The woman is Mrs. Josephine Fairfax, who recently died in the south of France. Hawthorne was born in England and came to the United States when a boy. Later he went to England on a visit. While at Kent bathing in the sea he saw a woman and her son in a boat which capsized. Hawthorne, being an expert swimmer, succeeded in rescuing the woman, but the son was drowned. He returned to the United States and served in the army during the civil war. A few years ago he met Mrs. Fairfax in England and refused a reward which she urged him to take. He heard nothing more from her until he was informed of the bequest left to him.

Minister Loomis Arrives.

NEW YORK, April 17.—Hon. F. B. Loomis, United States minister to Venezuela, is a passenger on the Red D line steamer Caracas, which arrived in quarantine last night from San Juan. When seen on board that vessel Mr. Loomis refused to say anything regarding Venezuelan matters except that President Castro seemed to be firmly seated when he left Venezuela. When asked if he intended to return to Venezuela, he said that he did not know, as he had not given the matter a thought. Mr. Loomis, however, in reply to questions said that it was untrue that he had expressed himself regarding General Castro's attitude toward Americans, nor had he said anything about General Andrade. Mr. Loomis will remain in New York city for a few days and will then go to Washington.

Henry Siegel Injured.

NEW YORK, April 17.—Henry Siegel, president of the Siegel-Cooper company, met with a painful accident in Central park yesterday afternoon which will confine him to his room in the Hotel Manhattan for several weeks. Mr. Siegel was riding in the park, when the horse stepped on a stone, stumbled and before Mr. Siegel could extricate himself from the stirrups fell, bearing his rider to the ground. The horse rolled over on Mr. Siegel's left side, tearing a ligament on the left thigh and bruising him about the face and body.

ST. LOUIS, April 17.—Charles Smith and William Johnson were killed and J. Fisher and W. R. Hamilton were seriously wounded yesterday during the progress of an election riot in Winstanley Park, a suburb of East St. Louis, Ills. Fred Ayer, who is alleged to have fired the shots, is under arrest. The trouble grew out of an election contest between Henry Drummond and Raymond R. Dejo, opposing candidates for the position of village president. The killed and wounded were partisans of Drummond.

WAR ON STEEL TRUST

President Shaffer Says the Fight Has Begun.

MAY ORDER OUT SIXTY THOUSAND MEN

Conference Today Will Be Urged to Close Every Plant of the American Sheet Steel Company.

PITTSBURG, April 17.—President T. J. Shaffer of the Amalgamated association has issued a call for a special meeting of the national advisory board, together with the vice presidents of every district in which the sheet combination has a plant. It will be held at national headquarters in this city.

President Shaffer, in speaking of the meeting today, said, with considerable emphasis:

"I shall advise and urge all the members of the board to vote for an immediate closing of all the plants of the American Sheet Steel company in the country. This will be the beginning of the fight, and I will say nothing further on the subject."

It is estimated that 60,000 men will go out if the order to strike in all the trust works is given.

When asked if the association could win by simply shutting down the sheet mills and whether an order would be sent out to close all the union tin plate and steel plants of the United States Steel corporation, Mr. Shaffer replied:

"I will say nothing more than 'this is the beginning,' and you can take whatever meaning you desire from what I have said."

The officials of the American Sheet Steel company stated yesterday that about 11 fires were at work and that applications for employment were coming in rapidly. It was stated that 73 applications were received Monday, but the applicants were informed that no definite answer would be given them for several days.

An official very close to the management of the sheet steel company said yesterday that it is the intention of the company to close down the McKeesport plant for an indefinite period. The present is not an opportune time for a labor contention, owing to the transitory state of the company's future policy, caused by its absorption by the United States Steel corporation.

It was further stated that the nonunion plants of the company were producing 45 per cent of the tonnage of the commission and that no serious inconvenience would result to the trade by the suspension of the union sheet mills.

The strikers secured accessions to their ranks yesterday by the 125 men in the Knobling department joining them. This leaves only the steel mill and the hammer departments at work, and they will continue in operation until the work now in progress is finished, when the shut down will be complete.

Railway Postal Car at Exposition.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Postmaster General Smith has issued an order directing that a railway postal car be made a part of the United States postal exhibit at the Pan-American exposition in Buffalo. This car will be known as "Pan-American Railway Postoffice" and will act as the mailing division of the Pan-American branch postoffice, which has been ordered established at the exposition grounds. Railway postal clerks will be detailed for service in this car, who will distribute, pouch and dispatch all outgoing mails and perform such other duties as devolve upon a regular railway postoffice or mailing division.

Steyn Re-elected President.

CAPE TOWN, April 17.—A rather extraordinary gathering for the purpose of electing a president of the Orange Free State has been held in the Boshof district. Forty burghers, claiming to represent a commando, attended. It was really a haphazard collection of Boers, including a number of youngsters from marauding bands. Mr. Steyn was declared re-elected president, and a feast followed. A dispatch from Petrusberg says that Boers who refuse to take the oath of allegiance to Great Britain are being sent across an imaginary border line.

The Gainsborough J. P. Morgan's?

LONDON, April 17.—The society paper Onlooker says that J. Pierpont Morgan has practically effected the purchase for £25,000 of the famous Gainsborough portrait of the Duchess of Devonshire, which was recently recovered in the United States. The negotiations will be closed when Thomas Agnew, the head of the Bond street firm, returns from Turkey. This newspaper also says that Mr. Morgan has recently paid an enormous sum for a noted painting by Turner.

Christian Science In Germany.

BERLIN, April 17.—The press of Berlin is again devoting attention to the efforts of the Christian Scientists in the American colony, who are now holding two services every Sunday, one in English and one in German, at the private residence of an American. The Kreuz Zeitung asserts that the leaders of the movement are projecting several churches, including one in this city, and it characterizes the movement as "an inroad of Anglo-Saxon Protestantism."

Water Supply For Panama.

COLON, Colombia, April 17.—In view of the prolonged drought the mayor of Panama in an open letter suggests that the Colombian minister of foreign affairs, Dr. C. Martinez Silva, should endeavor to obtain in whatever canal scheme is finally adopted the insertion of a clause stipulating the obligation to construct an aqueduct to supply the isthmus with wholesome water.

PHILADELPHIA, April 17.—A combination of umbrella rib manufacturers has been completed, and the new company, to be known as the National Umbrella Frame company, will have headquarters in this city. CANAL BILL IS DEAD.

Republican Leaders Abandon $26,000,000 Project.

MEASURE TOO STRONGLY OPPOSED.

Democrats and Anticanal Republicans Make Passage Impossible. Fate of Stranahan Mortgage Tax Bill Is In Doubt.

ALBANY, April 17.—The $26,000,000 canal improvement bill was officially abandoned last night when after a two hours' conference with Governor Odell the canal adherents and Republican leaders conceded that the measure would be swamped if it came up for votes. It will therefore be allowed to die in the committee of the assembly.

At the conference were Governor Odell, Lieutenant Governor Woodruff, State Chairman Dunn, Senators Ellsworth, Higgins, Raines, Krum, Marshall, Elsberg, Davis, Green, Hill, Speaker Nixon, Leader Allds and Mr. Kelsey. Every phase of the situation was discussed, but the situation simmered down to the fact that John E. Carroll of Tammany had notified the Democrats not to vote for the bill, and this, with the anticanal Republicans, made passage impossible. Governor Odell said it was not a question that could be properly made a party measure, and he could not see the way clear to recommend it. Assemblyman M. E. Lewis said at the conclusion of the conference that he would push his bill for a $5,000,000 improvement for good roads, but from reliable sources it is learned that this bill, too, will be laid aside and not passed.

Despite the fact that the senate Republican caucus Monday night decided to pass the Stranahan mortgage tax bill in its present shape, there is every indication now that unless it is considerably amended it will meet with the same opposition as the canal bill met with in the assembly.

Even Governor Odell, who has favored a mortgage tax, is wavering in his allegiance to the bill unless some of the exemptions are changed greatly, while at least 20 Republican assemblymen declare they will not go in caucus on the measure.

The Rough Riders' College.

NEW YORK, April 17.—It is announced here that the National Rough Riders' Military encampment, which was originally projected for Colorado, has now been transferred to Wyoming, after having been incorporated under the laws of the state of New Jersey, with ample capital and with Colonel W. F. Cody as its president. It is also announced that the school will hereafter be known as the Cody Military College and Industrial Academy of Rough Riders. Brigadier General E. V. Sumner, U. S. A., retired, is one of the incorporators and commanding general and treasurer of the college. Colonel Schuyler Crosby of New York, a former governor of Montana and a member of General Sheridan's staff, is first vice president and Mr. C. D. Curley second vice president. One of the objects sought to be obtained is to fit the students of this college for practical camp life and to command a company of soldiers in time of peace or war.

Good Roads Demonstration.

CHICAGO, April 17.—The National Good Roads association commenced yesterday its first practical demonstration of road construction on its southern trip at the town of Flossmoor, 30 miles south of Chicago, on the Illinois Central railroad. Ground was broken for the building of a quarter of a mile of stone road under the supervision of Mr. Charles T. Harrison, road expert of the United States department of agriculture, and six teams, working all day, nearly completed the necessary grading. The stretch of road will be completed by Saturday of this week, when the "good roads special," consisting of seven flat cars bearing scrapers, sprinklers, a rock crusher and rollers and a commissary and officers' car, will start for New Orleans, where the next demonstration will be made.

Deep Snow In Adirondacks.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., April 17.—The trout fishing season in the Adirondacks opened Monday, but as all the lakes, ponds and streams are locked in ice practically no fishing has been done. The prospects are that the ice will not go out for two or three days yet. There is good sleighing yet in the vicinity of Redford, Clinton county, this being the one hundred and sixtieth day of continuous sleighing in that vicinity. In the village of Dannemora there are snowdrifts six feet high in places where the sun does not strike all day.

LACKAWANNA SWITCHMEN OUT.

Because Company Discharged Two of Their Number.

SCRANTON, Pa., April 17.—About 100 switchmen employed in the Lackawanna railroad yard in this city quit work at noon yesterday because two of their number, Michael Herrity and Patrick Tooney, were discharged. Yardmaster B. E. Knowles dismissed the two men and placed two men from Hoboken in their positions. When John Murray refused to instruct the new men, he was discharged. Thomas Timlin of the Switchmen's Brotherhood grievance committee waited on General Superintendent Clarke later in the day and asked for arbitration for Herrity and Tooney's discharge. He was informed that their services were unsatisfactory to the company and that their discharge did not affect the others. Superintendent Clarke states that the men will not be reinstated and that the question of their membership in the brotherhood did not enter into the case at all.

Three hundred switchmen from Scranton and vicinity were in session last night in Carpenters' hall until 11 o'clock discussing the proposition of calling out the switchmen on the whole system from Hoboken to Buffalo. The officers would not give out anything that was done at the meeting, and the members who were approached declared they were sworn to secrecy.

NEVADA RAILWAY WAR.

W. A. Clark's Road Warned—Sheriff Takes a Hand.

SALT LAKE CITY, April 17.—In the railroad building war going on in Nevada the forces of United States Senator W. A. Clark of Montana, the projector of the Salt Lake and Los Angeles road, have seized both ends of tunnel No. 1 west from Nevada and declare that they will make their stand there against the forces of the Oregon Short Line, representing the Harriman syndicate and Union Pacific interests. The Short Line forces are laying tracks night and day and expect to reach the tunnel in four or five days.

The agents of the Clark road here were preparing to dispatch an additional force of armed men to the scene of hostilities, but early yesterday morning Attorney Whitemore of the Clark road received a telegram from Sheriff Johnson of Lincoln county, Nev., where the trouble is, reading as follows:

"Understand you are sending armed men to Lincoln county to protect your rights. Would remind you the courts are open for that purpose. I ask you to withdraw all armed men from this county."

This telegram has had the effect of stopping the sending of re-enforcements by the Clark people for the present.

Harder, proprietor of the Empire Agricultural works at Cobleskill, was found floating in the Hudson yesterday afternoon below Cornwall by a tugboat man. The body was brought to Newburg and taken charge of by the coroner. Mr. Harder and his wife had been at Dr. Strong's sanitarium at Saratoga Springs for several weeks, where the former was recuperating. On Feb. 18 he left the sanitarium to go to Cobleskill to vote at the local election. He went to Albany and thence to Fishkill. On the night of the 19th he boarded the ferry to come to Newburg and disappeared. His coat and umbrella were found in the cabin of the boat. In a pocket of his coat were a gold watch, a pocketbook and a roll of bills. It is supposed that while temporarily deranged he jumped overboard.

Towne Made President.

DULUTH, April 17.—Charles A. Towne, the Populist nominee for vice president last year, is president of a company just formed, with a capital of $1,000,000, to work what is said to be a vast deposit of corundum, an abrasive mineral similar to emery. The deposits, consisting of two hills, practically all composed of corundum, are located on the north shore of Lake Superior, about 20 miles from here. It is the intention to establish a plant in Duluth.

To a person of narrow ideas it seems impossible that we should be able to make such a gigantic offer, but we have the money, brains and reputation, we know exactly what we are doing, and if we can legitimately gain a million subscribers by this grand idea we know that this million of well pleased subscribers can be induced to recommend The Woman's World to all friends, thereby building up our circulation still further. We are willing to spend 25,000 dollars in this contest in building up a big subscription list, and when this money is spent we reserve the right to publish a notification that the contest has been discontinued. Don't delay until it is too late. The contest will continue until July 1, 1901.

We give a Bonus Prize of 250 dollars, independent of all others, to the person who sends in the list gotten up in the best and handsomest manner. Our committee will decide and award prizes daily, but the special 250 dols. prize will be awarded in September, 1901. Any birds name found in the dictionaries accepted.

CONSTIPATION

"I have gone 14 days at a time without a movement of the bowels, not being able to move them except by using hot water injections. Chronic constipation for seven years placed me in this terrible condition; during that time I did everything I heard of but never found any relief; such was my case until I began using CASCARETS. I now have from one to three passages a day, and if I was rich I would give $100.00 for each movement; it is such a relief." AYLMER L. HUNT, 1659 Russell St., Detroit, Mich.

UNREST IN RUSSIA.

An Address to the Czar Liberally Signed.

VIENNA, April 17.—The newspapers here are receiving reports according to which the situation in Russia is becoming worse.

Wholesale arrests continue throughout the empire. Fifteen hundred persons were arrested in Odessa on Sunday last. Revolutionary proclamations continue to be distributed in St. Petersburg, Moscow, Odessa, Kiev and elsewhere.

The most remarkable of recent developments is a proposal to dispatch to the czar an address begging him to grant a constitution. Fifteen thousand signatures have already been appended to it, including those of many landowners, merchants and literary men. The address is causing much excitement. It is generally regarded as a most daring step.

The full text of Count Tolstoi's address to the czar on March 28 has been received. He submits a lengthy programme of reforms. The whole document is full of the plainest speaking. The following is a sample:

"Again murders, again street slaughters, again will there be executions, again the terror of false accusations, threats and spite on one hand and again hatred, the desire for vengeance and readiness for self sacrifice on the other. Again, all Russian men are divided into two conflicting camps and are committing or preparing to commit the greatest crimes. It is very possible that this time the disturbances will be repressed, though it may also happen that the soldiers and police upon whom the government rests so much hope will perceive that what they are forced to do is the great crime of fratricide and refuse to obey, but even if the disturbances are quelled at present they cannot be stifled. They will continue to spread in a concealed form and sooner or later will break out in increased violence and produce yet greater suffering and crime."

THE BURLINGTON DEAL.

J. J. Hill Announces the Completion of Railway Combine.

ST. PAUL, April 17.—J. J. Hill passed through here during the day. He was accompanied by Edward Tuck and A. T. French, both heavy stockholders in the Great Northern. The party left at once for the Pacific coast. Before his departure, however, Mr. Hill said that he had successfully completed the last link of his chain of negotiations for the purchase of the Burlington and its consolidation with the Great Northern and Northern Pacific in one colossal organization.

He said further that the Erie would not be a part of a transcontinental line, that there will be no transcontinental line and that the Erie would remain free from alliances.

What he wanted of the Burlington, he declared, was not an outlet to Chicago as a link in an eastern system for the Great Northern and Northern Pacific, but chiefly a connection with St. Louis and Kansas City.

No Union Labor Wanted.

NEWPORT, Ky., April 17.—A notice was posted on the doors of the factory of the Wadsworth Watch Case company, where a strike has been in progress, that hereafter no union labor would be employed by that concern. An additional notice states that the same stringent action had been taken by the following leading companies of the country manufacturing watch cases: The Keystone company of Philadelphia, the Fahig of Sag Harbor, N. Y., and the Crescent of Newark, N. J. Notice was given that the companies had formed a combine against the employment of union labor.

Promotion For Postal Employees.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—The annual adjustments of postoffice salaries and allowances thus far made, to take effect July 1 next, provide for 4,730 promotions of postoffice clerks and for the appointment of 1,800 additional clerks at postoffices throughout the country. With the adjustments yet to be made at other offices, these figures probably will be swelled to about 6,500 promotions and close to 2,200 additional clerks. This adjustment will raise the average pay of the postoffice clerks by about $100, as 75 per cent of the promotions will go to clerks in the lower grades.

Sir Alfred Milner Coming Home.

LONDON, April 17.—Sir Alfred Milner, according to The Daily Chronicle, is coming to England early next month and will remain two months to recruit his health, which has been severely tried by his arduous labors in South Africa. Most of the morning papers comment upon the effect which his absence at a critical moment is likely to have on the campaign, recalling the fact that General Botha made the objections to Sir Alfred Milner one of the chief reasons for rejecting the peace terms.

Newspapers Favor Postal Plan.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Newspapers already are sending their replies to the circular letter sent out by the postoffice department asking whether a departmental rule that will absolutely stop all premium inducements for subscriptions would be regarded as injurious to legitimate newspapers and periodicals. All except one of the responses already in warmly favor such a rule, the exception being a request for further information on the subject.

Russia and Japan Will Agree.

LONDON, April 17.—"Pourparlers are proceeding between Russia and Japan," says the Odessa correspondent of The Standard, "and it is expected that the result will be the conclusion of a pacific agreement regarding Korea. No explanation, however, is vouchsafed as to how the European powers and the United States are to be propitiated and reconciled to such a modus vivendi founded upon the wreck of Korean independence."

Judge Earl Appointed Referee.

ALBANY, April 17.—Supreme Court Justice N. Cady Herrick yesterday issued an order appointing Judge Robert Earl of Herkimer, former chief judge of the court of appeals, referee to take testimony in the various litigations growing out of the enforcement of the franchise tax law by the state board of tax commissioners.

Twenty-five Miners Killed.

JOHANNESBURG, Transvaal Colony, April 17.—A cage filled with natives fell down a deep shaft of the Geldenhuis mine. Twenty-six of the natives were killed.

Death of Judge Hardin.

LITTLE FALLS, N. Y., April 17.—Justice George A. Hardin died at his home in this city last night of kidney difficulty. He was 69 years of age.

THE MANILA FRAUDS

Secretary Root Cables MacArthur For the Facts.

GOVERNMENT HAS NOTHING DEFINITE

Commanding General Will Be Expected to Push the Trials and Investigation to the Fullest Extent.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Secretary Root has cabled General MacArthur asking for additional information concerning the reports of frauds in Manila. While definite instructions have not been given General MacArthur heretofore to make a searching and complete investigation, it is understood that the requests for information were of a character to imply that the department expected such an investigation should be made. Nothing definite has been received from General MacArthur about the alleged frauds, although reference has been made to the investigation in cablegrams received. The first dispatch on the subject from General MacArthur said there had been exaggeration in the press reports, but the persistence with which the reports have been reiterated and the news dispatch yesterday giving names and specific amounts have indicated to the department officials that perhaps General MacArthur was not advised fully when he made his first report. It can be said that the department intends to have all the information possible on the subject, and General MacArthur will be expected to push the trials and make a complete report of any and all wrongdoing.

Major George B. Davis, whose name is mentioned in the dispatch from Manila as being credited upon the books of Evans & Co. as having received $1,000, is in Washington. He was called upon by the war department for an explanation and to an officer said that he knew nothing about the matter. He was closely questioned and said that he never had any money from the firm of contractors mentioned, had not borrowed any and could not explain why there should have been any charge made. Although he is in this country on sick leave, he will return to Manila, and if the matter is not cleared up when he arrives there will demand a court of inquiry.

Evans of the firm of Evans & Co. is known to some army officers in Washington. Evans was in this country a short time ago and may now be in New York, if he has not returned to Manila. It is not known whether he is an Englishman, an American or a Canadian. He was from Niagara, though from which side of the river is not known.

At the commissary department General Weston spoke of his subordinate, Colonel Woodruff, in the highest terms.

FUNSTON SUCCEEDS GRANT.

First and Second Districts of Northern Luzon Consolidated.

MANILA, April 17.—The First and Second military districts of northern Luzon have been consolidated and placed under command of Brigadier General Funston. Similar action has been taken with regard to the Fourth and Fifth districts of southern Luzon, and General Sumner has been placed in charge. This action has allowed the relief of Generals Grant and Hall respectively and is one of the results of the pacified conditions of these districts. It is expected that further consolidation will be made at an early date.

Sisson's band of outlaws made a night attack on Norzagaray, Bulacan province, and succeeded in burning a part of the town.

A civilian named Fletcher, accused of unlawful conversion of commissary stores, will be tried by court martial today.

The chief of staff of the insurgent general Mascardo has surrendered at the town of Marivales, in Bataan province, Luzon. He said that Mascardo's band of followers, now greatly diminished, are in a bad way. It is impossible for them to elude the Americans, they are unable to obtain food and want to surrender. It is expected that General Mascardo himself will surrender shortly.

It is intimated that an official announcement regarding the disposition of Aguinaldo will soon be made.

Hetty Green In Court.

TAUNTON, Mass., April 17.—Mrs. Hetty Green tried to make objections to the remarks of Attorney General Knowlton in the superior judicial court, and the interruptions caused the angry request from Mr. Knowlton, "Will your honor have the woman keep still?" One of the court officers warned Mrs. Green to refrain from interruptions, and she finally subsided, although not very willingly. The case at issue was that of Hetty R. Green versus William W. Crapo and referred to the settlement of a New Bedford estate, she having taken an appeal to the probate court decree allowing the report of Mr. Crapo, sole surviving trustee under the will of Sylvia Ann Howland.

Holland Society Dinner.

CHICAGO, April 17.—Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands was toasted and Joseph Chamberlain of England denounced at the sixth annual banquet of the Holland society of Chicago, which was held at the Grand Pacific hotel. About 100 members of the society were present, with a number of invited guests, and the affair was the most successful and brilliant of its kind ever given under the auspices of the club.

Edward's Coronation.

LONDON, April 17.—The coronation of King Edward will take place at the end of June, 1902. Westminster abbey, according to Truth, will be entirely closed to the public for four months prior to the event and all services will be suspended in order to prepare the interior for the ceremony. The details of the ceremonial will be settled next week by a committee of the privy council.

Soldiers' Home Site.

KNOXVILLE, April 17.—A special from Johnson City says J. H. Birmingham, treasurer of the National Soldiers' home board, announces that the Joseph Lyle farm has been selected as the site for the home. It consists of 300 acres, and 100 acres additional probably will be purchased.

More Bonds Bought.

The General Sentiment.

The Board of Trade attempted some time ago to arouse popular interest in the municipal ownership of the local water works. That was before the majority of the water bills had grown under their adjustment by the Plainfield Water Supply Company to conform with the fixed rates. Monday evening the Board of Trade held another public meeting on the subject of municipal ownership and a great crowd of citizens turned out.

This public meeting of the Board of Trade only demonstrated what The Daily Press' ballot did some time ago, that there is a general sentiment in city and borough in favor of municipal ownership. There is no doubt but that those who give the subject any thought are in favor of seeing municipal control of a water supply plant. This sentiment is in the abstract, however, and has not favored any particular course of action.

It rests with the Common Council of this city and the Borough Council of North Plainfield to go deeper into the subject and ascertain just what must be done. Both of those bodies have referred the subject to committees. It is not a subject that can be hurried through without careful and deliberate consideration, so no immediate action can be expected.

It is a very important problem to the city and borough, this proposition to turn over the control of the water supply of those two municipalities to the officials of the two places. It is not one which can be settled at once. There are many things which must be looked into before either of the municipalities embark in such a venture. Therefore let the investigation be careful and sure, but by all means let it go on so that the Councils of city and borough will know just exactly what is to be done and how to do it.

The streets of Plainfield have been remarkably free from offensive characters who roam about acting and speaking in a way to offend the decency of those who may chance to be in the neighborhood. The contrast between this city and others of the State has been remarkable in this direction. When such a character wilfully disturbs the peace of the city streets and makes such a spectacle in public as did the young colored woman who came before City Judge Runyon yesterday, it is perfectly justifiable on the part of the local magistrate to impose an unusually heavy sentence. Judge Runyon did right yesterday when he imposed a sentence that will keep that young woman within the bounds of the county jail for over three months. Such characters are not needed in Plainfield, and those who do venture here should be given such a warning as will deter others from following in their path.

New Market has just secured an improvement which will greatly add to the advantages of that village. The lines of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company have been extended to that place and the inhabitants are now able to talk with the rest of the world. The improvement has been a long time coming but it will be just as greatly appreciated now as ever before. The convenience of a telephone will be greatly appreciated by the business men of New Market and by those who are called upon to transact business there.

It has been noted as an evidence of the power of newspaper advertising says the Philadelphia Record that although Milwaukee has large engine works and other manufacturing establishments which are more important than the breweries (and although its stereotyped nickname is the "Cream City") it is known throughout the world almost exclusively as the "Beer City," because the brewers have advertised extensively in the newspapers. It is also affirmed that a large part of the capital invested at Seattle was attracted by newspaper advertising.

The new street signs are a wonderful improvement to the city and everyone has admired them. Now it would be well if the house numbers were looked after. On some houses there are no numbers, others are provided with two sets, the old and the new, while some have the numbers so hidden away that it is extremely difficult to find them.

Every day brings news of new building operations being started in one end or the other of the city. Plainfield is an ideal site for homes as many people know. The sooner that the fact is blazoned forth the sooner will the building boom assume even greater proportions.

It is a serious offense to injure the apparatus at a fire and every effort should be made to protect the firemen in their work. The cutting of the hose by wagon tires might prove very disastrous in case of a bad conflagration.

The much coveted plum, the office of the court crier at the county court at Elizabeth, was awarded to a Republican from Elizabeth as was generally expected. There was a host of men who were anxious for the place.

No cases of remarkable importance are booked to come up for trial at the April term of the Somerset county court which opened at Somerville yesterday.

JAMES FILLMORE ARRESTED.

Charged With Drunkenness and Disorderly Conduct by His Father.

James Fillmore, of Netherwood avenue and East Front street, was arrested yesterday by Roundsman Flynn on the charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct. The arrest was made at the instigation of the young man's father, John Fillmore.

The hearing was set for this morning but City Judge Runyon granted a continuance in order that the accused man might summon witnesses on his behalf.

(Special Correspondence.)

Holton, and will take place in two weeks.

The eastbound local train which leaves here at 7:55 a. m. was derailed at Park View yesterday morning. The front truck of the express car broke and some of the iron work began to tear up ties until the train finally left the track and stopped. The track was torn up for 700 feet and the express car was considerably damaged. Fortunately, aside from a rough shaking up, no one was injured. The wrecking train and crew replaced the derailed cars and traffic on the eastbound track was resumed before noon.

Miss Higgins, of Bound Brock, and Miss Soper, of Metuchen, our local school teachers, have been reappointed to their positions for another year.

ALTERATIONS AT MUSIC HALL

PLANS FILED FOR NEW STORE WHICH WILL OCCUPY ENTRANCE.

Building Permit was Issued Yesterday—How it is Planned to Arrange the Store.

Plans for the extensive alterations necessary to be made to the entrance of Music Hall in order to prepare it suitably for store purposes, have been made by Architect Edward V. French. They have met with the approval of Building Inspector T. O Doane, who issued the permit yesterday.

In front of the archway, parallel with the building line, will be placed large show windows. The rear will be enclosed by a large brick wall. According to the plans, the width of the store is to be forty-seven feet and the depth ninety six feet. In the rear to the east of the present lobby of the theatre a brick extension, one story high, will be constructed. This addition will be used for storage purposes in connection with the store.

Concerning the theatre itself a suggestion has been made that a new entrance to it be made from Madison avenue, but as it is extremely doubtful if the play house will be used next fall no steps will be taken in the matter at present.

Work on contemplated improvements will commenced shortly after May 4, when the present lease will terminate by mutual consent.

A head lumber surveyor for a mill in East Hampden, Me., gives the following account of a very curious difficulty: "For the past six or seven years I have been troubled with constipation, and as regularly as each Sunday came round I would have a terrible headache; so bad in fact, that I would scarcely go out of the house at all for the day. My work is such that I am standing in one spot checking lumber nearly all day long, and so get no exercise to speak of. I used all kinds of headache cures that I could find, but they would soon give no effect. One Saturday one of the firm gave me a bottle of Ripans Tabules and I used them that night. The next morning I was more than surprised to find no headache. I have used them regularly since, and have no headaches, am no longer constipated, and my general health is all that could be desired. I couldn't keep house without Ripans Tabules." A friend of this man adds: "He desires that his name be not used in an advertisement, but would be glad to answer any inquiries. I can personally vouch for the truth of his story, as I was the one who called his attention to the Tabules."

WANTED—A case of bad health that R·I·P·A·N·S will not benefit. They banish pain and prolong life. One gives relief. Note the word R·I·P·A·N·S on the packing, and accept no substitute. R·I·P·A·N·S. Five cents may be had at any drug store. Ten samples and one thousand testimonials will be mailed to any address for 9 cents, forwarded to the Ripans Chemical Co., No. 10 Spruce St., New York.

THE MODE.

Fashions In Tailor Made Trimmings and In Wraps.

For tailor made gowns of thin, soft cloth, such as are worn during warm weather, no trimming is so suitable as stitched bands of the same material, straight, curved or cut in ornamental forms.

The bolero is in advance of all other wraps in favor, but its forms are so various that the term bolero is really a general term for any short, close jacket. With long or half length sleeves it is the summer wrap par excellence.

A variation is shown in the illustration given today. It shows a sort of closed bolero, coming to the waist line at the back, but immensely elongated in front, to form two rounded tabs, which are bordered by a circular, scant ruffle. The garment closes with three large buttons upon three scallops. The material is cloth, and the back and the ends of the tabs are heavily embroidered. The revers of white satin are also embroidered, and there is a turned down collar. The sleeves are bell shaped and embroidered at the bottom, a circular ruffle extending over the hand. The cravat is of lawn, with a lace jabot. Light satin forms the lining. The hat worn is of white neapolitan braid, with a wreath of azaleas around the crown and a bouquet of the same flowers under the brim.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

TAFFETA.

No Waning In Its Popularity as a Summer Material.

Taffeta bids fair to enjoy the same success this season enjoyed in former years. It is often enriched by tucks, cordings and combinations of various kinds, however, which in a way simplify the style of its making up because they take the place of separate ornamentation.

Black taffeta costumes trimmed with black velvet are a revival of a fashion which obtained a generation or more ago. The style of making is, however, quite different. The skirt is very long and has several circular flounces bordered with velvet bands. The bodice is trimmed in various ways with velvet, and the whole effect is of quiet elegance.

The cut shows a costume for an elderly woman. The skirt is of plain violet velvet. The bodice of plum cloth has a long basque and a large collar of violet velvet bordered by a ruffle of black chantilly lace. The collar, long chemisette and jabot are also of chantilly. The close sleeves of cloth have large cuffs of violet velvet. The belt of violet velvet is fastened by a jet clasp.

Attractive Gowns the Summer Girls Will Wear

The Wardrobes for Seaside, Lake and Mountain Resorts Are Unusually Elaborate

The Selection of Wardrobes for Summer Wear

NEW YORK summer girls are at work selecting, planning and preparing the wardrobes with which they will capture the hearts of men at the seaside, lake and mountain resorts. It may seem early to turn one's attention to such things as yachting, tennis, golf and other outdoor costumes, but the fact is the New York girl rushes into them with a new enthusiasm for each year. To her the summer is by far the best of the four seasons, and she prepares for it with a carefulness that is never shown the other seasons.

For this class of gowns the girl who will reign supreme within a few weeks more selects French flannels, serges, tweeds, shepherd-checked cloths, habit cloths and French costume cloths. And in the wash materials, which after all are really the important ones for summer wear, there are linens, piques, zephyrs, cotton pongees, and a large variety of diagonal scallops, striped or sprigged materials.

These gowns are to be trimmed with strappings of self-material and white goods, wide or narrow braids, machine stitching, or coarse and heavy ecru or butter-colored lace, with numerous buttons and buckles. In fact the summer girl of the new century promises to be a decided change and improvement over the summer girl that we knew last century so far as the elaborateness of her gowns are concerned.

Models of these outdoor costumes for summer wear are even now to be seen in all the better class of stores. Of those so shown a yachting costume that depicts the style that promises to be popular is of dark blue serge trimmed with white serge and gold buttons. The skirt is of the blue with a front panel of white which has a row of gold buttons directly down the front from the waist line to the hem. A bias strapping of white cloth down each side of the blue in front and around the bottom of the skirt. It has a slightly full blouse of the blue, with a deep sailor collar bordered with the white. The blouse also has strappings of white at each side of a white vest, and gold buttons to finish. There is a chemisette of white pique, with a small high vest of the same. The sleeves are of blue to just below the elbow, with white straps crosswise. A full undersleeve of the white pique.

A fascinating and striking costume that may be used for tennis, yachting or other outdoor wear is of a shepherd-checked cloth in a vivid red with each seam stitched four times with black silk. The jacket comes just to the waist line, and has collar and pointed revers of red silk stitched with black. It has a plain coat sleeve with turn back cuff of the red silk. A white silk shirt waist finishes the costume.

A dainty tennis blouse is of white French flannel. It has a deep collar of the flannel in tiny tucks, and finished with a white taffeta ribbon ruffle. A high stock and front piece of lawn, in clusters of tucks and French insertion. The new bishop sleeves have a turn-back cuff finished with a ribbon ruffle.

Spring and Summer Seasons to Be Gorgeous in Colors

COLOR, brilliant color, is the keynote of the spring and summer seasons that are now upon us. Not only color, but flowers of the most brilliant hues are the fashion. Flowers in gowns, hats, parasols and every other accessory. This new demand for colors and flowers has even offset to some extent the craze for gold and silver, though both of these will be with us throughout the season.

The color schemes for the summer season will be practically limitless, and, above all else, wonderful. Color combinations will be seen which have never before been considered possible, and yet this year they promise to be not only stylish, but delightfully appropriate.

It is not so much the multiplicity of colors to be used in one garment as the striking contrasts that will be seen. Some of the new model gowns for summer are all of one color with the exception of the now fashionable undersleeve, which is of a brilliant and unheard of contrast in a flaming tint that a year ago we would have said would not do at all. But both times and ideas change, and the greatest change of the present time is the stylish possibility of these strange contrasts.

This all comes of striving for novelty, in which the manufacturers say they cannot meet the demand without introducing some such scheme as this, and what they have offered the fashionable set have taken to with a rush that has been seldom equaled.

So it will be brilliant colors, and when planning your summer gown you need not be afraid to introduce unheard of combinations. You cannot possibly be out of tune with the remainder of the fashionable world because of them. SARAH DAVIDSON.

To Seek Wealth in Africa.

Colored people are still willing to brave the disadvantages of emigration to Monrovia in West Africa. Only recently 16 adventurous members of the race sailed from New York for that country where land will be given them by the Liberian Colonial society of Birmingham, Ala. More of them contemplate going to Liberia within a few weeks.

West Point and Woolwich Military Training Schools

A Comparison of the Institutions That Turn Out Uncle Sam's and John Bull's Army Officer

JUST as an appointment to West Point is the ambition of so many American boys, so is an appointment to Woolwich or Sandhurst the ambition of many of the boys of England. So popular is Uncle Sam's military academy among the American people that newspapers, magazines and books have given much space to the exploiting of its methods and its results. But the methods in vogue in England's military colleges are not so well known in this country, and it has seemed that just at this time, when many American young men were preparing to present themselves at West Point for admission, and when an equal number are striving hard to secure an appointment for entrance next year, that a description of the English schools, and especially of the older of the two, Woolwich, that will in a way serve as a comparison between it and West Point, might be of interest.

Upon the subject of the Royal Military academy at Woolwich, or as it is known in the English army, "The Shop," Capt. F. G. Guggisberg, R. E., has contributed a valuable book, recently published by Cassell & Co., of New York and London, entitled "The Shop." The book traces the history of the academy at Woolwich from the time of its establishment by King George II., on April 30, 1741, down to the present day, and no one who reads it and who has passed through the rigorous training administered at West Point, can help comparing the strict discipline of our own institution with that which existed at Woolwich up to a comparatively recent date. Nor can they help wondering at the great and rapid change for the better which has come over Woolwich within recent years. But even with this change, bringing with it increased discipline, a higher standing of morale of the corps from which are secured the engineer and artillery officers of the English army, a higher mental training, Woolwich as a technical military school does not compare favorably with West Point.

At West Point the embryo army officer must remain four years before he can secure his commission as a second lieutenant in Uncle Sam's army, and then his class standing determines the branch of the service to which he is eligible to a certain extent. Those passing the examinations with the highest average being permitted to choose first, the engineers, second the artillery, third the cavalry and fourth the infantry. At Woolwich it takes but a course of two years to qualify for a commission in either the engineer or artillery service, and at Sandhurt a course of but one and a half years to qualify for a commission in either the infantry or cavalry.

At West Point hazing is now supposed to be a thing of the past. The more brutal and severe forms of hazing probably are, but the "plebe" cadet who reports to the commandant in June will in all probability find that he will still be expected to clean the rifles for a first, second or third classman; that he will carry water for these older cadets; that he will polish their brasses and care for their tents during summer camp. But while he is doing these things it may be a satisfaction to know that the "snooker" at Woolwich is doing much the same things for the upper classmen there. But at Woolwich, as at West Point, the severe forms of hazing is a thing of the past. To reach the perfection of discipline that now prevails at Woolwich the character of the school had to undergo a far greater change than has ever been necessary at West Point. Capt. Guggisberg includes in his book several descriptions of serious mutinies against constituted authority, and many instances of serious breaches of discipline that are memorable in the history of the school. One of these occurred in 1845, when the gentlemen cadets broke all bounds and attempted to demolish the annual fair at Old Charlton. In 1845 the cadets, feeling that their rights had been tampered with when the fair grounds had been put "out of bounds" by the master general at Woolwich, because of numerous breaches of discipline there, organized a general outbreak to display their disapproval of the order. One night during the fair 122 cadets, armed with bludgeons and head staves, rushed from their rooms at a given time, and marched to the fair grounds, where they did considerable damage for which the government was afterward called upon to pay. The stall keepers of the fair and people of the town organized to resist the attack of the cadets, and a miniature battle ensued in which the cadets fared badly, and were finally driven out only to fall into the hands of army officers on duty at Woolwich, who captured several of them. Had such a thing occurred at West Point it would have resulted in the dismissal of at least the leaders, but at Woolwich the whole affair was looked upon as a boys' escapade, and resulted in no severer punishment than the reduction of two or three noncommissioned officers.

At Woolwich the cadets sleep on a crude form of folding bed. They are fastened to the hall at the head, and during the day are turned up against the wall. One form of hazing that still retains considerable popularity is the turning up of these beds while the new cadets, or "snookers," as they are called at Woolwich, are still in them, and then leave them for a while in the uncomfortable position which naturally results from such treatment. Often "snookers" have been left to spend the greater part of a night in this position. Capt. Guggisberg says that if "the victim evinced distaste for the situation the regular portmanteau was piled on top, and occasionally water was freely applied."

Another form of hazing that is still in vogue, though to a limited extent, and is not now as formerly carried on with the knowledge of officers on duty at the school, is the concert. It comes as soon after the new class is admitted as can be arranged conveniently. After the rounds at ten o'clock the quarters of the new men are visited, and each "snooker," clad in sleeping attire, is required to sing whether he can or wishes to. His only alternative is the drinking of a mug of horrible mixture prepared for the occasion, and which it is said is quite as undesirable as West Point tobasco sauce.

Another favorite hazing method still in vogue to a limited extent at Woolwich is the system of hair cutting. Before the "snookers" have had time to discover to just what extent the authority of the older class men extend, they are marched to the barber's and their locks trimmed in various shocking ways. The man who objects the least gets off with the least disfigurement.

The difference in discipline in the two schools, West Point and Woolwich, may be judged to some extent by the rules regarding reveille. At West Point the bugle sounds the time of rising at 5:45 and a roll call follows immediately, absence from which is a serious matter if it cannot be satisfactorily explained. Police call comes five minutes after roll call, and the cadet is kept constantly engaged with a task laid out for him until breakfast call sounds at 6:15. It is a soldier-like method of beginning the day; a method which permits of no drones; with the first note of the reveille everybody must be up or suffer severe consequences. It is not so at Woolwich. Capt. Guggisburg gives us the following description of the beginning of the day in the English school:

"The reveille comes floating in at the window at 6:15 a. m. in a peculiarly weird and aggressive manner; and on their first morning Brown, Jones and Robinson will probably come yawning out of bed before the trumpet notes have ceased echoing through the semidarkness. But not on their second, for the 'snooker' soon learns that ten minutes is ample time for dressing, including a bath and a shave. So breakfast parade being at 7:15, he rises at 7:05. Even this is considered unnecessarily early by many, who, putting into practice what they preach, steal a few extra minutes of slumber."

There are many privileges enjoyed by the cadets at Woolwich of which the West Point cadet knows nothing. To begin with, the cadet at Woolwich may smoke if he pleases, while for the cadet at West Point to be caught doing such a thing would mean severe punishment. At Woolwich cadets are provided with billiard tables, they are not denied the pastime of cards, they may spend Sundays at home or away from the barracks, they may do many other things that the West Point cadet may not do. CYCLING COMMENT.

The L. A. W. road report, issued at New York, is as follows:

The macadam roads of Newark are good, and the earth roads are fair. The side paths of New Brunswick are in fairly good shape, with the macadam roads good and the earth roads rough. All the roads in the neighborhood of Trenton are reported in excellent wheeling shape; the macadam roads are first-class, the earth roads are good and the cycle paths are fine. The macadam roads of Forest Hill are wet, and the edge paths also.

The macadam roads of Scotch Plains are in fine shape, and the country roads of Fanwood, Westfield, Cranford, Roselle, Elizabeth and Plainfield are all in good condition. The macadam roads of Rahway are all fine, but the earth roads are poor. The roads of Bergen county are all nicely dried by the recent high winds, and are reported in fairly good riding shape. Attention is called to the heavy trucking with narrow tires which is permitted by the local authorities on the soft roads of the outlying districts each spring.

The Schraalenberg road (Bergen county), one of the finest in the country, has been practically ruined near Schraalenberg on this account, and in Hackensack a gas and electric company has carted heavy machinery without proper precautions, until they have broken through heavy macadam. Main street, Hackensack, between Essex and Anderson streets, is poor; beyond that it is fair to good. The Bogota-Teaneck river road is good to Riverridge, but beyond that it is poor. Grand avenue is only fair, and Hudson street (Hackensack) is poor. The macadam roads of Orange were never in better condition than at present, and out of the town the earth roads are all right.

ON THE DIAMOND.

John Kuhn, an old-time P. A. C. ball player, who has but lately returned from the Philippines, has been secured as third baseman for St. Mary's nine during the coming season.

The Hope Baseball team will cross bats with the Plainfield High School nine on Martine Common Saturday afternoon. On the following Saturday, the former team will play Leal's nine.

The Washington Park Juniors have reorganized their baseball team and elected Douglas Waring captian, and Tracy Howard, manager. They replace Russell Pond and William Barlow. The team will play the Grace church choir boys on the old cricket grounds Saturday morning. The Juniors have lost only one game this season out of the four played.

The only professional ball in this immediate vicinity this season will be at Recreation Park, Westfield. The Westfield Baseball Association has secured a strong team made up of Keefe, of last year's Carteret's, catcher; Mike Collins, of last year's team, and VanZant, of Elizabeth, pitchers; Lance, of Washington's, Kelly, of Somersets, of Somerville, shortstops; Fitzpatrick and Fox, of O. N. T.'s, first and second base; DeForrest, third base; McIntyre, left; Finn, of Hudson's, centre, and C. A. Collins, right. A practice game will be played Saturday against the Garwood A. C. Howell, a brother of the former Brooklyn twirler, and who joins Bridgeport, of the Connecticut State League, Monday, will be in the box for Garwood. The regular season will open April 27 against the Dauntless A. C., of New York.

BASKET BALL.

The basket ball match at the Y. M. C. A. this evening between the Wassapachers and the "gym" leaders promises to be an exciting one. Both teams are in excellent condition and comprise expert players. The proceeds will be for the benefit of the Chess and Checker Club.

AT SOMERSET COUNTY COURT.

INTERESTING SUIT WAS BEGUN AT SOMERVILLE THIS MORNING.

Anheuser Busch Brewing Association is Suing Jacob & Samuel Klotz on Promissory Note.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, April 17.—At court this morning, the case of Nellie Steger against Andrew Dominik was referred to Judge Schenck upon agreement of counsel, W. K. McClure and J. P. D. Kirch.

The case of the Anheuser-Busch Brewing Association against Jacob Klotz and Samuel Klotz was the first case taken up this morning. This was a suit on a promissory note of $2,000, given by the New Jersey Bottling Association to the plaintiff company, and indorsed by Samuel and Jacob Klotz. Craig A. Marsh is counsel for the plaintiffs and Alvah A. Clark is counsel for defendants.

The latter objected to trying the case under the common law, as the indorsements were irregular. Mr. Marsh asked to award his declaration, which was granted. Mr. Clark demurred. Justice Garretson overruled the demurrer and the case then proceeded. The first witness was the auditor of the Brewing Co., from St. Louis. The case will occupy the whole day.

TEA TABLE TALK.

Short and Gossipy Sketches That Are Not Always News, But Just as Interesting.

Much humor is mixed with the pathos of the hearings in the City Police Court. Particularly is this the case when men charged with drunkenness and disorderly conduct are brought to the bar. Standing before His Honor generally is an individual looking much the worse for wear. The prisoner invariably disclaims having been drunk and adds that he had only taken one or two drinks in the twenty four hours preceding his arrest. Few, if any, admit having taken more than two or three drinks of whiskey or even beer, although when brought to the police headquarters the majority of them are hardly able to stand without assistance.

Runaway Damaged Bicycles.

A horse belonging to Abram Powell, of Greenbrook, ran away on Park avenue, near Second street, this noon. In its flight down Park avenue, two bicycles standing at the curb in front of Frucht's store, and belonging to him, became caught in the wagon wheels and were dragged some distance. One of them was partially wrecked. The frightened animal was captured near Fourth street by Walter Vail, with no further damage than the breaking of the harness.

To Organize Male Chorus.

All young men interested in the formation of a male chorus are requested to meet in the Y. M. C. A. building tomorrow evening. A competent and experienced leader will be in attendance and confer with all candidates.

New Candidates Expected.

Greenbrook Council, No. 1,725, Royal Arcanum, will meet tomorrow evening and receive several new candidates.

Death of Infant Child.

An infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar McCray, of 522 East Second street, died at an early hour this morning.

—Painters are at work renovating the front of the store, 33 Somerset street. The building belongs to the Pittis' estate.

Miss Gladys Biglow, of Central avenue, who was operated upon last week for appendicitis, is doing as well as can be expected. During the past few days the patient's temperature has been quite high, but Dr. Endicott is hopeful that she will recover.

WHY RARITAN CANAL IS OPEN ON SUNDAY.

Official of Canal Company Explains the Company's Side of the Case.

THE TRAFFIC DEMANDED IT.

SHIPPERS SERIOUSLY OBJECT TO BEING STRANDED 24 HOURS.

Little Chance That Authorities of Somerset and Middlesex Counties Will Make Any Attempt to Stop the Sunday Traffic.

There has been more or less talk in the Philadelphia and New York newspapers about an alleged determination on the part of people in Somerset county to make trouble for the canal company because the Delaware and Raritan Canal is to be operated on Sundays from now on. Heretofore the canal has been kept open only six days a week, being closed to all sorts of traffic on Sunday.

A prominent official of the canal, in conversation with a reporter, gave the canal management's side of the matter. He stated that it is absolutely necessary nowadays, in justice to shippers, that the canal be open every day for the accommodation of traffic. Only in this way can the canal compete with other freight routes between the south and north.

There is an immense amount of perishable merchandise shipped from the south to the northern markets. Heretofore the canal has never received much of that sort of trade, owing to the delay shippers experience on the arrival of their vessels at the canal on Saturday.

The canal is a connecting link across the State of New Jersey between tide water on one side to tide water on the other. Traffic moves every day of the week on tide water and, on this account, shippers arriving at either end of the canal, with their vessels loaded with perishable merchandise, suffered great inconvenience and loss on account of having to tie up for 24 hours, from Saturday to Monday, on their arrival at New Brunswick or Bordentown.

The officials of the company have kept the canal closed for many years on Sunday, and not until the necessity of keeping navigation open was forced upon them did they consent to order the canal kept open on Sunday.

Shippers object to the canal route on account of the twenty-four hours delay caused by closing the canal from 12 o'clock Saturday to 12 o'clock Sunday.

The laws that are applicable to rivers and tide-water should govern canals, as canals are only inland continuations of tide-water routes. Really, it is more of a necessity for canals to be kept open than railroads, for the passage of freight, owing to the difference in speed, and so much of the freight transported being perishable.

The canal is not a paying institution at present, and the continuation of its existence depends upon an increase of traffic.

It is unlikely that any legal steps will be taken by the farmers of Somerset and Mercer counties to prevent the running of canal boats on Sunday.

A PLAINFIELD BRIDE; A NEW MARKET GROOM

Pretty Wedding Ceremony at Grace Church at 7 o'Clock Last Evening.

FOLLOWED BY RECEPTION.

MISS ANNA DOERINGER AND CHARLES KELLY WERE WEDDED.

Pretty Gowns in Bridal Party—Many Gathered at Home of Bride For Reception Which Followed—Some of The Out-of-Town Guests.

Miss Anna Doeringer, of Vine street, and Charles Kelly, of New Market, were married last evening at 7 o'clock in Grace M. E. church. The marriage ceremony was performed by the pastor, Rev. G. W. Gardner, in the presence of a large assemblage of the friends of both the bride and groom. The bride is the oldest daughter of Peter Doeringer and is a very popular young woman in the borough.

The interior of the church edifice had been handsomely decorated for the wedding. Orchids, calla lillies and azalies were among the profusion which interspersed the mass of southern smilax about the platform.

Promptly at the hour appointed the bridal party entered the church and marched up the aisle while the wedding march from "Lohengrin" was played by Vincent Sokel, of Plainfield. Every eye naturally was on the bride, who presented a charming appearance. She was attired in a gown of white silk, covered with white albatross and trimmed with chiffon ribbon. Her veil was of tulle and it was gracefully fastened on the head by a small gold brooch about which were entwined orange blossoms. The bride's bouquet was composed of bride roses.

Miss Eva Doeringer, the bride's sister, acted as maid of honor. Her gown was of white organdie over white silk. The bouquet of the maid of honor was pink roses. The bridemaids were Miss Eva Terrell, of Rahway, and Miss Estella Sofield, of New Market, both of whom wore gowns made of organdie and carried bouquets of pink roses.

Frederick Dayton, of New Market, was the best man. He was attired in evening dress as were also the ushers, Charles Smith, of North Plainfield, and Clarence Lion, of New Market. Two little children, cousins of the bride, Ida and Helen Hummil, acted as flower girls.

After the nupiial vows had been taken at the church, the bridal party went at once to the home of the bride's father on Vine street, where they were joined by a large body of friends who showered congratulations upon them. The house had also been decorated with flowers and palms. A happy time was spent until the couple left on a late train for their wedding trip. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Kelly will reside in New Market.

Among those present at the wedding reception were: Mr. and Mrs. Webber, Mr. and Mrs. Peters, Mr. and Mrs. Schlicker, Mr. and Mrs. Trinkey, Mrs. Mitchell, Miss Jennie Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Hilderbricht, and Charles Hilderbricht, of Trenton; Mr. and Mrs Fred Bach, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Albrecht, Miss Gussie Bach, Fred Leucher, Mr. and Mrs. Wintleman, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Adam Ohl, Mr. and Mrs. Wiggins, of Newark; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ohl, Mr. and Mrs. Vetterdud, Mr. and Mrs. Farlee, of Lambertville; Mr. and Mrs Wm. Terrell, of Rahway; Rev. and Mrs. A. Phelps, of Bound Brook; Mr. and Mrs. Tabb, Miss Irene Day, Charles Ward and Miss Alice Pierce, of New Market; Mr. and Mrs. Swope, Miss Carrie Swope, Mr. and Mrs. Muller, of Philadelphia; Chester Gaskill, of Dunellen; Miss Carrie Debele, of St. Augustine, Florida.

After Poll Taxes

City Collector Frank Smith is still devoting his efforts to bringing the delinquent poll tax payers to a realization of their debt to the city. A number of citizens who have been enjoying the privileges of a voter without paying for them, have been visited by him during the past week. The result was the payment in all cases of one dollar with added interest.

REPEAT EASTER MUSIC.

Plainfield High School Will Give Entertainment Which Will Include Easter Programme.

On compliance with numerous requests to repeat the musical programme of the Easter exercises at the Stillman High School, the pupils have consented to embody the Easter programme in an entertainment to be given some evening in the near future.

The Seventh-Day Baptist church has been secured for the purpose and the admission will be by invitation only. In all probability the entertainment will be given in a fortnight but the date has not been definitely arranged. Thursday evening next has been suggested.

COMING WORK ON STREETS.

PROPERTY OWNERS WILL HAVE A CHANCE FOR IMPROVEMENTS.

Some of the Streets Which May be Macadamized This Summer if Property Owners Desire.

While the street committee of the Common Council has not as yet decided what new streets will be macadamized this year, several have been under consideration. They will be designated as soon as the sentiment of the property owners in regard to the matter can be learned. For this reason inquiries will be sent in a few days to owners of property on streets needing attention and, if a majority acknowledge a willingness to stand the usual expense, immediate action will be taken.

Among some of the streets which may be macadamized are West Sixth street, from Park to Plainfield avenues; West Fifth street, below Grant avenue, First, Second and Third places. The latter would probably have been attended some time ago but for the objection of certain property owners who were in control. A good deal of this has since been sold and the new owners are in favor of the improvements.

QUESTION OF ELIGIBILITY.

Contention Was Waived For Yesterday's Game, But Will Be Decided Later.

Yesterday's baseball game between the Plainfield High School and Leal's School was practically played under protest. The management of the High School questioned the eligibility of Geo. Dupee, the pitcher on Leal's, on the ground that he was a post-graduate. At his school he was considered perfectly eligible as now being a bona fide student. While the management of the High School team could not agree to that view, the contention was waived for the time being and the game played. The subject will be referred to a competent authority on athletics for decision, and an attempt will be made to arrange all further games on the basis of that decision.

TROLLEY LINE PLANNED.

Is to Connect Somerville With Clinton, High Bridge and Washington.

The "Clinton Democrat" announces that after all they are to have a trolley. It won't connect with the county seat, however, and it will not be backed by the Senator Bradley or the Johnson syndicates. After all the trolley is to come out of the VanAmburgh effort which is not on a new line at all but one on which H. H. VanAmburgh, of Lebanon, has been working for several years. It will be backed by Hon Robt. E. Wright and Hugh E. Crilly, of Allentown, Pa, and will connect Clinton, Lebanon, Annandale, High Bridge, Glen Gardner and Washington with its objective point, Somerville.

ROLLER AT WORK.

Began Work Today on Repairs on Liberty Street.

The new steam roller, which was received yesterday, was placed at work on Liberty street today. For the present it will be in charge of Engineer George Keough, of Red Bank, who is employed by the Buffalo-Pitt's Company to properly demonstrate its utility. As yet a permanent engineer for the roller has not been appointed.

The work on Liberty street will extend from the railroad bridge southward, and will for the most part consist of re-surfacing.

Operated On For Appendicitis.

Fred G. Bach, the manager of the Grand Union Tea Company, of West Front street, was operated on last evening at the hospital for appendicitis. Mr. Bach has been ill since the beginning of the year and it is hoped by his many friends that his recovery is not far distant. The operation was performed by Dr. P. J. Zeglio and the patient is reported to be better this morning.

—At the meeting of Wetumpkah Tribe, No. 229, I. O. R. M., this evening, the adoption degree will be conferred.

LEAL'S SCHOOL WON FROM PLAINFIELD HIGH

Opening Game of Series Was Won by a Score of Seventeen to Six.

NEITHER TEAM WAS STEADY.

WILD THROWS AND FUMBLES MARKED MOST OF THE INNINGS.

Leal Boys Were Strong at Bat and Placed Their Hits With Success — Neither Battery Had Good Support — Dupee Was Fast But Erratic

Before a crowd of several hundred, the Leal's School team and the Plainfield High School nine, struggling for supremacy, played an exciting football game on Martine Common, yesterday afternoon. Superior physical strength coupled with more or less good judgment displayed at needful times gave to the Leal team much advantage over their opponents in the early stages of the game and this they easily retained until the game closed at the end of the seventh inning, when the score stood seventeen to six in favor of the Leal boys

Poor support given the battery was a glaring fault of both teams. Wild throws and frightful muffs seemed to cause the players of each team to become panicy at times when a cool head was most essential Costly errors appeared to be contagious for few escaped them; but withal the crowd remained an enthusiastic one and the rival teams were cheered lustly by their exuberant supporters.

At the bat the Leal boys exhibited greater ability and succeeded in placing well their many hits. In this respect, W. Schoonmaker led, having made four base hits out of his five chances at the bat. Dupee, who possesses a swift but sometimes erratic delivery in the box, also made a record for himself as a batter. He made a three base hit in the third inning, causing pandemonium to reign among the pupils of Leal's for a time.

For the High School nine, Bulkley and Fred Mason did great work at the bat, and besides Mason achieved renown as a second baseman. In fact, he was the star player of his team. His great double play in the fifth inning, in catching a fly off Corwin and sending the ball quickly to first forcing Brown on that bag, sent joy to the hearts of the Plainfield High School pupils and the girls particularly. Monroe, on third base, did some good work for his team also, having put two men out in the third inning alone. Davis tried hard to do well at first, but he made some costly blunders occasionally.

The High School team did its best in the sixth inning when only three Leal men were allowed to get a chance at the bat; but to the credit of the Leal's School team it should be said that it duplicated this feature.

At 6:15 o'clock the game ended at the seventh inning because of the lateness of the hour.

The batting order follows:

WILL START A HEDGE

To Bound One Side of Giraud Avenue Where It Has Been Widened.

As soon as the work of Giraud avenue has been completed, it is the intention of the Harbinger estate, which owns the abutting property from West Front street to the brook, to erect a substantial wire fence along the west side and plant honeysuckle vines the entire length. In a short time, when the vines have attained their growth, the subsequent hedge will present a most pleasing appearance. Before the street was widened it was lined with an arbor vitæ hedge, which was greatly admired.

HOT WORDS BY ATTORNEYS.

EXCITING CASE TRIED AT COUNTY COURT AT SOMERVILLE.

Verdict Given For Plaintiff in the Case of Anheuser-Busch Co. Against Jacob and Samuel Klotz.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, April 18—Only three witnesses were examined yesterday in the case of the Anheuser-Busch Company against Jacob and Samuel Klotz. One of these was the auditor of the brewing coming from St. Louis, Mo. After the plaintiff rested, A. A. Clark, lawyer for the defence, moved for a non-suit on the ground that the indorsement was irregular, and that the notes were not commercial paper. A hot argument between Mr. Clark and Craig A. Marsh, attorney for the plaintiff ensued. Justice Garretson refused a non-suit.

The defense refused to interpose a defense, saying that the change in declarations by Mr. Marsh was a surprise to the defense, and they had time to secure testimony in defense of these allegations. Mr. Marsh claimed that the defendants were conversant with the plaintiff's declaration. Mr. Clark retorted that that was untrue. Some very sarcastic remarks passed between counsel and they were called to order by Justice Garretson.

Mr. Marsh asked the court to instruct the jury to render a verdict for $2,000 and interest, $141 66, which was done. Mr. Clark took an exception to the verdict.

The case of Caroline Ritchie, colored, against Wm. Ross, et als., was next taken up. Reed & Coddington appeared for the plaintiff and W. V. Steele and H. K. Gaston for the defendants. This was a suit for trespass.

The plaintiff claimed to own a piece of land in South Bound Brook, which she had fenced, cultivated and planted trees upon for the last twenty years, but no deed for which had ever been rendered. The defendant had cut trees from this piece of land and taken possession of them.

H. C. VanEmburgh, a civil engineer of Plainfield, was the first witness. He exhibited a map of the locality made by him. Court then adjourned for the day.

BOXES ABLAZE.

Fire Department Called Out Yesterday Afternoon to Prevent The Fire From Spreading to Buildings Nearby

A number of empty packing boxes and other inflammable material stored in the rear of Woodhull & Martin's store, caught fire in some mysterious manner yesterday afternoon. The flames spread to a fence in the near vicinity and in a short time assumed dangerous proportions.

An alarm was sent in from the keyless box on West Front street, bringing the fire department to the scene. With the first deluge of water from the hose, the burning boxes were scattered in all directions and the flames were quickly extinguished. The damage was trifling.

It is thought the fire may have been caused by children who were playing in the vicinity.

FOWLER'S IMPROVEMENTS.

Will Have Ice Cream Parlors for Benefit of the Summer Trade.

Fowler, the candy maker on East Front street, is making some extensive improvements about his place for the summer trade. The part in the rear of the store formerly used for the manufacture of candy is now being painted, papered and remodelled as an ice cream parlor. Mr. Fowler has taken the second floor of the building and he will make candy there. A dumb waiter will be installed connecting the upper and lower part of the building. Mr. Fowler makes nothing but pure candies and his soda water is the best and absolutely pure fruit syrups are used.

TWO MORE CHILDREN NOW ILL AT FANWOOD

Reported That Mrs. Ellis Has Summoned Regular Physician to Attend Them.

THE QUARANTINE IS STRICT.

TELEPHONE PUT IN HOUSE SO FAMILY CAN TALK WITH FRIENDS.

Dr. Hunt Visited Fanwood Yesterday and Declared That There Need Be No Cause For Fear of an Epidemic.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Fanwood, April 18—Two new cases of diphtheria have developed in the household of LeRoy J. Ellis, of Forest avenue. A daughter named Ida was taken ill yesterday morning. Last night the other daughter, Dorothy, was also taken ill. Both cases have been pronounced diphtheria.

Dr. F. W. Westcott was summoned to the Ellis house last evening to look after the children as Dr. T. V. Smith, of Westfield, the attending physician, could not be reached. All three of the children are now under the care of physicians.

There are signs of improvement in the case of William, the son, who was first taken ill, and Dr. Smith believes that he has an excellent chance of recovery. Miss Ida Ellis is in a very critical condition at present while her sister, why was taken ill last night, is also considered a serious case of the dread disease.

The Board of Health gave permission yesterday to have a telephone put in the Ellis home so that communication with relatives and friends outside can be had. An officer is still kept on duty to watch and see that no one enters or leaves the premises.

Dr. Hunt, of the State Board of Health, visited this place yesterday upon the invitation of the local Board of Health. He made a thorough examination into local conditions and he is satisfied that there is no cause for alarm on the part of the people. The few cases are well under control and a strict quarantine being maintained. There is practically no chances for the disease spreading. So far as could be learned there are no local conditions that have caused the outbreak of the disease, and the supposition is that the disease was contracted outside of this place.

TO BUY THE INN.

Proposed to Have J. H. Staats Manage Hotel on the Mountains When It Changes Owners.

From present prospects, the Mountain Park Inn will be opened this season under competent management and favorable conditions. An offer has been made to the owners, the Mountain Park Land Co., by S. D. Drake, to purchase not only the hotel but the company's entire holdings on the mountain. He is backed by New York and Philadelphia capitalists who intend making a number of radical changes, provided the deal is made. The majority of the stockholders have given Mr. Drake a favorable reply and a meeting will be called in a few days to consider the matter and give a final decision.

A deal has also been made with J. H. Staats, proprietor of the Kensington, whereby he will assume management of the hotel at the commencement of the season. The capitalists have agreed to erect several additional cottages and will procure occupants. By the terms of the agreement they will induce their friends to spend the summer at the hotel.

BOY'S BAND MET.

Annual Reports of Secretary and Treasurer Were Read at Meeting.

The Boys' Mission Band of Ernest Workers held its regular monthly meeting at the Crescent Avenue church yesterday afternoon. Besides the members, there were several visitors present by invitation.

The secretary's annual report was read by VanWyck Brooks. In the absence of the treasurer, the report of the latter was read by Mrs. Isaac L. Miller, who supervises the work of the society. After the devotional exercises, and when the business had been transacted those present listened to a very interesting talk on the missionary work in China, by Mrs. Daniel Rapalje, of this city.

AT THE THEATRES.

Something About the Attractions Which Plainfield Theatre-Goers May Care to Witness.

"Nip and Tuck" is the title of the attraction at Music Hall Saturday afternoon and night, and is the name given two detectives of police, who although great friends to all intents and appearances, are rivals in their professional capacity. The play is one of great interest and sensation, full of stirring incidents and climaxes, but humorous in every respect. In the character of the principal detective, Harry Webber assumes several disguises and there are lots of introduced specialties which makes the presentation very enjoyable The matinee performance will be very enjoyable for women and children for while the play is sensational, it is clean and laughable.

Thomas Jefferson comes to Music Hall on Thursday of next week with "Rip VanWinkle." Thomas is the second son of Joseph Jefferson and has been playing "Rip VanVinkle" on the road for the past three seasons, meeting with success in all the large cities where he has been seen. He will be ably assisted by a competent company of comedy players.

The scenery constructed for the first part in John W. Vogel and Arthur Deming's big minstrels which comes to Music Hall Tuesday night, is said to be the most elaborate and expensive ever built for a similar purpose. The setting is called the 'Diamond Grotto,' a befitting title because of the effect of the calciums upon the tons of tinsel and leaf used in its manufacture. This is the only setting of its kind ever constructed, and is said to have cost $10 000.

The opening attractions by the Proctor Stock Company will be the curtain raiser, "Sunset," by Jerome K. Jerome and the farcial comedy, "Dr. Bill," in which the full strength of the company will be employed. Numerous variety acts will be interspersed between the acts of the comedies. WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May Be Of Interest to Plainfield and Its Citizens.

April is the time when the work of repairing the public highways is principally done in the State. The deep ruts cut by narrow-tired wheels while the roads are soft are filled in, the ridges are scraped down and a smooth surface is created before the earth "sets" for the summer. The bad roads of March and April and much of this repairing would be avoided if farmers and others would use broad-tired wagons. When one of these wagons passes along a country dirt road at this time of the year it serves as small roller, and is really an efficient road mender. If all would use such wagons the roads would be in good repair all through the spring, and farmers could haul from 33 to 100 per cent larger loads with no more strain on their horses. It is strange how slow the farmers are in learning this lesson. They were just the same about improved roads. Now they cannot get them fast enough.—New York Herald.

Franklin Murphy, of Newark, chairman of the Republican State executive committee, is out for the governorship, but the ambitious leaders who thought he would resign from his chairmanship as a preliminary to making his campaign for the gubernatorial nomination are in a fair way to be disappointed. A great many little plans of little leaders to succeed Murphy as the head of the Republican organization in New Jersey will have to be laid away in camphor until after the result of the scramble for the Republican nomination for governor is known. The indications are that Murphy will hold on to the State chairmanship until it is definitely established which way the gubernatorial cat is going to jump.—Elizabeth Journal.

* * * * * *

The happy conclusion reached Saturday night at the conference between the New Jersey Central Railroad officials and the committee of employes furnishes an object lesson which railway officials and railway employes, in the future, cannot afford to ignore.

The points at issue between the Central Railroad management and the dissatisfied engineers and firemen were of a particularly intricate character, and both sides maintained their ground stubbornly, but good naturedly. After a conference of three days, however, an adjustment was reached which satisfies the engineers and firemen and puts an end to all further strike rumors, and which again turns attention to the blessings of arbitration.

If the conferees at Communipaw avenue could emerge from their conference chamber with mutual congratulations and with every point in dispute settled, there is no reason why railroad strikes should not speedily become a memory only, provided the employes keep their heads cool, the railroad officials show a proper respect for equity and justice, and both sides exhibit forbearance, patience and charity.

The conductors of the New Jersey Central had their wages raised some time ago There is still a feeling of dissatisfaction among the telegraphers, but it is not to be supposed that this dissatisfaction will foment serious strife, especially since the railroad company has made the liberal offer that will readjust the telegraphers' wages, if the telegraphers can show that the Central is paying less than is allowed those on other competing lines.

The arbitrators at Communipaw furnished the best sample of arbitration that has been given in many a day. The public, the New Jersey Central and the employes are all gainers because a clash has been averted.

Let's have more of that kind of successful arbitration. — Jersey City Journal.

STRIKE HANGS FIRE.

Advisory Board of Steel Workers Still Undecided.

A MOVE TOWARD CONCILIATION.

Council In Session All Day at Pittsburg—Outside Help Brought to McKeesport to Take the Places of Strikers.

PITTSBURG, April 18.—The advisory board of the Amalgamated association adjourned last night without having reached any decision.

A strike of all the men of the Amalgamated association employed in the organized mills of the American Sheet Steel company and subsequently of all the organized men in the mills of the United States Steel corporation is trembling in the balance. On the one hand, President T. J. Shaffer is backed up in his determination to call a general strike by a majority of the members of his advisory board and the district vice president and trustees, who were in session all day yesterday. On the other hand, there is a new move toward conciliation and arbitration which may end the entire controversy in Pittsburg today or may be carried to New York to be adjusted by higher powers.

President T. J. Shaffer says that the outlook for settlement is better than at any time since the McKeesport trouble started. He refused to explain this statement.

Colonel G. Watson French, vice president of the Republic Iron and Steel company, visited Amalgamated headquarters yesterday in relation to matters pertaining to some of his own mills. He became interested in the issue against the sheet steel company and volunteered to do all in his power to avert a struggle. He talked to the advisory board for an hour, advising conciliation and arbitration.

Some of the men in attendance at the strike meeting at McKeesport reported that Assistant Superintendent L. Harrison of the W. Dewees wood mill made them an offer of increased pay to return to work. They refused to go back, and he informed them that he would put other men in their places today. It was reported that 150 skilled workmen were brought to Pittsburg from different points. They did not arrive in a body, but in gangs of 15 or 20, and were immediately sent by different routes to McKeesport. They will, it is said, take the places of the strikers at the Dewees Wood works.

The McKeesport trouble is the first visible eruption of a condition that has been developing for over a year, beginning with the formation of the American Sheet Steel company.

Counterfeiter Skoog Dead.

NEW YORK, April 18.—John Alfred Skoog, who was identified by former Chief Hazen of the secret service as a notorious counterfeiter after he had shot himself to escape arrest, is dead at Bellevue hospital, where he had been transferred from the Hudson Street hospital. Skoog shot himself on the afternoon of April 9 in Greenwich street. He had presented two counterfeit notes for 50 kroners each on the Bank of Copenhagen at the office of C. B. Richardson & Co., 61 Broadway, and when their character was discovered he fled. He was pursued by a crowd shouting, "Stop thief!" and when overtaken by a policeman flourished a revolver and threatened his pursuer. Then as the policeman closed in on him Skoog shot himself in the head.

CHINESE ADVANCING.

A Force of Twenty Thousand Between Shansi and Chi-li.

ALLIED EXPEDITION SETS OUT.

Ministers Resume Their Sessions After a Two Weeks' Rest—A Missionary Charges Li Hung Chang With Duplicity.

PEKING, April 18. — Information reaches here that 20,000 Chinese are advancing through the defiles between the provinces of Shansi and Chi-li. It is not known whether their intentions are peaceable or warlike.

The departure from here yesterday of French and German troops to the western border of the province of Chi-li was the first intimation the other commanders had that any such expedition was planned. Some people view the expedition as inconsistent, owing to the negotiations that are now going on, while others commend the movement as necessary.

The present expedition is due to the hostile attitude of the Chinese general Liu. So far as known it is believed that most of the Chinese troops to the north of Peking are still hostile to the foreigners. They were never required to surrender, and the peace negotiations were begun before the Chinese army promised not to renew the fighting. Hence the present attitude of the different Chinese regiments toward foreigners is an uncertain factor in the situation.

After a two weeks' holiday the ministers resumed their sessions Tuesday, but accomplished little or nothing. It has now been practically agreed that there must be a change in the court ceremonials and a reformation of the tsung-li-yamen.

A missionary reported to be named Killie, but supposed to be Rev. Mr. Kelly, a Presbyterian missionary, has returned from San-ho, where Christians were burned to death in December. Mr. Killie reports to General Chaffee that some time ago several of his converts were killed. He had the guilty parties tried in the Chinese courts, where they were convicted and sentenced to death subject to Li Hung Chang's signature. Mr. Killie came to Peking and saw Li Hung Chang, who said the men should be executed immediately. Upon going to San-ho three weeks later the missionary found the men alive. He spoke to a judge of the Chinese courts on the matter, who thereupon showed him a letter from Li Hung Chang giving explicit instructions that the men must not be executed, as they had only been convicted on the testimony of Christians, consequently the evidence was untrustworthy. Mr. Killie has a copy of this letter. In the meantime the French had proved the same men guilty of incendiarism and other outrages and demanded their execution, whereupon the judge again showed his orders from Li Hung Chang. The French authorities replied that if the men were not executed within eight days they would take the law into their own hands and punish the Chinese officials likewise.

The ministers of the foreign powers view with alarm the expedition against General Liu Kuan Ting, as they think he will retreat, probably laying waste the villages he traverses and killing native Christians and that such actions will be used as an excuse by the military for further aggression, which would probably be the taking of Tai-yuan-fu, the capital of Shansi province.

Captain Reeves, attached to the American legation here, accompanies the expedition to observe happenings on behalf of the United States.

At yesterday's meeting of the foreign ministers the question of indemnities was considered. It is now estimated that £70,000,000 will cover all claims.

The palace of the empress, inhabited by Count von Waldersee and his staff, was burned to the ground yesterday. Major General Schwartzkopf, Count yon Waldersee's chief of staff, has disappeared. With the exception of the military papers everything was destroyed.

Gomez to Visit United States.

HAVANA, April 18.—General Maximo Gomez is making arrangements to go to the United States to visit Senor Estrada Palma. He will be accompanied by his son Urbano and will probably remain in the United States until the return to Cuba of the special commission on relations. He desires to await definite action in reference to the Platt amendment in order to avoid the accusation that the trip is made for a political purpose. He has always expressed a desire to meet the people of the United States and to thank them for the assistance they rendered Cuba in the war with Spain. Senor Palma is the choice of General Gomez for the presidency of Cuba.

The Succession In Servia.

BELGRADE, April 18.—The question of the succession to the throne of Servia has been settled. By the terms of the new constitution shortly to be promulgated the throne, in the event of a failure of male descendants, will pass to the male collateral line, and failing that to the king's lawfully begotten direct female descendants. In the event of the death of the king the queen consort will assume the regency in behalf of a successor under age.

EXPLORER BALDWIN SAILS.

Flying Trip to Europe Before Starting For the North.

NEW YORK, April 18.—Mr. Baldwin, the arctic explorer and leader of the latest pole hunting expedition, sailed today for Hamburg on the Deutschland. He is due there about April 25 and will spend one day in that city. From Hamburg he will go to Copenhagen, where he will also remain a day for the purpose of consulting Lieutenant Andrup and other Danish arctic explorers. Gothenburg, Sweden, will be his next point, and there he will remain two days for a further consultation with Captain Andree, the brother of the explorer who went up in a balloon. Mr. Baldwin will then visit Christiania to superintend the shipping of supplies from Tromso, where the supply ship Fritjof is now receiving both supplies and equipment. He will then go to Sandefjord, Norway, where more supplies are now being collected both from the United States and from Norway.

Returning to Dundee, Scotland, he will look after the reception of additional supplies upon the main expeditionary steamer America. The explorer will then return to the United States after a short visit to London and will be in this country ten days before his final departure. He expects to reach this country for his final trip on May 20.

Upon his return to Europe he will go direct to Tromso, Norway, from which point the expedition will leave some time during the second week in June.

As has already been stated, Mr. Baldwin's idea is to get as far north on the America this summer as the ice will permit, making a landing on some portion of Franz Josef Land, where he will winter. The winter will be spent in forming caches north, and the final start for the pole will probably be made some time the last of February, 1902. Mr. Baldwin will take 400 dogs and 15 Siberian ponies and expects that the entire expedition will at least start with him for the pole, although it is probable that a number of men will be sent back for additional supplies

WHOLESALE RUSSIAN ARRESTS.

Over Twenty-four Hundred In Odessa Alone Before April 14.

LONDON, April 18.—According to The Standard's Odessa correspondent, the apprehension of the authorities that serious disturbances would occur on Easter, which, according to the Russian calendar, occurred on April 14, was the cause of the arrests recently made. The arrests in Odessa alone until Easter were over 2,400, and all the southern centers are yet in a partial state of siege.

The situation is made worse by the unprecedented commercial and industrial stagnation. There are 35,000 artisans and laborers idle in Odessa, 15,000 in Nikolaiev, 20,000 in Kharkov, and there are proportionate numbers without work in other towns.

TRENTON, April 18.—The coroner's jury appointed to inquire into the cause of the death of Thomas F. Applegate, the farmer whose body was found in his barn on Sunday morning, March 10, has concluded the taking of testimony and rendered this verdict: "We believe Thomas F. Applegate came to his death by violence on his farm near Extonville, Mercer county, N. J., between 5 o'clock in the evening of March 9, 1901, and 5 o'clock in the morning of March 10, 1901, and we further believe from threats made by Samuel Shinn against said Thomas Applegate that the said Thomas F. W. Randolph's drug store and began to use them according to directions It was only a short time before I felt the good effects and from that time on I improved steadily under the treatment. My back pained me and was so weak and sore that I dreaded to bend and when I had a cold or over exerted myself I suffered severely. I used several different kidney remedies but got little if any relief. I give Doan's Kidney Pills all the credit for my improvement. I think they are a fine medicine for a lame back."

FATAL STEAMBOAT EXPLOSION.

Four Dead and Seven Likely to Die From Accident on Fraser River.

VANCOUVER, B. C., April 18.—Four people are dead and seven probably fatally injured as the result of an explosion on the steamer Ramona, which plies on the Fraser river. One of the plates in the rear of the boiler blew out, tearing away the whole front of the vessel and knocking into the water all those in that part of the steamer.

The accident happened when the boat was in midstream opposite Fort Langley, 30 miles from Vancouver. Two women, Mrs. Harry Morrison of Langley and Mrs. J. Bailey of Mount Lehman, were standing on the front deck and were knocked into the water and drowned. Two deck hands named James Mack and Andrew Phipps were struck by one of the flying boiler plates and instantly killed, being so horribly burned by the escaping steam as to be unrecognizable. A. Power, the purser; J. Maynard, mate, and Victor Nowell, the fireman, who had gone on that day for the first time, were burned so badly that they cannot possibly recover. Four Indians were dreadfully scalded, and only one of these is expected to recover. One Indian baby is at the point of death. Captain Seymour and John Oliver, the engineer, who owned the larger interest in the vessel, were unhurt. Both Mrs. Morrison and Mrs. Bailey had left their babies up stairs in the saloon and had come on deck for fresh air. The babies were unhurt.

The injured people were brought to Westminster. Power, the purser, has gone insane, and the others are in such a condition that no hope is held out for their recovery.

AN INSURGENT ATTACK.

General Noriel Advises General Malvar Not to Surrender.

MANILA, April 18.—Fifty insurgent riflemen attacked the town of Bay, on Bay lake, in Laguna province, southeast of Manila. The insurgents were quickly routed.

Lieutenant William S. Mapes of the Thirty-second volunteer infantry has captured a bearer of dispatches from the insurgent general Noriel to General Malvar. Noriel directed Malvar not to surrender, saying he would send him 2,000 recruits, money and ammunition when Aguinaldo was released. Noriel succeeded Trias in southern Luzon.

At a meeting of clergymen held in Manila, at which Bishop Warren presided, strong protests were made against the opening of cockpits in Manila. The business men of the city have also objected on the same lines.

The trial of Lieutenant Frederick Boyer, charged with the embezzlement of commissary stores, will be continued next Monday. It is the opinion of many officers that Lieutenant Boyer is innocent of the charges brought against him.

The trial of a civilian named Fletcher, accused of the unlawful conversion of commissary stores, which was held before the provost court yesterday, exposed a plot to obtain commissary supplies and sell them to the hotels and merchants of Manila.

Brigadier Generals James F. Wade and William Ludlow have arrived here. General Wade succeeds Brigadier General John C. Bates in command of the department of southern Luzon. Brigadier Generals Bates, Robert H. Hall and Frederick D. Grant will return to the United States.

Benediction. Music. "America," bands, Orpheus and audience. Bands will play march while audience disperses.

Korean Minister Executed.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 18.—News has been received here from Seoul, Korea, to the effect that the Korean minister of justice, Yi Kon Ho, was arrested April 1 for participation in a conspiracy against the empress of Korea. He named various high officials as accomplices in the plot. Yi Kon Ho was condemned to death April 5, and the assistant minister of the Korean court was sentenced to 15 years' hard labor. The other implicated officials were acquitted. Telegrams received from Kharkov, the capital of the government of Kharkov, announce that a more hopeful tone prevails in metallurgical circles on account of increased public and private orders.

Actor Seriously Injured.

ELMIRA, N. Y., April 18.—During the acting of the play at the Yates Lyceum theater in Penn Yan a New York actor named Davis was seriously injured. The play was the "White Rat," and a duel was fought between Davis and the villain with knives, the former being supposed to get the better of the latter. In making the fall one of the knives was stuck in the fleshy part of Davis' thigh, and a long, deep gash was cut, requiring several stitches to close. Davis fainted after the accident and was taken to the office of Dr. Sampson, where the wound was dressed.

Iowa Bank Ruined.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., April 18.—The Lemars National bank at Lemars, Ia., did not open for business yesterday. Thomas F. Ward, vice president and manager of the institution, is a self confessed embezzler to the amount of $25,000 or $30,000. He has also absconded. It is alleged he took $30,000 with him or lost it during the past few days in speculation, as it is missing from the vault of the bank.

MILNER ON THE WAR

South African Blue Book Made Public.

HE IS CONFIDENT, BUT DISAPPOINTED

Had Hoped to Chronicle the End of Fighting and Beginning of Reconstruction—Results of Long Struggle Not Appalling.

LONDON, April 18.—The South African blue book, containing recent dispatches from Sir Alfred Milner and other official correspondence, has just been issued.

Sir Alfred Milner wired, under date of March 3, requesting permission to return home at an early date upon leave of absence for the purpose of resting. Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, the colonial secretary, replied by granting this request, but expressing the government's regret that it should be necessary for Sir Alfred to leave South Africa at the present time, quite recognizing, however, his need for rest and mentioning three months as a possible period of absence.

In a dispatch dated Feb. 6 Sir Alfred Milner reviews the situation in South Africa and says that he had hoped some definite point would be reached at which it might be possible to sum up that chapter of history containing the war and forecast the administrative reconstruction which must succeed it. "But I am reluctantly forced to the conclusion that there will be no such dividing line," continues Sir Alfred Milner, "and I have not the slightest doubt of the ultimate result, but I foresee that the work will be slower, more difficult, more harassing and more expensive than was at one time anticipated." Continuing, he says:

SIR ALFRED MILNER.

"The consequences of the war, although grave, are not appalling. The country people will need help to prevent them from starving and probably a certain amount of capital. A more serious effect of the last six months is the moral influence of the recrudescences of the war, especially in Orange River Colony."

He then sketches the rising against the British forces, the breaking of Boer pledges of neutrality under the pressure of old companions in arms and the establishment of camps of refuge for Boer families wanting protection. He describes the effect in Cape Colony of guerrilla warfare and agitation and alludes to the "carnival of mendacity" accompanying the pro-Boer agitation. "At the end of 1900," he says, "the excitement had somewhat subsided because the worst inventions—the cruelty of the British troops—had been exposed and partly because the general introduction of martial law had checked seditious writing and speaking."

He thinks that a majority of the Dutch colonists do not desire invasion.

The dispatches reveal the fact that the government went further in the direction of endeavoring to conciliate the Boers than Milner and Kitchener were in favor of going, and, discouraging as the former's estimate of the position of affairs in February was, his extremely sanguine views for the future of South Africa will tend to reconcile the country, whatever sacrifices it may still be called upon to make.

The question of who is to carry on Sir Alfred's work in his absence excites interest. In the natural order of things the duty would devolve upon Lord Kitchener, whose ability for the task is unquestioned, but, considering the already onerous nature of his military duties, it is felt that he ought not to be saddled with the additional work which Milner found so heavy.

A dispatch to The Times from Middelburg announces that operations in the eastern Transvaal have begun. The Boers have been recently pressing south. Schalkburger, the acting president, has removed the seat of government to Ermelo, where it seems to be a fact that General Botha, Mr. Steyn and General De Wet met. The correspondent hints at the possibility of Steyn and De Wet following Mr. Kruger to Europe by way of Portuguese territory.

How to Get Good Roads.

Under the terms of the existing ordinances in this city, property owners on any thoroughfare may secure macadam pavement for that street if they will petition the Council for the same and bear their proportionate share of the expense. This plan has been used with much success during the last few years and to it Plainfield is responsible for many of its best streets.

There is no doubt but that good roads are very valuable things for any city to possess, particularly for one in the position which Plainfield occupies. Many residents have undoubtedly been won for both the city and borough sorely through the fact that both possess more than the usual number of well paved streets.

Improvements of that nature are of advantage to the city in general and to the property owners along the well paved streets in particular. Much property has been opened up and made particularly available for residental uses by the building of good roads during the last two years. The property owner, who objects to such improvements, is short sighted. Now that the street committee of the Council is preparing to consider the streets which are to be improved this year, it behooves all those who own property along streets not now macadamized to use their best efforts to bring prosperity to their particular neighborhood in the shape of good roads.

Some time ago The Daily Press published a full account of the consolidation of the electric light and power companies of Somerset and Middlesex counties under the name of the Central Electric Company. The consolidated company started at once to build a power house at Metuchen. That power house is now nearly completed and the work of stringing the wires to carry the current will soon begin, as the necessary consents from property owners have been secured. This company promises to play a decidedly important part in the progress of the two counties The consolidation has so far resulted in reduced rates and the current will be furnished to the smaller towns which heretofore have been entirely without the advantages of electricity.

One question which will prove a perplexing one for the Boards of Education of city and borough is that regarding the place for holding the commencement exercises this year. Manager Maze Edwards has agreed to conclude his lease of Music Hall May 4, and as the commencements of the city and borough schools do not come until over a month later, the school authorities are going to have trouble in securing a suitable place in which to hold the exercises. If the Casino or the Y. M. C. A. hall are used the very limited accommodations of those two halls will make it necessary to greatly reduce the attendance at the exercises.

There is no doubt but that the various teams representing the local schools should be conducted on a plane which will prevent the entrance of the evils which have so demoralized athletics in many of the colleges of the land. The faculties of the local schools should unite in their efforts to keep scholastic sport free from any taint of professionalism or unfairness. The subject has been given but little attention here in the past but it is hoped that some common standard to be observed by all the city and borough schools, whether public or private, will be result of the present discussion.

A very pleasant courtesy has again been extended to the boys of Warren Engine Company of the North Plainfield fire department Their steamer will be transported to Bayonne for the annual convention and parade of the Exempt Firemen there without cost to the members of the department while a special rate will be given to the firemen by the Jersey Central Railroad.

In January last Admiral Sumner, Commandant of the Philadelphia Navy Yard, finding the ordinary methods of soliciting naval recruits ineffectual, relates the Philadelphia Record, tried newspaper advertising, with the most gratifying results. Recently this example was followed by the army recruiting officer at Chicago, and there was an unprecedented boom in enlistments.

There has been a remarkable building boom in several quarters of the West End during the last few years. Those who remember the many vacant properties in that section five years ago cannot help but notice the wonderful growth which has been made since that time. The trolley has had a very immediate influence to bring about the present state of affairs.

Advertisements cannot be made too bold and clear. The boldest ad attracts the eye of the hasty reader. The small type details should be put somewhere in the ad. They'll prove acceptable and convincing after the bold display has arrested attention.—Printers' Ink.

There is only one way to secure immediate relief from the present unequitable arrangement of charges by the Plainfield Water Supply Company. The company will never make the use of meters general until there is a united demand for them.

People are beginning to learn that it is possible now to locate a street in the city without the aid of a map. A little attention to the house numbers would now be greatly appreciated.

The moving of the row of little stores from Park avenue, near Eighth street, will be greatly appreciated by those who are compelled to view them daily.

BURGLARS AT NEW MARKET.

ROBBED HOME OF FRANK PENROSE, A DEAF MUTE.

Smashed a Window to Gain Entrance—Escaped With Booty Valued at Over $100.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Market, April 18.—For the third time within a year burglars entered the home of Frank Penrose, a deaf mute living at this place, last night, and appropriated valuables to the amount of $100. As Penrose's wife and children are also deaf mutes, the work of the miscreants was comparatively easy.

Entrance was effected by deliberately smashing a window on the north side of the house, showing that the intruders were not afraid of being heard. Their operations were confined to the rooms of the lower floor and from appearances they were thoroughly ransacked. Burnt matches were strewn about as were also half consumed envelopes taken from Mr. Penrose's desk.

An investigation was made this morning by Railroad Detective Dougherty, who is of the opinion that but one man did the job. All the footprints about the house were exactly similar. The matter has been reported to the police of the surrounding cities with a description of the stolen articles, which was as follows: One silver cake dish; one silver cup, initials G A P.; one silver cup marked Sally; man's gold hunting case watch, outside case inscribed E P. Penrose; woman's open face silver watch; silver inkstand, animal face.

A large ebony clock which had been taken from the sitting room to the dining room, and left there, had stopped at 1:20, evidently the time the robbery occurred.

FOREST FIRE ON MOUNTAIN.

DID MUCH DAMAGE TO TIMBER LAND IN WASHINGTON VALLEY.

Farmers Fought the Flames, But Without Success Until the Rain Came—Boys Started Conflagration

From early yesterday afternoon until nearly midnight, last night, the residents in Washington Valley battled with a forest fire which proved the most destructive of any that has occurred in that section in years. Over two hundred acres of valuable timber land were burnt over and a great quantity of cord wood, recently cut, was consumed. The value of the property destroyed is conservatively estimated at $1,000. This is only the present loss, however, as it will be years before the devastated ground can again be made productive.

The fire started on the top of the mountain directly back of North Plainfield, and was evidently set by boys. It spread northward into the valley and aided by the strong wind was soon roaring in all directions. Before the flames were discovered they were practically beyond control, although the farmers adopted every known method to check them. They were not totally extinguished until the rainfall commenced after midnight.

Most of the timber destroyed was on the property of the John Taylor Johnson estate and Dr Muldenskie, who resides in the valley. Numerous other owners suffered varying losses.

The reflection from the fire was plainly visible in this city and by many it was thought to be in North Plainfield.

WELCOMED NEW MEMBERS.

Social Given in Warren Chapel by Ladies' Aid and Endeavor Societies.

A delightful social was held in Warren chapel last evening. The affair was given by the Ladies' Aid Society and the Christian Endeavor Society connected with the church. It was for the purpose of extending a welcome to the members who have lately joined the church.

An address by the pastor and a well varied programme were the pleasant features of the evening's entertainment, but the refreshments were not neglected. Rev. J. O. McKelvey, in welcoming the new members into the field, spoke in a very happy vein and his remarks were well received. A piano solo by Miss Lulu Windham was well received, as was also a vocal duet by Mrs. Andrew Stightz and Oscar Moore.

Two humorous recitations, by Miss Florence Windham and Miss Tryphena Mattox, evoked much applause. Oscar Moore sang some vocal solos before the conclusion of the musical entertainment.

SHIRT WAISTS.

Their Number Is Legion and Their Place Assured.

Shirt waists have become a subject which is always in season. The new models show more variations from former types, chiefly in respect to the sleeves. These are rather scant, and instead of having a wide, stiff cuff like a man's shirt are gathered into a narrow band scarcely two inches broad, which buttons upon itself with a point and may or may not be stiffly starched. The sleeve is made a little fuller at the wrist than elsewhere.

There is an increasing tendency to replace the stiff linen collar by a stock covered with ribbon, velvet or silk, over which a narrow, turned down soft collar of embroidery or hemstitching is folded.

The picture shows a gown having a long redingote of silver gray cloth bordered with applications of black velvet and gold embroidery. It is cut away around the shoulders, having a bertha covered with black and gold applications. The tight sleeve is also ornamented with applications and has a puff of plaited pearl gray mousseline de sole at the elbow. The front of the skirt, the guimpe and the blouse are of plaited mousseline de sole. The hat of gray silk is trimmed with gray plumes, black velvet bows and an ornament of pearls.

THE WELL DRESSED WOMAN.

A Large Assortment of Costumes a Disadvantage.

In order for the woman of moderate means to be always elegantly dressed she must not have too many clothes. When there are many garments, they must be carried on from one year to another and are a source of expense not only in the first outlay, but in the necessity for alterations for use in successive seasons. To have a few well made and suitable gowns, to wear them until they lose their beauty and then to replace them by others is the only economical way to be well dressed.

Today's illustration depicts a calling gown of dark blue wool having a design in black and white. The skirt is edged with stitched bands of white cloth and is open at each side of the tablier over panels of black velvet. The bodice, closed at the side over a panel of black velvet, is trimmed with stitched bands of white cloth and has a yoke and collar of black velvet. Little tabs of white cloth fasten the bodice and the skirt. The sleeves have puffs of black velvet at the wrist, gathered into a band. The buckle of gold ribbon has an ornamental clasp. There is a large cravat of lace. The hat of draped and corded dark blue silk is trimmed with two large black plumes and a buckle.

Methods of the Municipal Voters' League of CHICAGO

To the non-partisan labors of the Municipal Voters' league must be credited much of the successful efforts at reform in Chicago municipal politics at the recent election. By hard, conscientious work the league prevented the election of a gang city council that would have played havoc with the city franchises during the next two years, and instead put into office a sufficient number of clean business men to practically assure a just and honest settlement of the franchise questions now pending. How this result was obtained is interesting, and in the following article Mr. Henry Barrett Chamberlin, the assistant secretary of the league, gives an insight into the methods of the organization.—Editor.

Chicago is experiencing a unique and reactionary development as a result of the municipal election April 2. The city council is being rehabilitated, and the centralizing tendency in which so many have seen danger is giving way to the more democratic system which is the fundamental principle of American government. Some of the most worthy men of the city are now in the council, and although there is a more or less strong minority of gangsters in evidence, the standards of honor, efficiency and general municipal ideas are winning in the fight for supremacy.

He Has Been Asked to Call.

The result of the election this year was a surprise to the political bosses of both parties. The brazen impudence of partisan dictators, who traded nominations for the benefit of themselves, was rebuked, and candidates for the city legislature whose reputations were notorious were for the most part defeated, enabling the council to be organized on a nonpartisan basis in the best interests of the city.

This local development is actually due, in a large measure, to the Municipal Voters' league, an organization of citizens of all parties which is devoted to laborious investigations and fearless reports of the personal record of all candidates for aldermanic honors. In this letter, owing to lack of space, but little may be said of the origin of the league, its manner of communication to the voters through the public press and its final report of facts which enable voters to form their own conclusions.

The campaign methods of the league are unique. It assumes that character and capacity are the fundamental qualifications for public service; that men having these qualities will faithfully represent the people, treat justly all private interests and dispose of every public question on its merits. It claims to represent only those who approve its principles. It appeals for their support in every case only on the basis of facts given to sustain its conclusion and recommendation. The appeal is to the individual voter through bulletins printed in the public press, of which the following is an illustration:

The Candidate Sees a Ghost.

FIFTIETH WARD: Richard K. Jones, contractor, 6 Greenwood boulevard; resides 541 Euclid place: served two terms in legislature; in council from 1885 to 1889; record always worst possible; while neglecting the interests of his constituents he has consistently voted in the interests of himself and boodling corporations. Was once assessor, and while in office compelled at least one employe to turn over to him a portion of his salary. This he admits, and his unsubstantiated explanation shows a wholly false conception of the duties of public office; is a politician for revenue only, and has twice changed his party ties. He should be defeated."

The league also takes cognizance of good records and gives candidates credit for what they may have accomplished, as illustrated here:

"William X. Green, Fifty-second ward, president Union flour mills, office, Wilson building; resides 1692 Lake View boulevard; born, Beverly, Mass.; elected to council from old Sixtieth ward in 1891; his campaign against assessment abuses, which he tirelessly waged to a successful termination at great personal expense, has shown him a man of force and public spirit; his council record has been good; his defeat would be a serious blow to the ward and the city; all good citizens should vote for him."

The league's report on the official record of the retiring aldermen and its information regarding candidates for election is looked forward to as a sort of annual judgment, and is generally regarded as the opening of the aldermanic campaign. Necessarily it speaks excathedra, and its apparently arbitrary statements are accepted by citizens who have watched this work during the last six years, because the people of Chicago are learning that back of its expressions are careful, conscientious and thorough investigations directed by men who have no selfish interest.

During the municipal campaign, such as the last, investigators are sent out into the wards to learn from friends and enemies all there is to be known regarding a candidate. This information is brought into the league offices and carefully considered. The executive committee of the league acts upon it, and a report is made to the public based on its findings. Candidates are afforded an opportunity to come in and question the members of the executive committee. Frequently they learn more regarding their records, after a short session, than they before suspected. Very often a conference with the executive committee convinces a candidate, especially before the primaries, that the best thing for him to do is to retire from the field, rather than have his corrupt practices exposed.

He Decides Not to Run for Office.

For example:

During the last campaign a certain candidate in one of the wards came to the league offices and asked the league's support. He gave references, agreed to stand by every principle advanced by the league, and brought with him letters from prominent men which indicated that he was a thoroughly honest business man. Delegations of citizens from his ward came in to the offices of the league to tell of his good qualities. After gathering all favorable information possible, the league put its investigators to work, and discovered that this man had been discharged in bankruptcy without scheduling actual assets, and after clearing himself of all indebtedness had reestablished himself in a prosperous business as the result of defrauding his creditors. It was also developed that he had been indicted for arson some years before, that he had been mixed up in several "shady" public and private transactions, and was in politics for revenue only. He was told that the best thing for him to do was to retire, and after having admitted the truthfulness of all the information presented to him he did retire, and a clean, honest and capable man was elected from the ward he sought to represent.

The strength of the league lies in the fact that it is independent of party politics and recommends candidates after investigation on their public and private records. It acts as a sort of clearing house for the independent voter, giving him the result of painstaking investigations. When an alderman, who has become notorious in the council is up for reelection, comes before the executive committee of the league, he is usually shown his past record, the ghost of which frequently induces him to take himself out of the light of public scrutiny.

The Office Seeks the Man.

So influential has the league become that the city council is being strengthened by the election of high-grade business and professional men. The league frequently seeks out a representative man, and uses its influence to induce him to accept the nomination often against his will. Through its influence the office is more and more engaged in seeking the man, as the professional politician fears the searching investigation which his reputation and conduct must undergo. Bribe-givers are powerless, because the league, composed as it is of representative business and professional men, backed by the moral support of 50,000 people who agree with its principles, cannot be influenced by money.

The president of the league during this campaign is Mr. Charles R. Crane, who is well known in commercial and industrial circles as vice president of the Crane company, one of Chicago's largest institutions, and which employs thousands of men.

The vice president of the league is Mr. Edwin Burritt Smith, a lawyer, whose interest in civic affairs has made him known throughout the country, both by his active participation and his numerous magazine articles.

Mr. Walter L. Fisher, lawyer, is the secretary of the league, and perhaps more than any other one man he is to be credited with the magnificent work accomplished this year, when boodle candidates were defeated in wards where the party vote should have secured their election by majorities ranging from 1,000 to 3,000.

Its Influence Cannot Be Bought.

Mr. E. A. Potter, president of the American trust and savings bank, is the treasurer of the league.

The executive committee includes the officers of the league in its membership, which is nine. There is also an advisory committee and a finance committee. The danger of personal preference on behalf of any candidate is avoided by the rule which prevents any expression of the league being issued except "by order of the executive committee." As this committee is composed of members of both political parties, the likelihood of favoritism is avoided, and the public is assured that its recommendations are always nonpartisan.

Since the establishment of the successful work of the league in Chicago voters in other cities desiring to secure release from partisan municipal control and corrupt public officials have written to its officers asking for information which would enable them to perfect an organization along similar lines.

Bottling up the Waters of the NILE RIVER

England Is Constructing the Greatest Irrigation System in the World for Egypt

SOME 700 years before the birth of Christ the old Israelite prophet Isaiah prophesied that men would in time to come cross the bed of the Nile river dry shod. That there would be constructed across that stream a highway for the remnant of his chosen people, and that then they would be recovered from the four corners of the earth and again gathered together. It is a prophecy on which still hinges much of the faith of the Israelites.

Is England assisting its fulfillment? Way up the Nile river at Assouan, where the waters of the Nile pour over the first cataract, England is building a mighty dam, and inaugurating one of the greatest irrigation plants known in the world. So far has the work progressed that men have already walked across the bed of the river dry shod, as Isaiah said they would. The illustration accompanying this article, which was made from a photograph, proves this fact. Across the top of this great dam is being builded a highway that also conforms to the prophecy of Isaiah.

BELOW THE GREAT DAM AT ASSOUAN.

The prosperity of practically the whole agricultural region of Egypt depends upon the Nile river. It can make of the Nile valley the most fertile spot on earth, or it can leave it a scorching desert dried up beneath the rays of a tropical sun. Nature seemingly intended that the Nile should overflow its banks, and while in most instances the overflow of a great river is looked upon as a frightful calamity, and guarded against with all the ingenuity of man, in Egypt such an occurrence is prayed for, and if it does not come famine and pestillence spreads its dread wings over the land.

The Nile is an erratic stream, and while nature seemingly intended it to overflow its banks and water the lands it does not always do so. To remedy this England is building the great dam at Assouan at a cost of more than $20,000,000. All of this amount, with interest, will be returned to England by the Egyptian government, who will in turn recover it from the agriculturalists living along the banks of the Nile, and who will pay for the service of watering his lands.

The dam, which, when completed, will assure the people living on some 3,000,000 acres of Egypt's most productive land of bountiful crops, is being built across the river at a point where the stream is a mile wide, and stretches from bank to bank over a series of rocky islets, which are separated by channels of varying width. The shallower and narrower channels are—or, rather, were—situated towards the eastern bank, and, consequently, though work has proceeded over the whole course of the dam's path and neighborhood, the chief progress with the actual dam has been made on the eastern side of the river. The work of closing up one by one the channels has been taken in order from that side, and the extreme western channel, which was the largest and most difficult of all the channels, has been left until last. Some three weeks ago this channel was finally closed, and Sir John Aird and a party of ladies and gentlemen crossed the Nile from bank to bank dryshod.

The channel of the Nile at this point is about a mile wide, though the dam, with its approaches, is a mile and a quarter. The great openings in the masonry are the sluices through which the Nile will rush at flood time in future years. There are 180 of these sluices. The dimensions of 140 of them are 24 feet high by 6½ wide.

Work has progressed more rapidly at the eastern than at the western end of the great dam. At the eastern end all the foundations are in; all the channels were long ago closed; and, except in depth of foundation, there is little difference between the dam construction over channel or over islet. There is one difference, however. The sluices over the higher levels—that is to say where the highest parts of the islets were—are not so large as the great lower sluices. There are 40 of these high-level sluices, and their dimensions are 12 feet by 6. They are placed at a higher level in the dam, chiefly for purposes of regulating the flow of the Nile; for it must be recollected that this great barrier over the river is being constructed in order to form a reservoir from which water can be doled out in the dry season to lower and middle Egypt. It will be a reservoir a mile and a quarter wide by 180 miles long, and it will hold up a thousand million gallons of water.

If, however, the works at the eastern end of the dam are more advanced, those at the western are more interesting. It is on this side that the great lock channel, which will allow steamboats to pass the first cataract, is being made; and it is here that the difficult task of closing up the great western channel has been overcome. Briefly described, the task of closing up the channel is as follows: First, a "sudd" or bank of heavy stones is constructed across the channel, wagons of stones, wagons and all, being shot into the stream for the purpose. When this has been completed with a backing of silt, another "sudd" of sandbags is constructed a little higher up the stream. When this is completed and the flow stopped, the water is pumped out from between these two walls, and excavations for the foundations begin.

CLOSING UP THE LAST WESTERN CHANNEL AT ASSOUAN.

Two years more labor will be required before this great irrigation system is completed, but when it is finally finished it is hoped that the water of the river upon which the hope of Egypt is founded will be so thoroughly under control that the land need no longer fear for her crops. England has done many great things for Egypt since the days she first assumed suzerainty over the long struggling nation, but this building of the dam at Assouan is probably the greatest of all of them. WRIGHT A. PATTERSON.

The Knobs Were There.

"I've got to get myself a pair of shoes," said Miss Bunyon, "and I'm determined to have a real nobby pair."

"Why, my dear," sweetly replied her best friend, "I'm sure any pair of shoes you would wear would have to be knobby."—Philadelphia Press.

VERDICT FOR MRS. ROGERS.

JUDGE VAIL REVERSED JUDGMENT OF JUSTICE HUFF.

Suit Was Brought by Jeremiah Smith For One Month's Wages as Butler —Claimed a Contract.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, April 18.—The case of Jeremiah Smith against Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers, of Plainfield, came up on appeal before Judge Vail in the Court of Common Pleas yesterday. In December Smith sued Mrs. Rogers for one month's wages, as butler, before Justice Huff, at Plainfield.

Mrs. Rogers' defence was that she had discharged him for impertinence when he had been there four days, and that she had offered him his pay for the time he had worked, which he refused to take. She also denied making any contract with him for a month and said that she merely took him on trial. The Justice, however, gave judgment for the plaintiff for the amount claimed.

Mrs. Rogers promptly appealed the case, and yesterday Judge Vail reversed the decision of Justice Huff and gave judgment for the defendant and in giving his decision said that the plaintiff had not proven any contract, and even if he had he had been rightfully discharged because he was impertinent. The Judge also said that servants must respect the people for whom they work. William Newcorn represented the plaintiff, and Counsellor W. S. Angleman the defendant.

PERSONAL.

Smith Garretson, of Lee place, who has been very ill for several weeks past, is gradually sinking. His attendants have very little hopes of his recovery.

John R. Merrick, of East Second street, accompanied by Mrs. Merrick, his mother, left Plainfield yesterday for Kingston, Ontario, where they will spend the summer.

At Elizabeth Presbytery.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Rahway, April 18.—When the Elizabeth Presbytery reconvened Tuesday afternoon, Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, of Plainfield, read the foreign missionary report, which showed a falling off in the amount of contributions for the month of April.

Rev. J. E. McKelvey, pastor of Warren chapel, North Plainfield, delivered the report on the condition of the various churches in the Presbytery. It showed an increase in both church and Sunday-school members. At the morning session yesterday Frederick B. Newman, of the Crescent Avenue church, Plainfield, was one of four young men examined for licensure. The examination was not concluded.

OUTPLAYED BY PINGRY BOYS.

NORTH PLAINFIELD HIGH SCHOOL DEFEATED EIGHT TO THREE.

Game was Played on Pingry's School Grounds at Elizabeth Yesterday Afternoon.

The North Plainfield High School team journeyed to Elizabeth yesterday afternoon to cross bats with the Pingry School nine. A game, in which there were a number of exciting features, was played, with the result that the boroughites were defeated by a score of eight to three.

Some changes were necessary in the lineup of the local team by reason of Crite's inability to play in the box on account of injuries received in a previous game. His position was well filled by Armstrong, who showed marked improvement. Armstrong's regular place at third base was taken by Conover, and Woodland substituted Lewis at right field. Blatz was put on second in place of Townsend.

Armstrong made a grand stand play at the start of the game. Two men were out on the first inning and by a long drive made a home run, which was not allowed because of failure to touch second. The runs scored by North Plainfield were by Overton, George and Armstrong.

Wheelman Found Trouble With Dog.

Ernest Fields, a waiter employed at the Imperial Hotel, was wheeling along Park avenue, near the Lehigh Valley tracks, yesterday afternoon, when a dog ran immediately in front of him. A collision resulted, and Fields was thrown to the ground with considerable force. An estimate of the damage revealed a number of severe cuts and bruises and a sadly torn spring suit. The wheel was found to be all right and Fields was able to ride home.

NEW YORK LEGISLATURE.

Stranahan Excise Bill Causes a Fight—A Tax Dodging Measure.

ALBANY, April 18.—A bitter fight was waged against the Stranahan excise bill in the assembly yesterday afternoon by the minority, backed by a number of Republicans, despite the fact that the majority leader, Allds, announced that the bill was wanted by the governor, and he expects every organization member to vote for the bill.

The principal section attacked was that which provides that the court may in its discretion issue an injunction closing up the business of a liquor dealer against whom action has been begun for a revocation of his certificate. The Republicans will caucus on the bill.

A hearing was given by Governor Odell on the O'Connell bill prohibiting butcher shops from keeping open on Sunday and making it a violation of the penal code to deliver uncooked flesh on that day.

Assemblyman Samuel Prince of the Sixteenth district, New York city, appeared in opposition, and the bill was favored by a delegation representing the employing and journeymen butchers of the large cities of the state.

Assemblyman Prince opposed the bill in behalf of the poorer people in New York city, who had inadequate facilities for keeping meat in a proper condition from Saturday until Sunday. In his district the majority of families lived in three rooms and were compelled to keep their ice chest in the same room with the cooking stove. He said that the state workingmen's federation in adopting a resolution favoring a Sunday closing law for butchers had declared against applying the law to New York city.

A bill which may be intended to allow private mortgage holders to evade the proposed mortgage tax bill if it is passed and becomes a law was introduced in the senate by Senator George E. Greene of Broome and incorporates the International Realty Bond and Trust company of New York city, with Charles C. Hughes, E. D. W. Langley, James P. Howe, G. A. Farnham, E. W. Davidson and Frank C. Hamilton as incorporators, with a capital of $1,000,000. The company has the right upon the face of the bill to take up all kinds of mortgages and, it is believed, can make individual mortgagees members of the company so that they can avoid taxation.

Eastman Building Opened.

ROCHESTER, April 18.—The opening of the new Eastman building at Mechanics' institute this week is attracting people from all parts of western New York. The door receipts show a daily attendance of over 5,000 people. Interest in the exhibits is on the increase, and it is a safe assertion that never before under one roof has been seen such a varied entertainment as afforded at the institute this week. Local manufacturers have taken advantage of the fine opportunity offered to display their wares, and a pure food demonstration is being conducted by the leading manufacturers of the country. Perhaps the most interest is centered in the Rochester Art club, which is holding its nineteenth annual exhibition in the new building.

The President's Itinerary.

WASHINGTON, April 18. — Slight modifications of the itinerary of the president's western trip as given out last Saturday have been made. Sunday, June 2, was to have been spent at Salt Lake City, but it is now understood that the date will be spent in Colorado, possibly at Glenwood Springs. The president and Mrs. McKinley have accepted the invitation of Mr. Henry T. Scott of San Francisco to occupy the latter's home during their stay in the Golden Gate City. One of the features of the launching of the battleship Ohio will be the presentation of a testimonial to the president by the workmen of the Union Iron works, where the Ohio is building.

Nome Banquet In New York.

NEW YORK, April 18.—Threescore pioneers of the new frontier city of Nome, Alaska, banqueted last night at the Hotel Manhattan. They chose a name for their reunion from classic Indian, calling it a "potlatch," and gave the affair as much of the color of the frozen north as the sumptuous private dining room of the Hotel Manhattan, the luxuries of metropolitan fare and the conventional garb of civilization would permit. The participants were assessed half an ounce of gold for locations at table, and invitation, menu and speech were in the strange new patois of the northwest, a mixture of English, Siwash and Chinook.

MISS BORSUM WEDDED TO A NEWARK MAN.

Charming House Wedding at Home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Borsum Yesterday.

MANY FRIENDS PRESENT.

GROOM WAS WM. C. FIEDLER, SON OF FORMER CONGRESSMAN.

Elaborate Floral Decorations in the Rooms of Mr. Borsum's Residence—Members of the Bridal Party—Out of Town Guests.

Miss Martha Borsum, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Borsum, of this city, and William C. Fiedler, of Newark, were married yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, at the residence of the bride's parents on Woodland avenue. The bride is a charming young woman and is extremely popular among a large circle of friends whose society she enjoys in this vicinity. The groom is a son of former Congressman William H. F. Fiedler, of Newark, and is a well-known business man of that city.

No pains had been spared to make the wedding notable, and the scene surrounding the nuptial ceremony was one of splendor. Gorgeous decorations enhanced the appearance of every room as well as the large hallway of the sumptuously arranged interior of the beautiful residence of Mr. Borsum. Palms and potted plants showed to advantage in every part of the house.

The parlor was decorated in pink and white flowers. At one end of the room had been erected a large floral bower in which strands the southern smilax were entwined with calla lilies and pink roses. Red American beauty roses were the exclusive decorations of the long dining room and the effect was one of real beauty.

Awaiting the coming of the bridal party, beneath the canopy of flowers in the parlor stood the officiating clergyman, Rev. E. M. Rodman, rector of the Grace P. E. church. At his side was the groom, attended by his younger brother, Ernest J. E. Fiedler, who acted as best man.

The Lohengrin wedding march was played by P. Ludwig Conde as the bridal party entered the room. Dr. Albert Pittis, of North Plainfield, and Otto K. Kuechler, of Newark, were the ushers. The bridemaids were the Misses Ida and Anna Borsum, sisters of the bride. They wore pink crepe de chene trimmed with cluny lace and carried pink bridal roses.

Preceding the maid of honor were Master Louis Borsum, a little brother of the bride, who dressed as a page, and Miss Margaret Huber, of Newark, who acted as a flower girl. The maid of honor was Miss Bertha Fiedler, a sister of the groom. Miss Fiedler was gowned in white crepe de chene trimmed with chantilly lace and wore a veil. Her bouquet was of bridal roses.

The bride is truly beautiful and she presented a charming appearance in a gown of white renaissance over chiffon. Her veil of tulle was fastened by a handsome diamond star, the gift of the groom. About the star were arranged dainty sprays of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley. Mrs. Louis Borsum wore a gown of white chiffon trimmed with black lace.

At the conclusion of the short but impressive wedding service of the Episcopal church, a reception was held prior to the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Fiedler for their honeymoon. The refreshments were served by Davis, of Newark.

The young couple will make their home in Newark and will reside in the West End.

Magnificent specimens of cut glass and dresden china were a few of the almost countless wedding presents received.

DROVE INTO TRENCH.

Supposed That Driver Was Asleep And so Did Not See The Warning Red Lanterns.

In connection with the improvements now being made on Liberty street, the two catch basins beneath the railroad bridge are being connected by a much larger pipe than heretofore. In consequence of this a trench was dug half way across the street yesterday and to warn teamsters and drivers last night, two red lanterns were placed at either end.

Despite this fact, someone drove into the excavation and the wagon was overturned. The man, whose identity could not be learned, claimed the lanterns were out. Residents in the vicinity state that the lanterns were burning brightly and that the man had evidently fallen asleep. The entire roadway beneath the bridge is illuminated by an electric light.

Y. M. C. A. LEADERS WON.

DEFEATED WASSERPACHERS OF LOCAL ASSOCIATION LAST NIGHT.

Exciting Game of Basket Ball Played in Y. M. C. A. Gymnasium—Leaders Won 13 to 12.

Two basket ball teams from the Y. M. C. A gymnasium, the Wasserpachers and the Leaders, played a neat and exciting game before a large number of spectators last evening. The latter team is composed of the leaders in the gymnasium classes, among whom are some expert players. From first appearances it looked as if the Leaders would easily defeat their opponents, but they won by the close score of 13 to 12.

The individual work of both teams was excellent, the Wasserpachers putting up a far better game than they were deemed capable of. Both halves were practically devoid of roughness, although at first the men were inclined to use unnecessary force. The Wasserpachers showed a lack of practice in throwing for goals, numerous chances to score being lost by hasty tosses. On the Leaders' side the throwing was excellent, Erle Moraller being exceptionally proficient.

At the end of the first half the score was 7 to 3 in favor of the Leaders, but during the latter part of the game the Wasserpachers played with great earnestness, with the result that goals were made in quick succession.

The line up was as follows:

LEADERS.		WASSERPACHERS.
Craig	r. forward	Heinecke
Smith	l. forward	R. Smith
Moraller	centre	Denton
Zimmer	r. guard	Luckey
Evanston	l. guard	George

William and Dorothy, the other children who are ill with diphtheria, are doing very well. In their case as well as in that of the deceased daughter, anti-toxine was administered by Dr. Westcott, but in the case of Ida the disease was too far advanced to do much good.

There are two other small children who have not yet developed any symptoms of diphtheria.

It has been arranged to send the body of Ida Ellis to Tennessee a little later. For the present it will be kept in the receiving vault at Hillside. A hermetically sealed casket is now being made to transfer the body south.

MAY GIVE UP PARADE.

Veterans May Do Away With That Part of Memorial Day Programme.

There was another meeting of the joint Memorial Day committee at Reform Hall last evening after the regular meeting, when arrangements were made to hold exercises in the hall on Decoration Day. It is being planned to have a large chorus of children occupy a place on the platform.

The veterans are thinking seriously of giving up the customary parade, as it is too much of an effort for a majority of them, who are well advanced in years. It is quite likely that the fife and drum corps will be engaged to furnish music at the hall. By holding the exercises at Reform Hall better order can be maintained and those who want to attend will probably enjoy the programme better.

FIGHTING FOR FARM,

Long Continued Legal Struggle in the Somerset County Courts to Gain Possession of Farm by Owner.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, April 19.—The celebrated case of Dombey and son, referred to by Dickens, is likely to be eclipsed by the case of Mrs. Icie C. G. Reynolds against Aaron L. Grey, in this county. A year ago last March Mrs. Reynolds purchased a farm near New Brunswick, upon which Grey was then living. He was given notice to vacate by April 1. He failed to comply and suit was brought. Grey secured a non-suit.

A second trial resulted in the jury disagreeing. Last December Grey was given notice to vacate April 1. He staid on and a third suit was brought and tried Monday. The jury rendered a verdict in favor of the plaintiff, who then thought that at last she was going to get possession of her farm.

Former Judge Cowenhoven appeared before Justice Garretson yesterday and secured a writ of certiorari, which will allow his client, Grey, to remain awhile longer on the farm. F. A. Pope represents the plaintiff.

ALL BUILDINGS MUST BE PROPERLY NUMBERED

Street Committee of Council Will Enforce Ordinance Which Provides for House Numbering.

FINE FOR NONCOMPLIANCE.

COMMITTEE IS CONSIDERING QUESTION OF MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP.

Subject Was Discussed at Committee Meeting Last Night—Report Will Probably be Made at May Meeting of the Common Council.

While the Common Council has not empowered the members of the street committee to go to any expense yet in an investigation of the subject of municipal ownership as applied to water works for Plainfield, the committee is now considering the subject as deeply as is possible under the circumstances. A meeting of the committee was held last evening when the question of municipal ownership was informally discussed.

So far the investigation has been largely confined to discovering how other cities are doing regarding this subject and just what opening there is in Plainfield to establish such a plant or buy out the present one of the Plainfield Water Supply Company. It is expected that the committee will have something to report on the subject at the May meeting of the Council. While that report may not be as full as the members of the committee desire, it will give the other Councilmen some idea of what is possible.

Another matter of importance which was considered at last night's meeting of the committee was the need of more care on the part of householders to see that the house numbers were properly displayed on their homes. There has been some complaint that some houses in the city were either numbered incorrectly or not numbered at all, while, in the case of others the numbers were so hidden away that it was almost impossible to see them. While the Street Commissioner has been working to remedy this trouble, it was decided to give the public formal notice of the necessity of the proper numbering of all houses.

A formal notice was prepared by Corporation Counsel Marsh which will be found in another column. The committee has decided to give the householders a final chance to see that their homes are properly numbered and then proceed under the provisions of the ordinance of 1893, which imposes a fine of $5 for neglect to provide numbers plainly visible from the sidewalk. The proper number of all houses may be obtained by reference to the Assessor's books and maps at the office of the City Collector, 109 Park avenue.

There was also a general discussion of the improvements at the sewage disposal plant and the progress being made. The Street Commissioner reported that the new steam roller had arrived and was apparently in good condition and ready for work. No action was taken regarding the work to be done this spring and summer in macadamizing streets with the aid of the interested property owners.

AT THE THEATRES.

Something About the Attractions Which Plainfield Theatre-Goers May Care to Witness.

There is but one opinion in regard to Vogel & Deming's Big Minstrel Company, which will be at Music Hall next Tuesday night, and that opinion is that the aggregation is the best of its kind on the road, bar none. To begin with, the band and orchestra are first class; the music by the latter especially during the performance, being excellent. The first part, with its "Diamond Grotto" setting, includes fine singing of sentimental ballads and comic songs. To the latter, Lew Benedict, Bert Leighton and the only Arthur Deming contribute- Deming is funny with a humor that never grows tiresome. In the olio, Tommy Hays, musical trick bone soloist. Rosaire, the Wire Marvel, performs truly marvelous feats. The Van Brothers are exceedingly clever on various musical instruments. The entertainment closes with one of the strongest features conceivable—the O Brien troupe of high-class acrobats. The troupe consists of a man, two girls and a small boy, and their act has never been equalled by any travelling company. They are simply wonderful; the work of the boy and smallest girl approaching the limit of human possibilities. Altogether, Vogel & Deming have an aggregation reaching almost to perfection, and should be greeted by a packed house.

The melodramatic comedy of "Nip and Tuck" which has stood the test of time, and remains a popular and enjoyable piece. There is something to please every taste, and the plot rapidly shifts comic, tragic, and dramatic events. The motive of the play is founded on a great poisoning mystery which evokes the services of two clever keen scented detectives, true types of the "crime ferrets" of all great cities. Ambition and profit urge them into the most strenuous efforts to solve the mystery, and win the rewards, and their schemes, and machinations form a richly amusing series of incidents.

Thomas Jefferson will be the attraction at Music Hall next Thursday night, presenting the one play that has been seen by thousands of theatregoers presented by his father, Joseph Jefferson, entitled "Rip Van Winkle." The play will be given with special scenery and a company of excellence. Thomas is not a novice on the stage as he has served apprenticeship under the tuition of his illustrious father and has been highly praised for his able performance of "Rip" by all the critics of the large cities, namely, Chicago, Bostan, St. Louis, Washington and Pittsburg, where he has appeared to large audiences.

The largest production ever made in this country is "The Price of Peace," the big melodrama from the Drury Lane, Theatre, London, now running at the Broadway Theatre, New York. There are 317 persons at work in the production. There are 80,000 square feet of canvas in use, more than five times that of an average play with big scenes. The last scene of the play—the sinking of the steam yacht "Marigold" by an ocean liner—is one of the most marvelous and effective pieces of stage realism yet attempted. At the beginning of the scene is shown the deck and cabin of the yacht. The rigging, masts and furnishings are absolutely realistic. The crew is on deck and the principals in the cabin, when the bow of an ocean liner looms up suddenly out of the fog and crashes into the yacht. All is instant confusion. The yacht slowly sinks, the heroine climbs into the rigging and the villain is drowned while struggling with a vengeful enemy, while the escaping steam from the sinking yacht's engine room envelops the scene and renders additional realism to the picture. A second tableau shows the rescue of the survivors by the lifeboat from the liner. The scene is one that is not easily forgotten by playgoers.

INTERESTING CATALOGUE.

Just Issued By Newark's Oldest and Largest Furniture House.

An interesting catalogue has been issued by Newark's oldest and largest furniture house, a complete illustrated guide for house furnishing. It is naturally a matter of the deepest pride on the part of the people of Newark and vicinity that one of the city's oldest houses in the furniture and carpet line, Amos H. VanHorn, Ltd., have issued a most comprehensive illustrated forty-two page catalogue for free distribution. The book is really an interesting piece of reading matter and shows the people of New Jersey what an extraordinary success has been won by a firm that very clearly has plenty of perseverance and the interest of the people at heart. The VanHorn people have touched on the new spring styles shown in their many departments, bedroom, parlor and dining furniture, carpets, bedding, stoves, lamps, etc., as well as giving the reader suggestions as to the range of prices on the various lines. The arrangement of the descriptive matter is most attractive, for it makes a helpful guide to the one curious as to just what to get for the house and the probable cost. It must be admitted the liberal inducements the VanHorn people hold out all through this book and the very moderate prices they seem content to get for their goods, are such as should make this establishment famous from one end of the State to the other, and their "Cash and Credit" methods and low prices certainly deserve the commendation of the people, and it is evident they are getting it in full measure.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May Be Of Interest to Plainfield and Its Citizens.

There seems to have been no small amount of folly displayed at the Newark "harmony" dinner, held by some members of the Democratic party Friday evening. The conduct of Martine and one or two more of the silver asses was just what might be expected. It shows the futility of trying to keep such people in line. If the party is ever to win in this State, they must be kicked out and sent over to the Socialist faction where they belong.—Jersey City News.

* * * * *

The Plainfield Street Railway Company wants a franchise for a line through Dunellen to New Market. The people of Dunellen have been subjected to no end of annoyance and inconvenience by the high handed and inconsiderate way in which the Plainfield Street Railway Company has conducted the business of carrying passengers from Bound Brook and Dunellen to Plainfield. The company has given orders to its motormen to refuse to wait for any car of the Somerset and Middlesex Company's line, although the car might be in sight and be filled with people to go to Plainfield.

Now is the time for Dunellen to make a new arrangement with the Plainfield Street Railway Company, and put matters on a satisfactory basis. The borough should compel the Plainfield Company to put down in black and white an agreement to give the borough decent connections and a first-class transfer system. Then, and only then, should the borough consider the proposition to permit the company to build a line from Dunellen to New Market. Now is the golden time for putting the screws to the company. Afterward, when the franchise has been granted and the line laid, it will be too late. The people of Dunellen should have learned this one thing by this time, as a result of their experiences with trolley companies and trolley promises.—New Brunswick Times.

A FATAL SNOWSLIDE

Engines on Colorado Railroad Hurled Into a Chasm.

FOUR TRAINMEN INSTANTLY KILLED.

Train Heavily Loaded With Passengers Was Untouched, Being Left Behind While Engines Tried to Buck Snow From the Tracks.

BOULDER, Colo., April 19.—A terrible accident occurred last night on the Colorado and Northwestern road near this city. Two big engines attached to a passenger train coming from Ward to Boulder were struck by a huge snowslide and hurled into the chasm below. Four trainmen were killed. They are Engineers Hannon and Fitzgerald, Fireman Miller and Conductor Bair.

The second fireman has not yet been accounted for, and it is believed he is also dead. The bodies have not been recovered.

The passenger train left Ward for Boulder drawn by two engines. When the train reached Boomerville, the engines were uncoupled and started up the hill to buck the snow which was deep on the tracks. A sharp curve occurred near the apex of the mountain, and just as the engines started to round the curve a vast avalanche of snow and earth was loosened from above. It came down with terrific force and gained momentum every second.

It is said that the train, which was heavily loaded with passengers, was not touched by the slide.

Volunteers Mustered Out.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 19.—The Thirty-third and Thirty-fourth volunteer regiments, recently returned from Manila, have been mustered out. The Twenty-eighth and Thirty-fifth infantry, now in camp at the Presidio, expect to be mustered out of the service April 30. Although there are very few troops here now under orders for the Philippines, the transports will be rushed there as quickly as possible, so as to be in Manila to bring home all the volunteers to be mustered out by the 1st of July. In accordance with this programme the Thomas will sail from here tomorrow and the Warren on the 25th. The assignments to the Thomas so far consist of 217 recruits and 20 casuals, under the command of Lieutenant W. A. Lieber. The Twenty-fourth infantry and 150 marines have been assigned to the Warren.

Faith Cure For Smallpox.

SOUTHINGTON, Conn., April 19.—Mrs. Tracy St. John of Brooklyn, who came here Wednesday from Brooklyn while suffering from smallpox, is quarantined at the house of her father, Oliver D. Woodruff, and refuses to receive medical attendance. Mrs. St. John is an Adventist and, with her family, declares her belief in the efficacy of prayer to heal diseases. The state board of health officials have instituted a rigid quarantine of the premises and do not insist that the patient should have a physician. The woman came here by way of the New York and Northampton division of the Consolidated railroad, leaving New York city at 4 p. m. Wednesday. She says that she contracted the disease while doing missionary work in Brooklyn.

Lake Firemen and Linemen Strike.

CLEVELAND, April 19.—A strike of all the firemen and linemen employed on harbor tugs controlled by the Great Lake Towing company at Cleveland, Erie, Conneaut, Fairport, Lorain, Huron and Ashtabula has been ordered, to take effect immediately. The Great Lakes Towing company own practically all the tugs operated at the ports named. The strike was decided upon as a result of the refusal of the company to grant an advance in wages of $5 per month. The men now get $50 per month. As but comparatively few tugs have thus far gone into commission not to exceed 200 men are directly affected.

No Trace of Missing Boy.

NEW YORK, April 19.—Deeper and deeper grows the mystery of little Willie McCormick's disappearance from his home in Highbridge three weeks ago. His father and mother are grieving over him as though they knew for certain he were dead, and the mother is failing daily under the strain. The feeling between the family of the child and the police department is very bitter, each complaining of the other and adding to the difficulty of the search.

Alleged Burglar Shot.

TRENTON, April 19.—John Gomblowski, alias Joe Smith, who was wanted in Philadelphia to answer charges of burglary, was accidentally shot and killed in south Trenton yesterday afternoon by Detective John J. Clancy of the Trenton police department. Gomblowski was shot in the leg, and an artery was severed, causing him to bleed to death. The man was fleeing from the officer when the shot was fired.

Prospective Strikers Checkmated.

SYRACUSE, April 19.—A special to The Post-Standard from Oswego Falls, across the river from Fulton, says: "The big mills of the American Woolen company here, employing 1,200 hands, were closed yesterday afternoon. The weavers threatened to strike, objecting to the order obliging them to instruct beginners. The company learned of this and checkmated the men by closing the mills."

Canadians Favor "Old Home" Month.

BOSTON, April 19.—The Canadian club of Boston is pushing the proposition to establish an "old home" month for Canada. There are in the state of Massachusetts alone some 207,000 and in greater Boston about 112,000 Canadians, and it is felt that a very large proportion of these would return and visit their native province during the home month under incentive of excursion fares by rail and water.

A Destructive Hurricane.

VICTORIA, B. C., April 19.—From the Fiji group news is given of a serious hurricane which involved the loss of property and shipping valued at over $1,000,000 at Levuka and heavy damage elsewhere. Seven lives were lost at Levuka, and from other parts of the group loss of life was reported.

Northern Pacific Lands Sold.

ST. PAUL, April 19.—The Northern Pacific railroad has just concluded the sale of 200,000 acres of its land grant in Minnesota to a Boston land company for $2 an acre.

CEBU'S PACIFICATION

Provisional Government For the Island.

JUDGE LLORENTE NAMED AS GOVERNOR

Commissioners Disappointed at Conditions Existing In Cebu—Change Expected to Relieve What Is Really a State of Siege.

CEBU, Philippine Islands, April 19.—The act establishing provincial government in Cebu was passed yesterday. Julio Llorente, justice of the supreme court of the Philippines, who is a native of Cebu, was appointed governor.

The United States Philippine commission announced that they were satisfied the act would assist in the pacification of Cebu, pointing out that otherwise there would be a recurrence to military government. The adjacent pueblo of San Nicolas was added to the city of Cebu, though against the protest of the inhabitants of San Nicolas, who, like the inhabitants of most towns in this island, have been conducting what are practically insurrecto local governments, including the collection of taxes, all of which has been permitted by Lieutenant Colonel McClernand, the military governor, who justifies this course on the principle that it is all carried on under military supervision. Most of the subordinate military officers favor a more vigorous policy.

The commissioners are disappointed at the conditions in Cebu. Senor Llorente, who is an honorable and capable man, is opposed by a considerable native faction, but his administration is expected to relieve what is admittedly a state of siege.

Lieutenant Frederick S. Young of the Forty-fourth volunteer infantry was appointed treasurer of Cebu, and Lieutenant Case of the Thirty-third volunteer infantry was appointed supervisor.

MACARTHUR ON FRAUDS.

General Does Not Confirm Sensational Reports.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—A reply has been received from General MacArthur by the secretary of war in answer to the war department's inquiry in regard to the alleged frauds in the commissary department at Manila. The dispatch does not confirm the sensational reports of conspiracy among the officers of the army to defraud the government.

General MacArthur's cable dispatch was as follows:

"With reference to your telegram of 16th, Associated Press reports grossly exaggerated and misleading. Matters therein touched upon regarding officers subsistence department fully investigated. Proceedings sent by transport Sheridan. Regarding theft commissary stores, amount of which was grossly exaggerated by press reports, immediate and most drastic measures have already been applied. Three officers and a number of enlisted men are being tried by court martial and a number of citizens by military commission."

Evans Denies Reports.

CHICAGO, April 19.—Thomas E. Evans of the firm of Evans & Co., importers and financial brokers at Manila, who arrived in Chicago yesterday en route to Washington, denied the reports from Manila that his firm was concerned in the commissary department frauds. Mr. Evans said that it seemed almost impossible to him that any such frauds as are reported could be perpetrated under the strict army regulations in vogue. "If any army officers are credited upon our books, the transaction is perfectly legitimate," said he. "We do a regular banking business, and as army officers often have to borrow money we make them loans and charge the regular 6 per cent rate of interest. Our firm has never bought army supplies except at public auction, and all contracts we have secured were in open competition. During the past three years we have furnished the United States government with $25,000,000 of supplies."

Northern Luzon Revenues.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The division of insular affairs of the war department announces that the internal revenue collections in the department of northern Luzon, Philippine Islands, for the calendar year 1900 were $106,791. The supervisor of internal revenue for this department reports that the people, as a rule, pay their taxes promptly and without complaint and says that largely increased revenues for the year 1901 may be safely predicted.

Bonds For Burlington Stock.

NEW YORK, April 19.—It is semiofficially stated in Wall street that the proposed control of Burlington by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific interests would be effected by an issue of $220,000,000 in bonds on the basis of $2 in bonds for each dollar outstanding of Burlington stock. The issue will be underwritten by a syndicate at par, with commissions off.

LI COUNSELS PEACE.

Urges Withdrawal of Troops—Death of General Schwartzkopf.

PEKING, April 19.—Li Hung Chang has telegraphed Emperor Kwang Su and the governor of the province of Shansi, recommending the withdrawal of the Chinese troops from the border, but General Liu, if his boasting means anything, will remain to fight the German and French troops sent to oppose his advance.

The foreign ministers at a meeting on Wednesday approved the main features of the report of the generals, mentioned in previous dispatches, providing for the razing of the Chinese forts between Peking and the sea, the establishment of military posts at certain points and the gradual evacuation of China by the allied troops.

The Germans are greatly grieved at the loss of General Schwartzkopf. Count von Waldersee and most of his staff escaped in their night clothing, the fire having broken out about midnight. Many valuable treasures were lost and also the German records of the allied forces. General von Lessel, who was to have taken charge of the Pao-ting-fu expedition, lost all his clothing and will be delayed here until Saturday.

WALDERSEE'S NARROW ESCAPE.

His Chief of Staff Perished In Fire Which Destroyed Quarters.

BERLIN, April 19.—A dispatch from Peking says that Count von Waldersee escaped from the burning palace of the empress through a window with great difficulty.

Major General Schwartzkopf, Count von Waldersee's chief of staff, lost his life by returning to the burning building after having escaped from it.

The quarters of the six officers, besides those of Von Waldersee and his staff, were gutted.

The body of General Schwartzkopf, it was announced last evening in a dispatch from Peking, has been found. The body of his dog was first found, and it is supposed the general re-entered the palace to rescue the dog.

The suspicion of incendiarism is not borne out. It is believed the fire originated in the pantry near Von Waldersee's kitchen.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

The Michigan legislature has legalized ten round prizefights.

The chief commissary at Manila, General Woodruff, has cabled denying fraud reports.

Governor Odell has signed a bill providing for Sunday closing of butcher shops in New York state.

The car shops and many freight cars of the New York Central railroad have been burned at East Rochester.

Fortune Lost at Faro.

NEW YORK, April 19.—Despite the fact that gambling is supposed to be a lost art in New York, one of the heaviest faro games ever played in the state began in an up town resort early last Monday afternoon and concluded 15 hours later. More than $50,000 changed hands, and it was the bank that was the winner. The loser turned over cash to the amount of several thousand dollars and drew his check for $50,000 at the conclusion of the game. The check was presented at the bank for payment Tuesday and was promptly cashed. The loser is one of those concerned in the formation of the steel trust, and his wealth is so great that he will be inconvenienced in no manner by his loss. His name is well known in Wall street. He is a prominent figure in the corridors of the Waldorf-Astoria, where he is now staying.

Raids In the Tenderloin.

NEW YORK, April 19.—Additional raids were made by the committee of fifteen between midnight and 1 o'clock this morning. A dozen or more places were visited. Most of them were in the Tenderloin. A few were along the Bowery. The places visited were mostly concert halls and cafes. The proprietor in most cases or his manager, a bartender or two and in some instances a doorkeeper were arrested. Every place visited was thronged with men and women, and there was more or less excitement, but it quickly passed away when the inmates of the places found they were not wanted.

Shut Up In a Tunnel.

SALT LAKE CITY, April 19.—The railroad building war in Nevada continues. Those of the Short Line forces who were in possession of both ends of tunnel No. 1 west from Nevada have been driven into the tunnel by the Sanf Pedro, Los Angeles and Salt Lake men, Senator Clark's crowd. The Clark people have barricaded both ends of the tunnel, securely bottling up their opponents in the darkness. The imprisoned forces have food and water to last several days, but unless re-enforcements from the outside come to their aid they will soon be forced to capitulate.

A Still Near a Church.

HUNTINGTON, Conn., April 19.—Deputy United States Marshal Bryant of Derby discovered an alleged illicit still on the premises of Hobart Hubbel, a farmer living in the northeastern part of this town. Hubbell's place is close to the Baptist church. Upon the premises were found several kettles and distilling apparatus, besides two and a half barrels of cider brandy. Hubbell was taken to New Haven for arraignment.

Next Apostolic Delegate.

MILWAUKEE, April 19.—According to Milwaukee friends of Archbishop Zardetti, he is likely to become the next apostolic delegate to this country or South America if a successor to Mgr. BIG BRITISH DEFICIT.

Government to Borrow $300,000,000 to Meet Expenses.

LONDON, April 19.—The house of commons, which adjourned from April 3, resumed its sessions yesterday. Every seat was occupied when Speaker Gully took the chair at 3:20. There were 21 questions on the calendar. The house proceeded to business at once.

The Right Hon. A. J. Balfour, government leader, said that the rule providing that all business under consideration at midnight should be interrupted and postponed on certain days would be suspended in order to allow the consideration of certain budget resolutions and a loan resolution to be concluded.

Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, chancellor of the exchequer, in presenting the budget said that in the last few years he had happily been able to congratulate the country on its financial position. This year his position was not quite so satisfactory. At the same time the exchequer revenues showed no sign of decrease.

Sir Michael stated that if was estimated that the total expenditures this year would amount to £187,602,000, of which £58,320,000 would be for carrying on the war.

The chancellor of the exchequer said the receipts from the income tax had been remarkable, amounting to £26,920,000, or £1,120,000 beyond the estimates. Within 12 years the amount of assessable income had increased by £120,000,000.

He estimated the total expenditures for 1901-2 at £187,000,000, while the revenues at the present rate of taxation would yield only within £57,000,000 of this amount. He was therefore compelled to provide for this deficiency.

The budget report shows that the total revenues were £130,385,000 and the expenditures £183,592,000. Of the expenditures £68,000,000 was on account of the war in South Africa.

The chancellor said he must ask the committee to extend the borrowing powers of the government considerably in excess of £41,000,000 he had asked for in the first instance. He must now increase the demand to £60,000,000. There seemed no prospect of the Transvaal or Orange River Colony contributing to the cost of the war for several years. The war could no longer be considered a small affair, Sir Michael said, as it had cost the government £153,000,000, or double the expense of the Crimean war.

After the speech of the chancellor of the exchequer in the house of commons Mr. John Redmond, the Nationalist leader, asked what interest Ireland had in the war which led to this extraordinary, disastrous and disgraceful financial situation. He protested against fresh taxation which, he said, imposed great injustice upon Ireland that already, as admitted by the government commission in 1893, was great overtaxed. He severely attacked Mr. Joseph Chamberlain and the war policy.

BRITISH GAINS.

Kitchener Reports Encouragingly of the Campaign.

LONDON, April 19.—A dispatch from General Kitchener, dated Pretoria, says:

"Plumer has occupied Bathfont, capturing 13 prisoners and a number of rifles and ammunition.

"Douglass' column has occupied Dullstroom. Six Boers were killed.

"On General Kitchener's advance from Lydenburg the Boers blew up a Long Tom. Thirteen prisoners were captured.

"Elliott's division has brought in a large number of cattle."

A Cape Town dispatch says that P. H. Malan, editor of Ons Land, has been found guilty of libel. He was not sentenced.

Ons Land is the principal Afrikander newspaper in Cape Town. Mr. Malan was arrested in January last, charged with seditious libel, consisting of reflections upon the conduct of General French and his troops.

Baseball Season Opens.

NEW YORK, April 19.—The race for the National league baseball pennant of 1901 commenced yesterday, but the start was spoiled by the wet weather, which caused a postponement of the opening at the Polo grounds with a game between the Giants and Boston. In Cincinnati, where Pittsburg was to open, and in St. Louis, where Chicago was billed to "play ball," rain and wet grounds also put a stop to the fun. At Philadelphia, where the champion Brooklyn team was billed to appear, better fortune waited upon the baseball cranks, and 20,000 of them turned out to see the Quakers cross bats with Hanlon's Superbas. The game resulted in a victory for Brooklyn. The score follows:

Brooklyn	6	1	0	0	0	3	0	1	1	—12
Philadelphia	0	0	2	3	0	0	1	0	0	—7

Body of Man Found In River.

TUNKHANNOCK, Pa., April 19.—A search of the ruins of the Keeler House barns in which six horses were burned revealed the body of Dr. Charles W. Dana. He had evidently gone into the barn to assist in saving the horses and was overcome with heat and smoke. Dr. Dana was 45 years of age. He was a son of Dr. C. H. Dana, a well known physician, who died in Florida two weeks ago.

Train Wrecking Attempt Fails.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., April 19.—The switch at Flory's coal dump, on the Bath branch of the Jersey Central railroad, was thrown open twice on passenger trains by would be train wreckers, and in both instances Engineer Stemmetz succeeded in averting an accident by using emergency appliances. The company has massed officers and detectives here to run down the wreckers.

Laborers Ask Nine Hour Day.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., April 19.—A mass meeting was held here in the Casino theater by the laborers' union to induce the city officials to grant the laborers' demand that nine hours constitute a day's work. Rev. F. A. Heath, one of the leading ministers of the city, was among those who pleaded for the laborers.

Snowstorm In Chicago.

CHICAGO, April 19.—A snowstorm struck Chicago yesterday morning and continued for a few hours. The flakes were large and melted as fast as they touched the pavements. In the suburbs, however, the ground was covered with white. Snow was also reported from several points in Indiana.

Seneca Lake Cottages In Danger.

SYRACUSE, April 19.—A special from Seneca Falls says a stiff south wind is piling the waters of Cayuga lake high on shore, undermining the foundations of the numerous cottages. One building has fallen, and much damage is expected to result.

BIG STRIKE AVERTED

Advisory Board of Steel Workers Reaches Decision.

STEEL COMPANY MAKES CONCESSIONS

Discharged Men to Be Reinstated. Matters Remain In Same Position as Before the Trouble at McKeesport Broke Out.

PITTSBURG, April 19.—There will be no strike in the plants of the American Sheet Steel company. The trouble that broke out in the De Wees wood plant in McKeesport last week and which for a time threatened to cause a general strike of all union iron and steel workers in the country has been settled in an amicable manner. The members of the general executive board of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel and Tin Workers held a long session yesterday. It started out with a general feeling a strike would come, as the workers would not concede the only point in dispute, reinstatement of the men discharged, as claimed, for joining the union, and so far as could be learned the officials of the American Sheet Steel company were equally determined.

During the morning session of the executive board John Jarrett, acting for the American Sheet Steel company, appeared with a proposition for the members to consider regarding a settlement of the difficulty. In general this proposition was that all the men discharged from the wood plant should be reinstated, including Holloway, and that all but Holloway should return to work at once, Holloway to be returned within ten days. The board insisted that Holloway should be treated in the same manner as the others, and finally Mr. Jarrett changed his proposition to include Holloway after three days' suspension, and the following agreement was drawn up and signed at 7 o'clock last evening:

"We have discovered after a careful examination of the points at issue that as usual mistakes and misunderstandings underlie the trouble at McKeesport, and we reach the conclusion that it will be to the advantage of all parties concerned to start the wood plant with the old employees on next Monday.

"And it is further agreed that the contract with reference to working conditions in the mill and scale matters shall be observed until July 1, and in the meantime Mr. Smith and Mr. Holloway shall have a meeting to adjust any difficulty which may exist between them."

In explanation of this agreement it was stated that the matter will remain in exactly the same position as before the trouble broke out. The organization of the local of the Amalgamated association among the employees of the mill will be continued, though the company will not recognize it in any way in dealing with the men. The Amalgamated association stated that they did not wish the company to recognize their organization at present and simply asked the company to allow the men to do as they pleased and act with freedom when outside of the mill. The company officials, on the other hand, say that so long as the local among their men does not try to force recognition and the men work under the personal agreement with them they would not allow any feeling against the men. Both sides are satisfied, and the strike that has existed for a week has in reality, according to the officers on both sides, been due entirely to a misunderstanding between the two sides to the dispute.

More Trouble at McKeesport.

M'KEESPORT, Pa., April 19.—After safely passing through one labor trouble, McKeesport has just entered another. At 7:30 o'clock last night all the hands employed on the McKeesport Connecting railroad struck for longer dinner hours. The men at present have to return to work immediately after they are through eating their midday meal, and they now demand 45 minutes. The strikers include the engineers, firemen and brakemen in the yards of the National Tube works, rolling mills, Monongahela blast furnaces and Monongahela steel works of the National Tube company, numbering about 50 men. The men are all members of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, and that organization is expected to back the men in their demands.

Hobson's First Work.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Naval Constructor Hobson, who is now on special duty here, was given his first assignment yesterday in connection with the torpedo boat Tingey, the contract on which has been declared forfeited. The contractors claim that they furnished a number of extras before the forfeiture occurred. The ship will now be towed from Baltimore to Norfolk, where Constructor Hobson and other members of a board will make an inquiry to learn how far these extras were warranted.

It is valued at $20,000. There yet remains to be raised for completion $3,000.

Proper House Numbers.

Having provided the city with suitable street signs, the members of the Councilmanic street committee have now turned their attention to the proper numbering of the houses. At a meeting of the street committee last evening formal notice was given to the householders throughout the city that they will be expected to see that their homes are provided with proper numbers placed in conspicuous places.

This does not mean that there has been any change in the general scheme of numbering. In 1893, the Common Council passed an ordinance providing for the numbering of the houses on the plan commonly known as the "Philadelphia" system. The idea on which this plan is based is that the numbers are to be arranged with a new hundred to every block. This system is still in force. When the new city maps were prepared two years ago, there were a few changes made in that part of the city east of Richmond street and LaGrande avenue. Otherwise the numbers are as they were allotted in 1893.

Under the terms of that ordinance of 1893, the householders who do not conform with its provisions and provide the proper numbers as noted on the city maps, make themselves liable to a fine of $5 The street committee now calls the attention of the public to this fact. While there will be no attempt to immediately enforce that ordinance, householders will be given a chance to see that their homes are properly numbered. If they fail in this, the street committee will undoubtedly start more drastic measures

This action on the part of the street committee is a commendable one. It is as important that houses should be properly and plainly numbered as that the streets shall be designated with signs. The Daily Press has pointed out the fact already that many of the houses in the city are either numbered wrong or not at all while some numbers are so hidden away as to be of practically no use. Chairman R. I. Tolles and other members of the committee see the need of action on the subject and so are moving toward the desired end.

It should be said, however, in justice to the street department that Street Commissioner Gavett has used much individual effort to see that the city was properly numbered. If this campaign succeeds then the street committee of the Council of 1901 will have accomplished two important acts of great benefit to the city, the establishment of proper street signs and the proper numbering of the houses.

There is to be an adjourned meeting of the Borough Council this evening. While the committee appointed to investigate the subject of municipal ownership cannot have completed any exhaustive research of the subject since it was appointed, it is quite probable that something about the subject will be heard from at the meeting. There seems to be almost a universal sentiment in the Borough Council in favor of immediate action to provide the borough with a water works of its own. That sentiment is likely to develop into something more definite before many days.

It was an act of very pleasing courtesy on the part of Smalley Brothers to furnish the Muhlenberg Hospital with the crushed stone needed to repair the roadway leading to that institution. Few people seem to realize the great variety of expenses which the conduct of such an institution necessitates. A hospital costs money to run and such acts as that of Smalley Brothers allow the governors to direct the cash receipts to the immediate work of the institution rather than toward maintains the property.

The building of a trolley line to connect Somerville with Clinton, High Bridge and Washington will open up that section of the State. Heretofore Hunterdon and Warren counties have had little to do with this part of Jersey except by those who were called there by special demands of business or in search of adventure. A trolley line will tend make the relations far more intimate than at present.

That harmony dinner of the Democrats, recently held in Newark, has brought forth some comment in Democratic as in Republican ranks. Bickerings of that nature will have to cease very soon if the Democrats are going to have any show of carrying the State at the election in the fall.

It is to be hoped that the Mountain Park Inn will be opened again this spring and continued through the summer with plenty of guests. The hotel site is a particularly delightful one and, when some regular means of conveyance is secured, it is sure to be very popular.

Bicycle dealers all over the country report that the trade is slack. They say that there is comparatively little demand for new wheels while their repair shops are rushed in order to handle the work which has come to them.

Tomorrow will see the opening of both of the local golf courses for regular play. Both clubs are in excellent condition and their courses will be all right for play. Golf promises to be very popular in Plainfield this summer.

The musical folk of Cranford are going to attempt light opera in the shape of the well-known "Mikado." Among the soloists and members of the chorus there are several Plainfielders.

What has become of that project to run a line of automobile stages through the residential portions of the city?

Dunellen, April 19—One of the small blue cars of the Middlesex and Somerset Traction Company collided with George Huff s truck in front of Adam Dealaman's store at 6:45 yesterday morning. The car was proceeding at a fair rate of speed and the subsequent impact was very heavy. A large hole was stove in the side of the car and four of the windows were shattered. The truck was uninjured. It is said the accident was due to the horses becoming frightened and backing toward the car which the motorman failed to stop.

As a result of the "sweet sixteen" social given in the Methodist church last evening, the treasury of the Ladies' Aid Society will be considerably enriched. It was given under their auspices and proved very successful. In addition to the entertainment, ice cream and cake were sold which netted a handsome profit.

NEW MARKET.

(Special Correspondence.)

New Market, April 19—The Beetham stage, which carries a large number of pupils and two teachers from Greenbrook to the New Market school, had a narrow escape from being struck by the eastbound express yesterday. The vehicle was upon the tracks when Watchman Smith lowered the gates, thus shutting them in. He was apprised of his error in time to raise them and allow the horse to go under, but holding the stage within a very short distance of the eastbound track as the express passed.

It is the undivided opinion of New Market residents that the Penrose robbery Wednesday night was the work of some one familiar with this locality. Investigation revealed only the tracks of one man, and it is evident he was aware of the inability of the family to hear him. The deliberate smashing of the window to gain entrance shows the audacity of the burglar.

Miss Hayes entertained a number of friends last evening at a pleasant party. Several hours were passed in an enjoyable manner with games of various kinds.

Mrs. C T. Rogers has returned from Paterson, where she has been attending the State Council of the Daughters of Libery.

Harry Pittenger has returned to his duties as principal at the school after two days' illness.

Mrs Shepperd is confined to her home by illness.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence.)

Scotch Plains, April 19.—During the past winter Charles Battell Loomis has been living in this place. He is the author of "Yankee Enchantments" and the series of humorous sketches entitled "Some Americans Abroad," now running in The Century. He has proffered his services for the benefit of the library and will give readings, recitations and impersonations from his own works at the schoolhouse on Park avenue, Wednesday, April 24; Major J. B. Pond, in speaking of him the other day, said: "I think that Mr. Loomis gives the best parlor entertainment that can be procured. He is clever! He is clever! He is clever." Personally, Mr. Loomis is intensely solemn in appearance, and as he never seems to be conscious of the laughter that he is causing the results are the funnier. His command of dialects is extraordinary, and whether he sticks to the printed page or casts the book to the winds and impersonates, he carries his audience with him.

The musicale and literary entertainment given in the Methodist church last evening under the auspices of the Epworth League, was very good but there was a poor attendance. The programme as published in yesterday's Press was rendered entire and was greatly enjoyed by those present. Miss Grace E. Overton, of Plainfield, who gave several recitations, was cordially received. Her work was, as usual, of a high order. The soprano solos by Miss Julia Hamm were given in a finished manner, as were also the piano duet by Mrs. Irving Quereau and Miss Florence Nicholl and the piano solo by Miss Nicholl. The contralto solo by Miss N. Earle Hollingsworth was given hearty applause. A feature was the violin solo by Mrs. Violet Truell Johnson. The programme closed with a piano solo by Miss Whitney, after which there was a social time and refreshments were served.

William Buckley continues to improve and the physician believes that in a short time he will be able to leave his bed. He rests comfortably every night and is rapidly gaining his strength.

Fred Rose and Horace Hand, of Plainfield, were visitors at the meeting of Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., held last evening.

William Lake will move shortly from his home on the commons to his house on Bartle avenue.

Miss Moorehouse, of Westfield, has returned home after a visit with Miss Hollingsworth.

Mrs. Charles Smith, of Westfield, is visiting friends in town for a short time.

Miss Lena Bruchman, of New York, is visiting her parents on Mountain avenue.

George Randolph has entirely recovered from a recent severe illness.

Miss Marion Goodman is visiting friends in Plainfield for a few days.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD

(Special Correspondence.)

South Plainfield, April 19.—At the meeting of the Patriotic Order, Sons of America, held last night, important changes were made to the bylaws. Camp 41, under the new laws, will pay benefits for fourteen weeks, $2 for the first week and $5 for every week of sickness thereafter. The dues are $6 a year. This order has the strongest lodge in the town, numbering about one hundred members. It leases and re-rents the hall and was the main cause of the building of a hall.

Another game of baseball has been scheduled between the Middlesex Juniors, of South Plainfield, and the New Market Juniors, to be played tomorrow.

Elsaß-Lothringen.

Metz. Da nach Anweisung des Kaisers das kunstvolle mächtige Bahnhofsthor, das erst vor zwei Jahren auf allerhöchsten Wunsch den Namen Prinz-Friedrich-Karl-Thor erhalten hatte, wegen der beschlossenen Stadterweiterung beseitigt werden soll, beschloß der Gemeinderath, an dieser Stelle ein Erinnerungszeichen für die bisherige, Jahrtausende alte Stadtgrenze aufzuführen, dessen Art und Gestaltung indessen erst nach Verhandlungen mit der Militärverwaltung festzustellen ist. Für den Zweck wurden 60,000 Mark als Bausumme bewilligt.

Saargemünd. Ehemalige Angehörige des bayerischen 5. Chevauxlegers-Regiments feiern am 8., 9. und 10. Juni eine festliche Zusammenkunft. Veranlassung hierzu ist einerseits das 125jährige Bestehen des Regiments, andererseits die 30. Wiederkehr des Tages, an welchem dasselbe im Jahre 1871 nach ruhmreicher Theilnahme am Feldzuge gegen Frankreich die dem Reiche soeben wiedergewonnene Stadt Saargemünd als Garnison bezogen hat. Die Festlichkeiten versprechen den besten Verlauf zu nehmen, und etwa 1000 ehemalige 5. Chevauxlegers aller Chargen und aus allen Gauen des deutschen Reiches haben ihr Erscheinen dem Festkomite bereits angezeigt.

Oesterreich.

Wien. Eine große Versammlung, in der alle Wiener Finanz-, Handels- und Industriekreise, ferner die Musikwelt zahlreich vertreten waren, beschloß die Gründung einer Volksoper in Wien und die Beschaffung der Mittel durch die Ausgabe von 7500 Antheilscheinen von je 200 Kronen.—Kürzlich hat Fräulein Hönigsberg als Erste unter den Hörerinnen, die seit Freigebung des medizinischen Studiums für Frauen an der Wiener medizinischen Fakultät inskribirt wurden, das erste Theoreticum mit gutem Erfolge abgelegt und damit das erste Rigorosum abgeschlossen.—Hier starb Prinz Philipp Liechtenstein im Alter von 64 Jahren kinderlos; damit ist der dritte Ast der regierenden Linie Liechtenstein ausgestorben.

Budapest. Der aus Budapest schuldenhalber nach New York entflohene Nikolaus Fiath von Csörmenyes, hat dem Oberhaus des ungarischen Reichstags, dessen Mitglied auf Lebenszeit er war, seine Resignation übersandt.

Budweis. Der in Insolvenz gerathene Kaufmann und städtische Branddirektor Wehle beging Selbstmord, indem er sich zuerst ein Messer in die Brust stieß und dann erhängte.

Innsbruck. Der Gemeinderath entsprach dem Gesuche der evangelischen Kirchengemeinde um Ueberlassung eines Bauplatzes zur Erbauung einer neuen evangelischen Kirche und eines Pfarrhauses am Stadtsaggen, gegen eine jährliche Rekognitionsgebühr von 50 Kronen.

Karlsbad. Jüngsthin verstarb der weltbekannte Kurarzt Dr. Wilhelm Schnitzer im besten Mannesalter an den Folgen einer hartnäckigen Influenza.

Krakau. Dem Soldaten Joseph Balzer vom 56. Infanterie-Regiment wurde kürzlich wegen Ermordung des Gendarmen Elias Kassianyk das Todesurtheil verkündet. Balzer war vom genannten Gendarmen wegen unbefugter Entfernung aus Krakau unterwegs arretirt worden. Er entriß ihm das Gewehr, streckte ihn mit drei Schüssen nieder und schleppte den Leichnam behufs Irreführung der Untersuchung auf die Eisenbahnschienen.

Marienbad. Großes Aufsehen hat hier die Verhaftung des Graveurs Alfred Arthur Au hervorgerufen. Au hatte Kreditpapiere gefälscht und ist ohne Zweifel Theilhaber und Mitarbeiter der in der hiesigen Gegend aufgehobenen Falschmünzerbande, der er durch Beistellung von entsprechenden Werkzeugen, sowie durch seine große Geschicklichkeit wirksamen Beistand leistete.

Suffering more or less after eating a meal, I consulted a doctor, and he told me I ate too much veal and pork. I am glad to recommend Ripans Tabules at all times.

ELABORATE GOWNS.

Ruffles Are Many, and There Is a Return to Second Empire Modes.

Just at the present moment fashion is showing some wonderful vagaries, and one feels more than exactly sees the points of departure. There are many small and some large signs which show the trend of the styles toward those in vogue during the first years of the reign of the Empress Eugenie in France. There are no hoops, to be sure, but the skirts are growing wider and not by small degrees. They are shirred around the hips, and the gathers are sewed to the bottom of the waist. The skirts are also much larger around and not so long in the center of the back. As to the material, it is anything one wishes and can afford. Some recent and elegant importations show skirts of all sorts of lace over silk, and nearly all of these have flounces of some kind, and we all know that flounces were the principal thing in the days of Eugenie. I noted in one large establishment a black dotted net overdress with four narrow flounces of black chiffon. It is astonishing to see how this material holds its popularity for dress trimming. The black net has at distances of half a yard stripes wrought in the pattern, and these run down to the flounces. Between these on each front side breadth are designs made of a handsome pattern of black chantilly. One row of the same heads the flounces. This skirt is made very ample, and the lace overdress is gathered at the waist line. The waist is of the lace bloused and has a black velvet belt and some small bows of the same at the shoulder and at the elbow, where the sleeve ends with a ruffle. The gown is lined with ivory white silk.

CREPE GOWN.

Another striking dress is made of deep red organdie. The skirt is very ample and is trimmed about half way down with a Dewey flounce, which in turn is ornamented with two ruffles, each three inches wide. Rows of narrow black lace are set along all the edges and down the rest of the skirt at intervals of three inches. The whole waist is shirred very closely in horizontal lines as far as the bust and perpendicularly on the yoke. This is finished with an old fashioned bertha of the organdie and edged with chiffon and lace. The sleeves end at the elbow in flowing shape, but there are undersleeves of black chiffon. The belt is made of a twist of rich black satin ribbon with a bow.

To show just what a hold the Eugenie flounces have taken I will tell of one more such gown and, behold, the price is $1,000! The foundation of this creation is of crisp white taffeta and it is made with a train quite half a yard long, although it is intended for an outdoor costume. Around the training portion there are four flounces, each scarcely an inch longer than the other. This is done to give the proper fluffy lightness to that part. All the rest of the flounces, and there are 13 of them, are three inches deep and overlap. At the left side these are so arranged that one is draped over the last and so on to the top, which makes a very novel effect. Each flounce has two rows of very fine black chantilly lace about half an inch wide gathered to the chiffon flounces. Did I say the flounces are all of chiffon? They are. The blouse waist is of finely plaited chiffon over the taffeta, and over this is a bolero of black lace and still above this is a trimming of white point. The sleeves come but to the elbow, and there are two deep ruffles of white plaited chiffon some six or eight inches deep, cut up on the top, to show the whole of the arm to the bend of the elbow. The high stock is of white, with a little black chenille to finish it. At the belt line there is a large and rich ornament of black chenille and black pearl beads and this hangs down to the knees. Another and smaller one was put upon the waist. This dress is so really elegant that it has seemed a duty to describe it in detail so that any lady may have one like it, or at least modeled after the original design. In any of the light white goods it would be quite as pretty, although not so costly. In the soft pineapple linen it would be extremely dainty. Any very soft stuff would be suitable. The woman who has flounces to the waist now is in the latest style for thin stuffs, and she who has a little postillion tail to the basque or blouse of her tailor suit is equally stylish.

MOIRE DINNER DRESS.

After many days the beautiful moire gowns for grand occasions and ceremonious functions have been revived. In the illustration is a representation of a supurb moire in a silvery blue so rich that it folds into forms to drive an artist mad with desire to paint it. This is overlaid with a splendid lace and silver applique. The waist is in the inevitable blouse shape, but cut pompadour shape in the neck, and this part is ornamented with straps of velvet ribbon to match the deepest shade in the moire. The sleeves are almost as old as the hills. The skirt, like all skirts intended for evening wear, is quite long and is deeply ornamented with the applique.

Topic For the Week Beginning April 21, "Walking With Jesus"—Text, Col. ii, 6, 7; Gal. v, 16-26.

"See then that ye walk circumspectly."

One of the best known educators in the country said recently that when a person passes along a street he should see all that is going on in that street and know what is in the shop windows.

This is going too far altogether. Since the heads of most people cannot endure so much confusion and could never unify and use the great mass of disconnected actions, things and ideas involved the best way is to see what is of value to yourself and pass the rest by. A glance will tell you if it will pay to give a look. You need not examine a hole as to its dimensions, depth and cause in order to avoid it.

To walk circumspectly one does not need to gaze around on everything within the circle of vision. There must be the quick, intelligent survey of the surroundings, the glance ahead and on each side for safety. Did you ever watch the way people walk the crowded streets of a city? It is worth your while to do it occasionally, so as to find out how you walk yourself. Thumb prints are no more characteristic of the individual than the manner of walking. A good detective will identify a man whom he has not seen for years at a distance, with the man's back turned to him, simply by his gait.

Every one has a certain gait in his Christian life, and much of success or failure in life depends upon it. Some saunter along with no special thought of the value or aim of life. Earnestness in religious things is too great a tax on energy or time to be seriously considered or too little refined. Some march as soldiers on sentry duty, with grim determination to do right, whatever it may cost, with no expectation or prospect of any pleasure in the exercise. Some push along with elbows out and aggressiveness in every motion. It matters little or nothing what discomfort others may suffer so long as they are able to drive ahead. There are some who walk with different mind and action to all these.

Such keep an eye open to avoid dangers from defective pathway or fellow travelers. This does not in any sense or great degree interfere with the joyous freedom and pleasure given by the passing life. Nor does it for a moment cause such care of self that it makes one indifferent to the comfort or danger of others. It allows the fullest scope for all the courtesies of the road and compliments of the season.

We are walking now with Jesus—at home, in our work, in all recreation as well as in religious gatherings. We are His companions. We must keep step with Him, for He has undertaken in our nature to keep step with us.

We should see, then, that we walk joyously.

A busy, bonny, kindly place
Is this rough world of ours
For those who love and work apace
And fill their hands with flowers.
To kind and just and grateful hearts
The present grace is given
To find a heaven in themselves
And find themselves in heaven.

We should be wise and avoid excesses and all indulgences of bodily appetites which are contrary to spiritual purity.

We should be patiently submissive to each other. Self will is destructive of all companionship, and if we are to walk with Jesus we must have the spirit of meekness in associating with our fellow men.

We must walk firmly and confidently, not haltingly or stumbling along. We can do this only as we have trust in God and conscience clear of evil intention. Confidence in Christ and hearty interest in the welfare of those around us give a firm tread to our Christian life. Feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace makes traveling easy, but painful as a pinching shoe is it to live in this world with doubts and fears and selfish contraction of soul.

This is a good world in which to learn to walk.

Walk well here, and we shall walk in white in the city of the redeemed with the Redeemer.

Appreciate the Living.

Let us not forget that if honor be for the dead gratitude can only be for the living. He who has once stood beside the grave, to look back upon the companionship which has been forever closed, feeling how impotent then is the wild love or keen sorrow to give one instant's pleasure to the pulseless heart or atone in the least measure to the departed spirit for the hour of unkindness, will scarcely for the future incur that debt to the heart which can only be discharged to the dust.—Ruskin.

The Violin Maker.

My hand is mine,
And, heresy or not, if my hand slacked
I should rob God, since He is fullest good,
Leaving a blank instead of violins.
I say not God Himself can make man's best
Without best men to help Him. I am one best
Here in Cremona, using sunlight well
To fashion finest maple till it serves
More cunningly than throats for harmony.
'Tis rare delight. I would not change my skill
To be the emperor, with bungling hands,
And lose my work, which comes as natural
As self at waking.

And as my stomach so my eye and hand
And inward sense, which works along with both,
Have hunger that can never feed on coin.
Who draws a line and satisfies his soul,
Making it crooked where it should be straight?
An idiot with an oyster shell may draw
His lines along the sand, all wavering,
Fixing no point or pathway to a point;
An idiot one remove may choose his line,
Straggle and be content, but, God be praised,
Antonio Stradivari has an eye
That winces at false work and loves the true,
With hand and arm that play upon the tool
As willingly as any singing bird
Sets him to sing his morning roundelay,
Because he lives to sing and likes the song.
—George Eliot.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning April 21—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—Walking with Jesus.—Col. ii, 6, 7; Gal. v, 16-26.

Walk, as a figure of life, is a Hebraism introduced into the English translation of the New Testament. Old Testament worthies such as Enoch and Noah are said to have "walked with God." Borrowing this expression, the translators of the New Testament place before our minds the figures of "walking in truth," "walking in the Spirit," "walking with Christ." It is an apt and suggestive figure. The Christian life is a walk with Christ. No better practical definition of the Christian life can be given than this.

The reception of Christ is the necessary preliminary to a walk with Christ. "As ye have therefore received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk ye in Him." The Colossians had received Christ. They had received Him as Lord. Therefore Paul reasons they should walk in Him. As the Colossians first received Christ before they could walk in Him, so must we. There can be no walking in Him without a previous reception of Him. Christ without is absolutely impossible until we have Christ within. The outward life is necessarily the expression of the inward life. Christ is received by faith. As a result of the reception of Christ, the heart, the inward principle of life, is changed. Then Christ, being within, is lived without.

Having received Christ, we should walk in Him. "As ye have received Him, walk in Him." To receive Christ and not to walk in Him would be both unreasonable and impossible. Why should we receive Christ if we do not intend to walk with Him? And how could we have Him in the heart and His presence not be manifested in the outward life? He has received Christ in vain who does not walk with Him. The Christian's life is necessarily a life of walking with Christ, a life of union with Him. Christ is no latent principle; He is not a theme to be idly contemplated nor a creed to be indifferently laid aside. Christ is a power, a divine power, that cannot be received without being manifested.

The walk with Christ should possess certain characteristics. 1. It should be enthusiastic. We receive Christ enthusiastically and should walk with Him in the same way. 2. It should be a stable and progressive walk. "Having been rooted and built up in Him." The figures are changed here to denote stability and growth. The tie that binds us to Christ in our walk with Him should not be a superficial one, but one that can stand the test of storm and of trial, and one that should increase in character and in results with time. 3. It should be a grateful walk, "Abounding therein with thanksgiving." We should be thankful to God that we have the joy and the privilege of walking with Christ. 4. It should be a fruit bearing walk. A life lived in union with Christ will produce the fruits of the Spirit and will be free from the works of the flesh. Gal. v, 16-26.

THE PRAYER MEETING.

Let the leader or prayer meeting committee arrange a Bible reading covering the subject, "Walking With Jesus."

BIBLE READINGS.

Ps. xxiii, 1-6; Isa. ii, 5; Mark ii, xiv; John i, 35-37; Rom. viii, 1; xiii, 12-14; Eph. iv, 1-3; Col. i, 9-17; I Thess. ii, 10-12; iv, 1.

The Golden Opportunity.

All beginnings, both of days and service, shine with Christ's presence and thrill with the incentive of His trust. Nineteen centuries since the coming of our Lord have had their times of trial, of discouragement, of fear. The twentieth opens with a light of hope and faith. Brighter and clearer grow the purposes of God through all the changes of our years. There is shadow yet, but not for him who turns his face toward dawn. There are mysteries of life and death, but there is Christ, the greatest of all mysteries, the dearest of all friends. There are sorrows, losses, sins, but there is joy in God and wealth of love and help for overcoming. Widening fellowship of service, enlarging opportunity of work with God, deepening experience of life under guidance of the Spirit, fill our hearts with cheer. The golden age is yet to come; the golden opportunity of work with God comes every day. There was never a better time to live, a clearer hope, a larger field of witness. Serenity of faith, activity of work, joy of expectation, looking for the perfect reign of love, crown the new century's life. God is with us in our toil and rest. This is the golden opportunity, and in using it we hasten on the golden age.—Isaac Ogden Rankin in Congregationalist.

At the Door of the Heart.

The Master, with the shadow of the cross falling on His soul, was comforted by a woman's insight and a woman's love. Her own heart taught her the secret of sacrifice; her heart anticipated the longing for sympathy, and so beautiful in its grace and spiritual delicacy was her act that Jesus declared it would be told to her praise wherever the gospels were read.

Forever this Friend of man, hungering for love and friendship, passes down the paths of life and knocks at the door of the heart. Blessed are they who hear His voice and give Him welcome, who are not ashamed of Him or of His cause, who serve Him with their best and pour upon His head the riches of their love.—John Watson.

Honest Reforms.

Society need not fear anything which is proposed with the intention to do good. Honest men may propose injurious things, but no harm will be done by any proposition to change the social order if it is honestly proposed and honestly dealt with.—Christian Register.

NEW YORK LEGISLATURE.

Republican Caucus Assures Passage of Excise Bill.

ALBANY, April 19.—The Republican members of the assembly caucused on the Stranahan excise bill amending the Raines law in the assembly parlor last evening. Seventy-eight members were present, and enough remained until after the vote was taken to insure the passage of the bill.

Messrs. Davis of New York city and Cooley of Westchester left the room before the final vote was taken, refusing to be bound by the caucus action.

Some 20 Republicans refused to attend the caucus, including the solid Erie county delegation. The absentees, it is understood, were not forced to attend the caucus and will be permitted to vote against the bill, as desired by their constituents.

Those who voted with the Democrats for the amendment, but who attended the caucus, included Messrs. Cadin and Traub of Onondaga, Cooley of Westchester, Davis and Bell of New York, Vacheron and Doughty of Queens and Cotton of Kings.

After the caucus a conference was held, at which the members were called upon for an expression of their views upon the mortgage tax bill.

Majority Leader Allds said afterward that the sentiment was about evenly divided for and against the bill, although a rumor gained ground that a majority of those present were outspoken in their opposition to the bill.

It is safe to predict that the bill will not be made a party measure. It was after 11 o'clock when the meeting finally adjourned.

STORM IN THE SOUTH.

Alabama and Part of Tennessee Suffer Great Damage.

LOUISVILLE, April 19.—The principal damage done by the wind and rain storm that swept over many of the southern states seems to have been the unroofing and damaging of factories, churches and residences, the temporary flooding of streets in cities and the interruption of telegraphic communication. A small Tennessee river steamer was sunk at Bridgeport, Ala., but no lives were lost. A severe gale at Carrollton, Ala., unroofed the jail, courthouse, several residences and a church. The drug store of H. B. Upchurch and a large mill were demolished. The only death reported is that of H. G. Elwood, who was engineer of a freight train wrecked by the storm near Jackson, Ala., on the Mobile and Birmingham railroad. A gale swept Gadsden and Guntersville, Ala., doing considerable damage. Three churches and 12 cottages were almost destroyed.

Although the wind reached a velocity of 65 miles an hour for one minute at Chattanooga, the worst damage was the unroofing of some factory buildings.

Montgomery, Ala., had a fierce wind and three inches of rain, but no damage was done.

New Orleans was partially flooded by a rainfall of 5.48 inches. Frost and ice formed all over the northern section of Texas, but cotton has not yet made its appearance in the belt covered by frost. Fruit, it is generally agreed, was not injured.

Exposition to Open Earlier.

BUFFALO, April 19.—A change in the programme of the opening ceremonies of the Pan-American exposition has been announced, due to the fact that it will be necessary for President McKinley to touch the button which will set the exposition machinery in motion half an hour earlier than heretofore announced. On May 1 at 12:30 p. m. (central time) the president will be in Jackson, Miss., and at that hour (1:30 p. m. Buffalo time) he will touch the electric button starting the machinery and will also send a message to the public through the exposition officials. It is announced that Lieutenant Governor Woodruff of New York will be present on the opening day and will deliver an address.

Port of New York Collections.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—A statement received at the treasury department shows that the customs collections on baggage which arrived at the port of New York during last month amounted to $74,237. During March last year these collections amounted to $7,238, showing an increase for the month of about $67,000. This increase is accounted for at the department by the new system initiated some weeks ago which, it is said, prevents collusion among employees.

Pottery Strikers Win.

SYRACUSE, April 19.—General Manager Pass of the Onondaga Pottery company has acceded to the demands of the 400 men and 100 girls who are on strike, restoring the men's wages to the schedule of five years ago, a raise of from 12½ to 20 per cent, and withdrawing the rules regarding cleaning work which were objected to by the girls.

SPORTING.

ON THE DIAMOND.

The Plainfield High School team and the Hope chapel nine will play a game of baseball tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock on Martine's Common.

The St. Mary's baseball team will cross bats with the Jersey City F. C. nine on the home grounds at Fourth street and Spooner avenue tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

In a game of baseball between the Third and Fourth classes of the Plainfield High School, played on Martine Common yesterday afternoon, the former team was victorious by a score of 14 to 6. A decided improvement in the playing of both teams was noticeable over that of previous games. The battery for the Third class was Fred VanAuken and Harvey Moynihan, and for the Fourth class, Harold Davis and Raymond Miller.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

The annual spring exhibition of the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium will take place Thursday evening, April 25. At that time a review of the work done during the past year will be shown by exhibition drills. The progress made by the wrestling class, a new innovation, will also be shown by some of the most expert members.

GOLF.

The season at the Park Golf Club will informally open tomorrow afternoon. There will be a ball sweepstakes handicap for members, the entry for which will be one golf ball of standard make. The course has been put in good condition and a large attendance is expected.

It is the intention of the Committee on Streets and Sewers to direct proceedings looking to the strict enforcement of the provisions of this ordinance.

The proper number of each building (if not already numbered) may be obtained by reference to the Assessor's books and maps at the office of the Collector, No. 109 Park Avenue. R. I. TOLLES,

GAVE A FLOWER SOCIABLE.

EPWORTH LEAGUE, OF FIRST M. E. CHURCH, GAVE UNIQUE SOCIAL.

Informal Programme of Music and Readings Given—Guessed Identity of Flowers From Rhymes.

A unique and enjoyable social was held in Vincent chapel last evening under the auspices of the social committee of the Epworth League. There was a large attendance of young people. The affair was styled a "flower social." Rhymes disclosing the names of flowers were written on the blackboard, and the guests found much pleasure in guessing the names.

The following, representing the tiger lily, was considered one of the best:

"My first roams wild through tropic lands
In fearful beauty, lithe and swift;
My second, in fair purity,
Its lovely face to heaven doth lift.
Unite them and you have my whole,
A gorgeous flower of such deep dye
It seems astray from torrid climes,
Burning against our western sky."

Additional pleasure was furnished through an informal programme of music and readings. Miss Etta Raybert and E. Maxwell Honeyman sang "O, That We Two Were Maying," and as an encore Mr. Honeyman sang "Sweetheart," Miss Susie Davies read a college story which evoked much laughter. The balance of the programme consisted of a pleasing soprano solo by Mrs. Clayton M. Nagle and a violin solo by Clarence Mills, accompanied on the piano solo by his brother, Herman Mills.

At the conclusion of the entertainment the social committee served snow-ball pudding, which carried out the original idea of a flower social.

FIRST CONVICTION IN PURE MILK CRUSADE.

Barzillia Moore, of Warren Township, Fined $50 and Costs For Selling Impure Milk.

BY JUSTICE MATTISON.

MOORE'S CUSTOMERS SUMMONED TO TESTIFY TO QUALITY OF MILK.

Conviction Was Secured on Testimony of State Chemist Wallace, Who Analyzed Sample of Moore's Milk.

The first arrest made in this vicinity by the State authorities for the violation of the pure milk law, resulted in the conviction of Barzillia Moore, of Warren township, in Justice Mattison's court yesterday afternoon.

It was but a short time ago that the Borough Board of Health, on information received, commenced a crusade against the adulteration of milk. Samples of the milk sold by local dealers were chemically examined and on the face of the analyses the State Board of Health was communicated with Speedy action was taken at once. State Dairy Commissioner Samuel S. VanDruff, of Deckertown, came to North Plainfield March 26 and immediately set about collecting evidence regarding the alleged adulteration of milk.

Accompanied by Inspector William N. Pangborn, of the local Board of Health, Commissioner VanDruff obtained from various milk dealers two jars full of the article they were selling. One of these jars of milk was returned to the local dealer from whom the milk was obtained and the corresponding jar forwarded to the headquarters of the State Board of Health at Trenton, which body promptly turned over to Snippen Wallace, its chemist, all the jars of milk received for the purpose of proper analysis.

Under the State law it is required that a given quantity of milk shall contain not more than eighty-eight per cent of fluids, leaving not less than twelve per cent of solids. The report made by chemist skippers, it is alleged, showed that the milk sold by Barzilla Moore, March 26, contained but ten per cent of solids. In consequence action was promptly brought against Mr. Moore.

At the hearing yesterday afternoon the State was represented by Senator Charles A. Reed, of Reed & Coddington. Frederick A. Pope, of Somerville, appeared for the defense. State Dairy Commissioner Samuel S. VanDruff and the local inspector, William N. Pangborn, related their part in the affair. The results of the analysis was laid before the court by Chemist Shippen Wallace.

In his own defense Mr. Moore claimed that all the milk he sold was purchased from farmers and that he had never adulterated it.

An attempt was made on the part of Mr. Moore's counsel to introduce as evidence opinions of various customers of his concerning the general quality of the milk he sells. After a number of witnesses had been called for this purpose, Judge Mattison in delivering his opinion, imposed a fine of $50 and costs on Mr. Moore. Mr. Pope has not decided whether he will appeal the case to the Court of Oyer and Terminer or not. His client was released on $100 bail.

OFFERS WATER WORKS FREE.

SURPRISING PROPOSITION MADE TO BOROUGH BY BOSTON SYNDICATE.

Willing to Build Water Supply Plant and Give It to North Plainfield at End of Fifty Years.

A Boston syndicate has made a surprising offer to the Borough Council, relative to the water supply question which is now agitating that body.

The corporation, in a communication received by Chairman Chas. L. Lee, of the municipal ownership committee of Council, proposes to erect a substantial and commodious reservoir and pumping station near the borough limits. It agrees to lay all pipes and to furnish water to the residents at a much reduced cost per annum. According to the terms of the offer the entire plant will be conveyed, in first-class condition, free of all cost, to the borough at the expiration of fifty years from the date of erection.

If at any time within the fifty year limit, the borough authorities should desire to purchase the plant the syndicate promises to sell it at an appraised valuation to be fixed upon by three competent disinterested persons.

At the next meeting of the Council manic body the municipal ownership committee will report this offer for consideration.

REPENTED RASH ACT WHEN 'TWAS TOO LATE

Mrs. Frank Haulenbeek Swallowed Insect Poison Containing Arsenic With Fatal Result

DIED EARLY THIS MORNING.

DID NOT WANT TO APPEAR AS PRISONER IN CITY COURT.

Was to be Arraigned This Morning on Complaint of Her Brother—Took Poison Thursday Night in Moment of Desperation.

After enduring terrible agony for twenty-four hours, Mrs. Frank Haulenbeek, of North avenue, died at 1 o'clock this morning. Death was caused by a liberal mixture of insect poison and laudanum, which she drank at midnight Thursday with suicidal intent. That it did not prove quickly fatal was due only to the woman's strong constitution and the united efforts of Drs. T. H. and Rolland Tomlinson, who worked unceasingly from the time they were called until the end came. They were not summoned, however, until seven hours after the poison had been taken, otherwise their exertions may have proved successful.

Mrs. Haulenbeek had been in a despondent mood for several days, brought on by a summons to appear in the city court this morning. Her brother, James Filmore, had entered a complaint against her, charging her with disorderly conduct and impending disgrace preyed upon her mind. Several times she avowed to members of her family that she would rather die than answer to the charge. The family regarded her threats of suicide as the ravings of a disordered mind and thought, as the time approached, she would become calm and appear in court.

Thursday she visited relatives at Rahway and did not return until 11.30. Before going to bed she sat in the kitchen and conversed with her husband about the charge. Suddenly she arose, and with the remark that she felt ill she took a bottle from a closet. She had taken considerable of its contents before her husband recognized the bottle as one containing insect poison, composed of a large percentage of arsenic. Springing forward he wrested it from her.

Unknown to him she had also taken a dose of laudanum. Not realizing the condition she was in, Haulenbeek sought to administer home antidotes and did not summon the doctors until 8 o'clock. By that time the poison had reached every part of her system and she was in terrible pain. The physicians set to work, however, and used every known method to make recovery possible, but the deadly drugs had too far advanced. She was conscious almost to the last and bitterly repented her rash act

In addition to her husband, who is very well known, she leaves five children, all of whom live at home Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Filmore, and several brothers and sisters reside at Netherwood.

Her brother, James Filmore, who made the complaint against her was in turn charged with the same offense by his father. The case was to have been tried before City Judge Runyon this morning but Filmore did not appear. It was accordingly laid over until a later day.

The funeral services will be held from her late residence, 847 North avenue, Monday afternoon at 2:30.

Announcement was made by Mayor N. B Smalley at the meeting of the Borough Council last evening that the Mayor of Deckertown, N. J., will attend the next regular session of the Borough Council to express his views on the question of municipal ownership, at the invitation of the chief executive of North Plainfield.

Deckertown controls its own water works system and it is claimed that the concern is operated very successfully. The town contains but 1,500 people and yet it has been able to bear a tax necessary to meet the interest on $60 000 in bonds which were necessary to be floated for the purpose of erecting suitable water works.

JUDGE AND CLERK DISAGREED.

TROUBLE IN SOMERSET COUNTY COURT YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

Judge Schenck Wanted to Hold Court in Grand Jury Room But County Clerk Somers Would Not Attend.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, April 20—There was a war of words yesterday morning between Judge Schenck and County Clerk Somers. The former desired to hold court in the Grand Jury room while Justice Garretson was holding court down stairs, saving the county over $100. The County Clerk refused to go upstairs with Judge Schenck while court was being held below. He also refused to send his deputy, as he said it was necessary for him to be in the office.

Judge Schenck went upstairs, but the Clerk did not accompany him. A constable was sent to the Clerk with a request for some license applications in his possession. The constable returned and said that the Clerk refused to let them go out of his possession. Judge Schenck then held a consultation with Hon. A. A. Clark. The latter left the room and had a talk with the Clerk, which resulted in the desired papers being sent to Judge Schenck.

One of the prisoners, David Gorman, who pleaded guilty to receiving stolen goods, said that the Clerk had promised to go his bail, so a constable was sent after Mr. Somers, but he sent word back that he could not leave court. Gorman was held until the Clerk would consent to appear and go on the bond. The Clerk says that he cannot be in two places at once, and that Judge Magie once called him down for attending court upstairs when he was holding court below.

The case of William C. Hendrickson against Leigh and Martin, occupied nearly all of yesterday. The defense was that the action should have been brought against the individuals separately, one of them owning one horse apiece, and the two owning one jointly. They also disputed a part of the account, which was for commission for selling one of their horses. The jury, after being out only a short time, rendered a verdict for the plaintiff for $361 37 and costs, cutting out the amount claimed for commission.

In the Orphans' Court the exceptions to the inventory and accounting in the estate of the late Frederick Davey, were overruled. Surrogate Parrot appeared for the executors and F. P. Davey appeared for the contestant.

Court then adjourned until Monday, when the cases of John Eick, receiver of the Citizens' Mutual Fire Insurance Company against G. A. VanDoren, J. H. Beekman and C. P. Davis, will be retried.

WANT STORM SEWER FOR SOMERSET STREET.

Mayor Smalley Advocated Putting Electric and Telephone Wires Underground.

TELEPHONE WIRES WILL GO.

COMMITTEE APPOINTED TO DRAW UP ORDINANCE FOR STORM SEWER.

Comparatively Little Business Was Done at the Adjourned Meeting of the Borough Council Last Evening—Passed a Number of Bills.

An adjourned meeting of the Borough Council was held last evening in the Council chamber. Every member of the body was in attendance. Great interest was shown in the discussion concerning the widening of Somerset street. With the exception of passing favorably upon the sundry bills presented for expenses incurred since the last meeting, the only business of importance transacted was the appointment of a committee to frame a suitable ordinance providing for the introduction of a storm sewer on Somerset street.

Mayor Smalley presided. During the course of the evening he spoke informally on the subject of the work being done on the thoroughfare now being improved. The telephone company, he said, had signified its willingness to remove the wires along the street and place them in underground conduits as soon as the curb along the east side of the road is laid. The electric light company had attempted to remove its poles back to a position conforming with the line of the new sidewalks but this he had ordered to be stopped. The Mayor declared that this company should be made to follow the plan of the telephone company in placing its wires underground.

His principal suggestion related to the advisability of placing a storm sewer along the road now being improved from Jackson avenue to Green brook. This he believed would result in a great saving in the end to the taxpayers. At present after every storm the road needs repairing and large quantities of macadam stone are washed away. Besides, the street is uninviting to pedestrians during a storm. He cited Park avenue as an instance of the great improvement gained by introducing this system of drainage. The Mayor's idea is that an eighteen-inch pipe should be laid from Jackson avenue to Race street and a twenty-inch pipe from Race to Chatham streets. Connecting the brook with Chatham street, he suggested a thirty-inch pipe.

The probable cost he estimated at $2,000, and of this amount he believed at least one-third would be borne by the trolley company inasmuch as the improvement would be a great saving to it. Blocking the gutters simply would require an outlay of $500 and this he argued would go a good way towards meeting the expenses incurred in introducing a storm sewer system.

Acting on the propositions suggested by His Honor, Councilman Clark offered a resolution authorizing Mayor N. B. Smalley, Borough Counsel Charles A. Reed and Borough Engineer H. C. VanEmburgh, to frame a suitable ordinance to be introduced at the next meeting for a storm sewer from Jackson avenue to the brook, and authorizing the borough engineer named to ascertain if possible the probable cost of the sewer proposed. This resolution was unanimously passed.

Councilman Lee reported on behalf of the committee on municipal ownership that, although the committee had practically just begun its work, great progress had already been made and a report could be expected at the next meeting.

Before adjournment Councilman Nicholls reported that the bills presented had been audited and were found to be correct. On motion the claims were ordered paid. Approximately estimated these bills amounted to $212. Of this sum, nearly $180 was for work done on the streets, $72 of which came under the head of Somerset street improvement. The remaining $32 represents bills incurred to the fire and other borough departments.

Thomas Callahan Recovering.

Thomas Callahan, of Richmond street, whose right leg was amputated a few days ago, is regaining his strength rapidly. It is expected he will be permitted to see friends in a few days. Drs. Boone, of this city, and Donahue, of New Brunswick, are in attendance and they expect a speedy recovery.

THEATRICAL SEASON IS DRAWING TO AN END.

Attractions Booked For the Remaining Weeks Before Music Hall Closes.

LAST PERFORMANCE MAY 2.

SEVERAL GOOD COMPANIES BOOKED FOR COMING WEEK.

The Younger Jefferson Will Play Here in "Rip VanWinkle" Thursday Night—Vogel & Deming's Minstrels Tuesday.

Dramatic chronicilings of the local playhouse will soon be a thing of the past, for the days of Music Hall are numbered, and in two weeks' time this city will be without a theatre. It may not be perceptibly felt at this present time, but it will be missed when the fall comes. However, the fiat has gone forth: exit Thespis—enter sordid trade and commerce—farewell to Manager Maze Edwards, etc.

The attendance at the two performances of the past week was not overwhelming, but apparently gave satisfaction to all who attended. Tonight Harry Webber, a very praiseworthy comedian, supported by a very efficient company, will appear in a play entitled "Nip and Tuck," which has been highly successful in all cities where it has been seen.

"Nip and Tuck," translated from the French of D'Ennery, author of "The Two Orphans," displays the skill of a master-hand. A deeply woven plot interspersed with genuine comedy scenes, and told in a brisk breezy fashion, makes a very enjoyable entertainment. What "Nip" does not think of in the way of comic villiany, "Tuck" evolves from his crafty fruitful nature, and the ball of fun is kept on the constant roll. There is no lack of pathos and dramatic incident either, and the result is a happy combination of comedy and melodrama of a high order.

As a rule, scenery in carload lots is found only with spectacular or melodramatic productions, and it is quite out of the ordinary to find a minstrel show with more than a first part setting. Such, however, is not the case with John W. Vogel and Arthur Deming's big minstrels which will be seen Tuesday next for, from a scenic stand point, the performance is as worthy the title of spectacle as any of the Hanlon, Gilmore or Yale productions. Instead of the usual array of plush draperies, etc. employed as first part settings, this organization boasts of the costliest, richest and most effective first acts ever carried by a traveling company. The scene has been appropriately named the "grotto of diamonds," and when calcium effects and electrical appliances are brought into play the effect is dazzling beyond description.

There are more than fifty people with the Vogel Deming minstrels, comprising many far-famed creators of novelties, a galaxy of renowned vocalists and a coterie of comedians, including the 'Emperor,' Arthur Deming. Manager Vogel's record for maintaining a high progressive and reputable standard of entertainment is too well known to require comment here, suffice it to say that the public's confidence will not be abused and that the performance will be all that can be desired. A gaily comparisoned street parade is announced for 11:30 o'clock on that morning

Thomas Jefferson, who has taken up "Rip VanWinkle," which will be seen Thursday night is said to resemble his father, Joseph Jefferson, physicially and mentally and in various ways. It would be strange indeed if he did not inherit some of his talent for acting which has been in the family for six generations before him. Those who have seen him act say there is no doubt of his aptitude for a career on on the stage, and his success in his present venture has been so marked that it is something likely to be perpetuated and to become a standard performance. Thomas, who assumes the role of 'Rip," says: 'I guess people think I am nervy." But his audience really do not tink so, but rather wonder that he has refrained from showing what he could do. It is very gratifying to Thomas the way his efforts are being received. It is said that he does not imitate his father and what he does is just as natural to him as it is natural to his father. It will thus be seen that the performance of "Rip VanWinkle" given by Thomas Jefferson has distinct merit apart from the unique interest in it being an affair of a family which occupies a high place in the affection of theatregoers.

The ever popular drama of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," will be seen Tuesday, April 30, at two performances, for the benefit of "Mique" Muldowney, tendered by Manager Maze Edwards for faithful services These should be crowded houses, for "Mique" is deserving of all kinds of good for his universal good qualities. In addition to the play, other features will be introduced and everybody attending, will "get their money's worth."

The last offering of Manager Edwards, the great Whitney production of "Quo Vadis," will be seen Thursday May 2 and this will probably be the last dramatic performance in this city for some time.

Bed Bugs and Cock Roaches.

For destruction and complete riddance of Cock Roaches, Beetles, Wood and Water Bugs, Bed Bugs, Ants, Rats, Mice, etc., "Rough on Rats," though poisonous, if used with care is most effective. In fact it is the only thing that will permanently annihilate Bed Bugs and Cock Roaches. As an exterminator of Rats and Mice, "Rough on Rats" is the old reliable that never fails nor disappoints. They "don't die in the house." Is sold all around the world. Is used by all civilized nations of the earth. Is the most extensively advertised, the best know and has the largest sale of any article of its kind on the face of the globe. It gives satisfaction every time. Beware of imitations. I employ no peddlers. Have a suspicion of any dealer offering substitutes said to be as good. 15c. and 25c.

MANIFESTO ISSUED.

Aguinaldo's Address to the Filipino People.

PEACE DESIRABLE AND ESSENTIAL.

Leader Advises His People to Submit and Believes That Under American Rule They Will Attain the Freedom Sought.

MANILA, April 20.—The following is Aguinaldo's address to the Filipino people, made public last evening:

"I believe I am not in error in presuming that the unhappy fate to which my adverse fortune has led me is not a surprise to those who have been familiar with the progress of the war. The lessons taught with a full meaning and which have recently come to my knowledge suggest with irresistible force that a complete termination of hostilities and lasting peace are not only desirable, but absolutely essential to the welfare of the Philippine Islands.

"The Filipinos have never been dismayed at their weakness, nor have they faltered in following the path pointed out by their fortitude and courage. The time has come, however, in which they find their advance along this path to be impeded by an irresistible force which, while it restrains them, yet enlightens their minds and opens to them another course, presenting them the cause of peace. This cause has been joyfully embraced by the majority of my fellow countrymen, who have already united around the glorious sovereign banner of the United States. In this banner they repose their trust and believe that under its protection the Filipino people will attain all those promised liberties which they are now beginning to enjoy. The country has declared unmistakably in favor of peace. So be it. There has been enough blood, enough tears and enough desolation. This wish cannot be ignored by the men still in arms if they are animated by a desire to serve our noble people, which has thus clearly manifested its will. So do I respect this will now that it is known to me.

"After mature deliberation I resolutely proclaim to the world that I cannot refuse to heed the voice of a people longing for peace nor the lamentations of thousands of families yearning to see their dear ones enjoying the liberty and the promised generosity of the great American nation.

"By acknowledging and accepting the sovereignty of the United States throughout the Philippine archipelago, as I now do and without any reservation whatsoever, I believe that I am serving thee, my beloved country. May happiness be thine."

To signalize this important step in the pacification of the country General MacArthur orders the release, on swearing allegiance to the United States, of 1,000 insurgent prisoners.

CHAFFEE TO COMMAND.

Change to Occur June 30—No Change Made In Philippine Army Plans.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Adjutant General Corbin authorizes the statement that no material changes will be made in the army in the Philippines until after the war department has heard from General Chaffee on the subject. In accordance with orders previously issued General Chaffee will relieve General MacArthur of the command of the military forces in the Philippines on June 30, and the present expectation is that a general civil government will be established in the archipelago about that time.

General Corbin says that recent developments in the Philippines have caused no change in the general plans of the department for the dispatch of regular troops from the United States to replace the volunteers ordered home for discharge before July 1 next. General Corbin gives an emphatic denial to the published reports that General MacArthur has been instructed to reduce the army immediately to 40,000 men.

THE PRESIDENT'S TRAIN.

The Ten Thousand Mile Trip Will Be Comfortably Made.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—The composition of the special train upon which the president and his party will make the 10,000 mile trip to the Pacific coast and return has been determined. It will consist of an engine and seven cars. The combination baggage and smoking car Atlantic, the dining car St. James, two compartment cars, each with seven staterooms and two drawing rooms; the Omena and the Diana, two 12 section drawing room sleepers; the Pelion and Charmion and the private car Olympia, which will be occupied by President and Mrs. McKinley.

The Olympia will be used only on the trip out. The return will be made in the private car Campania. It will be one of the finest trains ever put upon a railroad track. The Olympia, in which the president will go west, has been used by him on several other occasions. It is 70 feet long, has five private rooms and one sofa section. Two of the rooms contain brass beds, large mirrors, wardrobes and every convenience. The dining and observation room is located at the rear of the car. It is 16 feet long and has an extension table and contains two cabinets. It is finished in vermilion, the private rooms in maple, mahogany and koko, and the kitchen in English oak. The car is lighted with gas and equipped with steam heat. The Campania is almost a counterpart of the Olympia, except that it contains a parlor in which are a sideboard, an organ and a writing desk.

The compartment cars, in which the members of the cabinet and their wives and other guests will travel, are finished in vermilion, elaborately carved, and the rooms are painted in ivory and gold. The ceilings are beautifully decorated, and the upholstery and draperies are in harmony with the general color scheme. The combined baggage and smoking car is fitted up with a barber shop, bathroom, writing cabinets and a library.

TRADE CONDITIONS.

Favorable Crop Reports and Record Breaking Railroad Earnings.

NEW YORK, April 20.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Favorable crop reports, heavy bank clearings, record breaking railroad earnings, a large distribution of spring and summer goods and easy collections give the business situation an encouraging aspect. Wall street speculation does not yet discount any approaching reaction in commercial lines, and the money market seems to have turned the corner, at least for the present. Cotton and woolen goods retain their gain of last week, though partly on account of the idleness of many mills. The wool market is steady notwithstanding the absence of demand from large producers of goods.

Aside from the uneasiness caused by labor controversies, no setback has appeared in the leading industry. Conditions of supply and demand are similar to those existing for the past few months. In some lines purchasers are increasingly importunate, while in others there is slightly less urgency for prompt shipment, but in all branches of iron and steel manufacture requirements are much in excess of available stocks.

The outlook for this year's crop of cotton has been ascertained by a careful canvass of the southern states. Correspondents report that planting averages about two weeks later than usual owing to heavy rains. While there is reason to anticipate a large acreage cancellation of many orders for fertilizers shows that the sharp decline in cotton prices had the beneficial result of restricting operations to some extent.

Failures for the week numbered 206 in the United States against 184 last year and 21 in Canada against 17 last year.

British Lancers Ambushed.

LONDON, April 20.—Lord Kitchener in a dispatch from Pretoria says, "I regret to report that a party of the Ninth lancers have been ambushed and Lieutenant A. SPRING-1901

FOR A BABY OF THIS SIZE

Or a baby of any size, when suffering from simple fevers, coated tongue, constipation, or any trouble arising from the stomach, the purest, safest and best remedy is LAXAKOLA, the great tonic laxative.

Mothers, watch your children carefully. Their health, perhaps their lives, depend on keeping their bowels regular. Many parents make a fatal mistake by giving their little children the old-fashioned, violent purgatives which are racking and griping, and are therefore not only unpleasant, but dangerous. Make no mistake, give them

LAXAKOLA

It does not gripe nor irritate. It is a pure, gentle, speedy and painless liquid laxative. It is not only a sure laxative, but it contains valuable tonic properties which act upon the bowels, tone up the entire system and purify the blood.

A few drops can be given with safety to very young babies, and it will often relieve colic by expelling the wind and gas that cause it. It will aid digestion, relieve restlessness, assist nature and induce sleep.

For constipation, simple fevers, coated tongue, or any infantile troubles arising from a disordered condition of the stomach it is invaluable. Great relief is experienced when administered to young children suffering from diarrhœa, accompanied with white or green evacuations, as LAXAKOLA neutralizes the acidity of the bowels and carries out the cause of the fermentation.

LAXAKOLA FOR THE COMPLEXION

Blotched, sallow, unwholesome and muddy skin, with its consequent mortification, often leading to morbid seclusion and aversion to society and friends, shows that your blood is bad. The only way to clear the complexion and restore it to its normal, healthy, velvety condition is to clean out the entire system, purify the blood and remove the causes, and Laxakola does it, as well as acting directly on the pores and exciting the perspiratory glands in throwing off impurities. It purifies the blood as no other medicine can, and your skin will not only be well but you will be well. At druggists, 25c. and 50c. Send for free sample to LAXAKOLA CO., 132 Nassau Street, New York, or 356 Dearborn Street, Chicago.

NEW OKLAHOMA LANDS.

Announcement Regarding the Proposed Opening For Settlement.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—The prospect for the opening of new lands in Oklahoma Territory to settlement under the act of March last providing for the disposition of lands ceded by the Wichita, Kiowa, Comanche and Apache Indians has led to a project of increasing the correspondence of the commissioner of the general land office until it has come to be on a business dimensions. Most of the letters contain information upon this subject. In January 2,327 letters were received; in February, 4,239; in March, 5,074, and thus far during the present month this mail has numbered 3,744. In view of the fact that the lands to be offered for settlement include only about 12,000 quarter sections, or an equal number of homes, it is foreseen that there will be a tremendous rivalry.

Many persons in the vicinity of the new lands and elsewhere are represented to be holding out inducements to would be settlers to consult them as to ways and means of securing lands, professing to have exclusive information. Commissioner Hermann of the general land office yesterday issued a warning to the public against all such representations. "No one can have information on this question that is not open to all alike," he said. He also repeated the department's warning against intruders, saying that those who abide by the law will be protected in their rights, while those who violate it will be punished.

The lands will be thrown open in accordance with the terms of the president's proclamation, and under the law that proclamation cannot be issued until after the 6th of next August.

APPORTIONMENT PASSED.

Senator McCarren Objects — Senate Passes Woman Suffrage Bill.

ALBANY, April 20.—The congressional appointment bill of Senator Raines was called up last night in the senate and amended and then, under an emergency message of the governor, was put on its final passage and passed by a strict party vote. Senator McCarren was the only speaker. He said that he desired to call attention to the bill, for it was an outrageous gerrymander so far as Brooklyn was concerned, as it certainly made the districts in that borough as partisan as possible, with the advantage in Republican hands.

Mr. Kelsey's bill to allow women owning property to vote on propositions for the expenditure of money in towns and villages caused a debate in the senate yesterday. Senator Malby said that it gave two persons in a family the right to vote on a tax proposition, and it was vicious legislation. The bill was passed by a vote of 27 yeas to 14 nays.

Rebel Chief Slain by Followers.

MERIDA, Yucatan, April 20.—General Felipe Yama, the chief leader of the Merida rebel Indians, has been assassinated by some of his underofficers who were exasperated at his advice to surrender and end the war. Three minor chiefs, it is said, attacked him with machetes, nearly cutting him to pieces. Then the Indians placed the corpse before them and indulged in a long orgy. This action, it is believed, shows a determination of the chiefs to keep up the Indian fighting, though deserters say food has given out.

Heavy Rain In Tennessee.

KNOXVILLE, April 20.—A torrential storm raged throughout east Tennessee yesterday, making two days of continuous rain, and as a result the streams are out of bounds and threatening great damage. The tracks of the Southern railway and the Queen and Crescent road are under water at various points, and the continued rain is raising the streams to a height never seen before, and serious delay to traffic is feared.

War on Fraudulent Insurance.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 20.—Ohio, Indiana and Illinois through their attorney generals have formed a friendly alliance to eradicate fraudulent insurance companies. Attorney General Sheets of Ohio called on Attorney General Taylor of Indiana at the statehouse yesterday, and the two talked over plans to rid the states in question of such companies.

Officers' Traveling Expenses.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—A general order just issued at the war department provides that actual expenses only shall be paid officers for sea travel to and from our island possessions. A reasonable fee for cabin and stateroom stewards is allowed officers traveling on commercial steamers, but is not authorized on government transports.

Shock May Kill Her.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., April 20.—It is feared that Mrs. Harry Grubgbilt of Ellenville will die as a result of shock caused by the sudden death of her mother recently. While the body of the father was being disposed of in the grave the aged woman expired after expressing a wish that she could be placed in the same grave as her husband.

Bogus Goldpieces.

DETROIT, April 20.—A News special from Niles, Mich., says: "This section of the state is being flooded with bogus $5 goldpieces. The coins, which are excellent counterfeits, are turning up so often that business men fear to accept any gold. Officers are working on the matter, but with no result as yet.

SHAMROCK IS READY

Sir Thomas Thinks His Yacht a Marvel.

NOTABLES TO ATTEND LAUNCHING.

Lord Provost of Glasgow Believes That the Boat Floated Today Will Be Able to Capture the Coveted Cup.

GLASGOW, April 20.—All is now ready for the launching of Shamrock II today. Sir Thomas Lipton, when asked what he thought of his new boat, replied:

"I can only tell you what Mr. John Henderson, who built the Meteor, Thistle and Valkyrie, remarked after close inspection, 'She is the finest yacht ever built on this side of the Atlantic.'

"I can see nothing in the way of resistance. She is a marvel. This opinion is shared by other experts who have seen Shamrock II."

Many notable people will attend the launching ceremonies. Among those expected to be present is Mr. Fife. No American who looks on will watch with more critical eye the new craft than the designer of Shamrock I, and almost within a week, for Sir Thomas Lipton hopes that the yacht may sail for the Solent Thursday, the keen contest of designers will begin between Mr. Fife and Mr. Watson.

Generally the yacht is fairily lined and sweetly turned and looks quite fit to sail for cup honors.

The lord provost of Glasgow, who will make the principal speech at the launching ceremony, said yesterday:

"We are very proud of Sir Thomas Lipton. He was a Glasgow boy despite his persistence in giving his boats Irish names. Somehow or other we think this year that he is going to bring back that coveted cup. It will be a proud day for the Clyde when that happens, for we have never sympathized with or believed in the individual complaints made in some quarters regarding alleged American unfairness.

"We have been sorely vexed that the cup has never been brought over, but no one knows better than the people of Glasgow that it was because American skill and seamanship have been superior to ours, but before my term of office expires I hope that bit of silver will be in our city."

Record Day In Stocks.

NEW YORK, April 20.—The aggregate sales of securities on the Stock Exchange yesterday reached 2,193,200 shares, which is the largest single day's business on record. On Jan. 7 of this year the day's record reached 2,127,500 shares and on several days since have amounted to from 1,800,000 to over 1,000,000 shares. Up to a recent period some record was kept of sales of what are called "odd lots," but since the great activity in the trading no attempt is made to keep count of any but 100 share lots or upward. There is no actual registration of transactions on the Stock Exchange, and the estimate of the dealings is necessarily approximate.

Damming the Missouri.

HELENA, Mon., April 20.—The Missouri River Power company, which owns a dam and power plant at Canyon Ferry and which is now constructing a pole line to Butte, will build another dam across the Missouri river at Stubbs Ferry, five miles below the present plant. The new dam and plant will cost $1,000,000 and will develop 10,000 horsepower, which, with part of the power now generated at Canyon Ferry, will be sent to Butte. The company has contracts for power from companies operating in Butte.

Floods Threaten West Virginia.

WHEELING, April 20.—Reports from all sections in interior West Virginia are alarming and indicate floods within the ensuing 24 hours. Rains have been unremitting for 36 hours in the northern Ohio valley and in the Monongahela, Tygarts valley, Cheat, Little Kanawha, Big Kanawha, Guyandotte and other tributaries of the Ohio. The rain continues, and Weather Forecaster E. C. Vose says it is too early yet to make a prediction of the high water. Preparations are being made for the worst.

NEW YORK, April 20.—"Honest Tom" Sampson, detective, army veteran and life saver, is dead at Mount Vernon, N. Y. Captain Sampson had 16 medals for meritorious service, a number of them for saving life, one being awarded to him by congress. He aided in the arrest of Mrs. Surratt, Miss Fitzpatrick, Edward Payne and Dr. Samuel Cox, who were charged with being implicated in the plot to assassinate President Lincoln.

Warlike Rumors Unfounded.

SANTIAGO, Cuba, April 20.—The rumors current here of difficulties between Chile and the Argentine Republic are without foundation. Nothing has occurred between the governments of the two countries to cause anxiety.

Investigating.

Following the instructions of the Common Council at the last meeting of that body, the Councilmanic committee on streets and sewers is preparing to tell the Council something of what can be done in this city to secure municipal control of the water supply plant. The committee was not empowered to go to any expense in the course of its investigations, so it cannot secure any expert advice on the subject. That will come later. The committee can, however, get some idea of how the land lays and to what extent and with how much success the principle of municipal ownership is being used by other cities of the size of Plainfield.

There can be no doubt that those citizens of Plainfield who have given the subject any thought are generally in favor of municipal ownership. Municipal ownership as a principle and when directly applied to given conditions is often considerably different. If the members of the Council believe that the people of Plainfield will be benefitted by the city control of the water works, there is every reason to believe that they will do what they can in that direction. They first want to known what the status of the local situation is and then they will be able to judge what it is likely to be affected by the proposed change.

It is expected that the street committee will have something to report on the subject at the May meeting of the Council so that meeting will be watched with unusual interest, particularly by those who are anxious to see the city assume control of the water supply plant.

If the members of the local Grand Army post decide to give up the customary Memorial Day parade, they will do away with a custom which has been in vogue ever since that day was instituted in this country. It must be remembered, however, that the men who fought in the Civil War are getting older each year and that many of them do not possess the physical endurance that they did a decade ago. On the occasion of the parade at the last National encampment of the Grand Army, several veterans fell dead in the ranks or else were taken ill there and died soon after. The thought of marching again under the flag they love is very dear to the hearts of the old soldiers and so it is quite probable that while the parade may be given up here, many of the G. A. R. posts through the country will retain that part of the Memorial Day exercises.

The Borough of North Plainfield has one of the best Boards of Health in the State. Such was the statement made yesterday by State Dairy Commissioner S. S. VanDruff, who was here as one of the witnesses in the adulterated milk case in Justice Mattison's court. Mr. VanDruff has been working with the boards of all the cities, townships and boroughs of the State so he surely has plenty of opportunity to judge.

It is to be hoped that the formal notice, issued by the Councilmanic committee on streets and sewers regarding the numbering of houses, will have the desired effect. It was certainly the proper course for the committee and the people of Plainfield will appreciate the effort particularly if it results in every house or store in the city being properly and conspicuously numbered.

New Brunswick and Perth Amboy are in the midst of a controversy over the project of building a bridge to connect Perth Amboy and South Amboy. New Brunswick is opposed to any plan whereby Middlesex county will have to pay for the improvement. All sorts of things, pleasant and otherwise, are being said about it by both sides.

The Young Men's Christian Association of this city has been unusually fortunate this season in securing speakers of National reputation for their meetings. Walter A. Wyckoff, who addresses the men's meeting tomorrow afternoon, is a man whose name is too well known here to need any introduction to the people of this city.

Beginning Monday, The Daily Press will begin the publication of a serial story which will continue in these columns for several weeks. The story is entitled "A Tragic Disappearance," and is one of the best by that well known author, Will N. Harben. These daily installments of continued stories will now be a regular feature of The Daily Press and we believe that our patrons will appreciate them.

Besides being taught the rudiments of military tactics, the members of the local police force are being drilled in the use of revolvers. It is not often that a Plainfield policeman is called upon to use a revolver but when he does, it will be of great advantage if he knows how to shoot.

WARREN CHAPEL HAS GROWN DURING YEAR.

McKelvey gave notice that the fifth anniversary of the King's Foreign Missionary Circle will be observed Thursday evening, April 25. He also announced that a special meeting of the Endeavor Society would be held after the meeting to take action on the death of Fred G. Bach, a member of the society, who died yesterday. The society will attend the funeral services to be held in the chapel tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 o'clock.

PERSIAN RUGS.

The Rev. Mr Moorhatch, of Urma, Persia, will be at our Carpet Store all this week with a line of choice Persian Rugs, including some valuable antiques. The Rev. Mr. Moorhatch is a native of Persia. He is a regularly ordained Presbyterian minister located at Urma, Persia, was educated in this country and is now enjoying a year's forlough lecturing in this country. These rugs were sent to him from a friend in Persia to dispose of, and, not being in the rug business, he is naturally embarrassed by their possession and is anxious to dispose of them quickly. They are exceedingly desirable rugs and can be bought at very low prices, in some cases less than half value. He comes to us from Elizabeth and Philadelphia where he disposed of many of them. We assure our friends this is an opportunity to secure valuable Persian Rugs at very low prices. Mr. Moorhatch is a most cultivated and interesting gentleman whom you will be pleased to meet. He will wear the native Persian costume during this sale.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence.)

Dunellen, April 20—The stone car used on the Middlesex and Somerset Traction Company's line is one of the most unique devices placed on the road. It is used for carrying stone ballast from the terminus to points near New Brunswick, where is spread on the tracks. It will carry ten tons at a load and is a great saving to the company in hauling. The horses in this vicinity have not as yet become accustomed to it and during every trip yesterday, its approach was the signal for considerable equine prancing.

The contract case of Runyon against Pierce, which was non-suited in Justice Moffett's court at Plainfield yesterday, was to have been tried in Justice Warden's court, but for certain reasons was transferred. The suit was entered by H. C. Runyon in behalf of A. F. Warden.

Most of the material used by Gleason, Kiely & Co., in the alterations at the Plainfield disposal beds, is shipped to Dunellen by rail, thence by wagon to the beds. At present four of Hand & Son's trucks are engaged in the work of hauling.

The "Spinsters of Oklahoma" will visit the Presbyterian church Thursday evening and relate their experiences. As they have been many and varied the account will be interesting. The citizens of the borough are invited to be present and hear them.

Mrs. Emma Baldwin, who was taken seriously ill Thursday, is slowly improving. She has rested very comfortably the past twenty-four hours and Dr. Gaston entertains hopes of a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Shotwell have returned from their wedding trip and for the present are residing with the latter's mother, Mrs. Palmer, of Greenbrook.

The dry goods merchants of Newark will conduct another of their popular free excursions Wednesday, April 24. The train will leave Dunellen at 8:48.

Miss Clara Beidleman has gone to Trenton for a few days' visit with her parents.

Mrs. Frank Wynkoop spent Thursday with friends in Jersey City.

NEW MARKET.

(Special Correspondence.)

New Market, April 20.—The Piscataway Professional Circle of Teachers held its regular meeting today at the New Market schoolhouse. After the usual work of the circle, an enjoyable and instructive lecture was given by Miss Fulper, of Dunellen. Her subject was "First and Second Year Work."

Miss Lizzie Nelson has been secured to train the children and young people of the Seventh Day Baptist church in music with special reference to strengthening the choir. She will meet them for instruction and practice twice each week.

John Downy has gone to New York where he has taken a position with the Knickerbocker Ice Company.

I. F. Randolph, of Ohio, has purchased the Manning Randolph farm.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence.)

Scotch Plains, April 20—The residents in this vicinity are quietly making efforts to improve all sanitary conditions in view of the recent outbreak of contagious disease. While there are no alarming violations of rules of health, it is thought best to take no risk. The residents have implicit confidence in the Board of Health and believe that those officials will take every necessary action to keep the place healthy and above reproach. There is, however, room for improvement in some directions and these matters will be attended to promptly.

Rev. G. M. Shott will occupy his pulpit in the Baptist church tomorrow morning. In the evening Miss Rachel Mair, a returned missionary from Africa, will tell of her work. There will be no services in the other churches in the evening.

The regular prayer service of the Methodist church, led by the new pastor, Rev. Mr. Beacom, will be held this evening. The choir will meet at 7:30 o'clock to rehearse the music for Sunday.

Miss Lena Bruchmann, of the People's Home Mission, East Eleventh street, New York city, is confined to her home on Mountain avenue. Dr. Kinch, of Westfield, is in attendance.

Mrs. Rohl, of Park avenue, who has been detained at home by illness since January, is now able to be about the house, and a speedy recovery is assured.

C. B. Loomis will give a lecture for the benefit of the public library in the assembly room of the school house, Wednesday evening of next week.

Miss Emma Clark, of Front street, has accepted a position in New York, and will begin her duties there on Monday.

Rev. Mr. Beacom will occupy the pulpit in the Methodist church tomorrow for the first.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD

(Special Correspondence.)

South Plainfield, April 20—Thomas Brantingham shot on the mill pond yesterday forenoon, a large loon. The bird was but wounded at first, and while in that condition made an attack upon Alfred Young, and striking him upon the knee inflicted a painful wound by means of its sharp bill.

The Junior Christian Endeavor Society held a social this afternoon in the lecture room of the church. Refreshments were served and games played. The social committee is Enna Eckert and Sadie Bordenheimer.

Rev. J. A. Cubberley will discourse tomorrow at the morning service on "How to Subdue Kingdoms." At the evening service the theme of the sermon will be "A Profitable Journey."

The "Father Lights" Missionary circle met last night at the home of Mrs. David Bigley. As part of the programme selections were read from the life of Livingston.

The Christian Endeavor leader for Sunday evening is Thomas Gage, The topic given for discussion, "Walking with Jesus."

Mr. and Mrs. Bigley left today for Bloomsbury where they will spend a few days at the home of Mr. Bigley's parents.

The Middlesex County School Board Association will hold its next meeting at New Brunswick, April 26.

MOVING PRESSES.

Gang From Scott Press Works Busy at New York Times Office.

Five expert machinists from the Scott Press Works went to New York on the 2:08 train this morning for the purpose of shifting two large presses in The Times building. Excavations for the rapid transit tunnel have taken off a corner of the printing room and it was necessary to move the machines to another part of the building. The work of removal commenced immediately after today's edition was run off and was completed shortly before noon, in time to begin printing the Sunday edition Circumstances Greatly Exaggerated.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Fanwood, April 20—William and Dorothy Ellis, son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy J. Ellis, of Forest avenue, are very much improved from an attack of diphtheria. Their recovery now seems assured. In conversation with a Press reporter this morning, Mr. Ellis said that the circumstances of the case had been greatly exaggerated by New York reporters to whom he had given facts.

Boy Bicyclist Collided With Wagon.

Jacob Abrams, a young son of Morris Abrams, of West Front street, was riding a bicycle near the corner of Grove street and Craig place, last evening, about 6 o'clock, when he accidentally collided with a carpenter's wagon. The occupant of the wagon stopped his horse at once and thus averted further trouble. The boy was not injured. The name of the man in the wagon is not known.

Police at Drill.

The city police force held a drill yesterday afternoon in the Marsh building on Park avenue. It is the intention of Chief Kiely to continue the instruction in drilling weekly throughout the summer. Occasional target practice will also be held.

Convention.

The beautiful Lib Teters, daughter of Jim Teters, the illicit distiller, observed with uneasiness that the revenue officer had red hair and wore glasses.

For convention prescribed that she fall in love with this person and betray her father's secret to him.

"Marry an ill-favored mug, this!" she muttered, dropping somewhat into colonial dialect before she perceived, in her agitation, just where she was dropping.

But there was a measure of consolation in the reflection that convention likewise made it incumbent upon the revenue officer brutally to desert her, after he had obtained the information he wanted.—Detroit Journal.

Wanted Thirteen-Inch Shells.

The negro porter in a certain office building applied to a young lawyer who had frightened him on various occasions and asked him to write out all of the big words he knew on a piece of paper.

The lawyer, being puzzled at the request, asked the negro what he wanted with the words.

"Well, you see, boss," replied the darky, "I is going to have a debate with a sassy young nigger who thinks he is eddicated. He don't know big words, and he hasn't got de sense to find out how to git dem, and if you will jest help me out, boss, I will do dat nigger up in de fust round."—Memphis Scimitar.

The Queen Got Her Primroses.

The following little anecdote, told by the queen herself, will show her independence of character: Very fond of primroses, and finding none in the royal gardens, she sent word to have some planted. The gardeners, the queen said, made many objections, and finding, shortly afterward, that her wishes had not been carried out, she dispatched a messenger, inquiring the reason. "I suppose Queen Anne had none," she said, "so they did not think it proper for me to have any; but I sent them word promptly that Queen Victoria would have some—and she did."—Century.

Matter of Tone.

Wife—We really ought to have a piano.

Husband—What's the good of having a piano? You can't play.

"No, but it would give tone to the house."

"Oh, if it's tone you want I'll buy a bass drum."—Chicago Daily News.

How To Serve Dinner

I AM now speaking to the family who keep only one servant and who wish nevertheless to have their simple meals served daintily. In the first place, quality and not quantity should be the rule. It is a rule which, unfortunately, is very little observed in America. Remember that it is better to have two dishes and have them well cooked than a dozen tasteless concoctions. Another thing, no matter whether there is company or not, the dinner should always be served in a correct manner, and then the advent of an unexpected guest or two will not cause such a stir in the household management.

The maid should wear a black dress, with white collar and cuffs and a crisp apron. An important rule for her to remember is to pass every dish to the left of the person waited on. When the family enters the dining room, the soup should be served ready at each plate. Two ladlefuls are sufficient, as soup is merely a warm appetizer. The maid should pass the sliced bread. Butter is not usually served at dinner. After the soup has been removed the roast, together with a pile of hot plates, is placed before the head of the family, who proceeds to carve. The maid carries around each plate. There should be no handing over the table. Potatoes or rice and one other vegetable are sufficient. These are kept in covered dishes on the sideboard and passed around to each person by the maid. The vegetable dishes should never be left on the table, and there should be no such thing as the archipelago of little vegetable saucers so often seen in the houses of people who ought to know better. One side dish alone is permissible in the case of a creamed vegetable. When the table has been cleared, fresh plates are given, and the maid passes the salad in a glass or china bowl. This is already prepared, and it is eaten with bread or cold sliced meat. Pressed and jellied ham and chicken in fancy molds are pretty to serve when one has guests. After the salad has been removed a simple dessert is brought in little dishes, or it can be served on the table. This is followed by crackers and cheese and black coffee in small cups.

At all times during the meal the table presents a neat and attractive appearance, and all confusion in serving is avoided in this manner.

This design could be equally well carried out in heavy linen materials. The pattern could be stamped or painted in colors and then simply worked in outline stitch.

EFFECT OF NEW BRITISH TAXES.

Prediction That Coal Trade Will Suffer.

LONDON, April 20.—The new budget was received quietly on the Stock Exchange. Consols fell seven-sixteenths on the proposed new issue. Otherwise the markets were not affected.

Consols closed at 94 15-16.

At a large meeting of the Cardiff exchange of colliery owners, merchants and shipowners it was decided to ask Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, chancellor of the exchequer, to receive a deputation which would point out the position of the trade at that place, which they say is paralyzed.

At Leeds, Liverpool, Portsmouth and other centers the grocers have advanced the price of sugar a halfpenny per pound.

The greatest outcry against the new war taxes is coming from the coal centers. At a meeting held at Newcastle a resolution was adopted recommending that the tax should not apply to existing contracts.

In the house of commons yesterday Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, chancellor of the exchequer, said he was considering the question of exempting coal contracts already entered into from the operation of the new war export tax on that commodity. He added that he hoped to arrange the duty so that it would fall on the foreign purchaser.

The chairman of the Cardiff Chamber of Commerce thinks the new tax will have the effect of admitting American coal into the markets now supplied by Great Britain.

PORTO RICAN TARIFF.

Natives Want Import Duties Paid to Them.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, April 20.—It is learned upon good authority that Governor Allen, now in Washington, will urge President McKinley so to construe the Foraker bill that if the Porto Rican tariff is removed next July, as reported, the import duties upon goods from foreign countries into Porto Rico shall be paid to Porto Rico and not to the treasury of the United States, as is at present the case with most of the duties collected here from foreign imports. It is argued that local merchants are not benefited if the United States receives the customs receipts.

According to the figures of G. W. Whitehead, the collector of customs for Porto Rico, the total import duties for March were $87,758, of which only $17,859 were for American goods. March can be taken as a fair average.

The Chamber of Commerce of San Juan has resolved to send a cable to Washington asking for a duty on foreign coffee, thus favoring the Porto Rican product.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

The British house of commons adopted the war loan resolution by a vote of 186 to 117.

Senator Frye, back from Santo Domingo, said that country was in a deplorable condition.

Indiana miners en route to Kentucky coalfields to inaugurate a strike were stopped by the sheriff.

The Lowell (Mass.) Democratic club pledged itself to work for the nomination of Richard Olney for president in 1904.

Volunteers Reach San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 20.—The Twenty-ninth and Thirty-second regiments, United States volunteers, arrived here yesterday from the Philippines on the transport Grant. The vessel also brought Company F of the Twenty-sixth volunteer infantry, 123 sick soldiers and 80 cabin passengers. In all there are 1,700 soldiers on board. During the voyage there were three deaths among the soldiers in the hospital. The Grant made the run from Manila in 25 days 18 hours and from Nagasaki in 20 days 18 hours.

Captain Pearson Guilty.

BALTIMORE, April 20.—The jury in the case of Captain John E. Pearson, who was charged with scuttling his own schooner, the C. W. Buoy, brought in a verdict finding him guilty, and he was sentenced to 60 days in jail. Members of the crew testified that the captain knocked a hole in the bottom of the schooner with a crowbar for the purpose, it was assumed, of avoiding the payment to his crew of wages amounting to about $300. The captain claimed that the affair was an accident.

Prince Bismarck Satirizes Kaiser.

BERLIN, April 20.—Prince Herbert Bismarck, following up his characterization of the government's policy as "zigzag," made an address yesterday to the electors of Genthin, Prussian Saxony, in the course of which he treated both Emperor William and Count von Bulow satirically and expressed a fear that the foreign policy of Germany was one of "carelessly laid mines toward the east."

Captain Boutelle's Pay.

WASHINGTON, April 20. — The comptroller of the treasury has decided that Captain Charles A. Boutelle, U. S. N., retired (late a representative from Maine), is entitled to one-half sea pay of a captain of the navy, computed with a previous record of five years' service as an appointee from civil life, or at the rate of $1,925 a year.

Coal Miners Quit Work.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., April 20.—The miners at the Stevens colliery, Pittston, have demanded a 10 per cent increase in wages for a difficult piece of work in a gangway. The demand was refused, and all hands, some 250 in number, struck.

A Head End Collision.

FLORENCE, Colo., April 20.—A head end collision between a passenger train and a light engine occurred on the Florence and Cripple Creek road yesterday near Russell, seven miles north of this city. Six persons were injured. Both engines were entirely demolished.

The Largest Towboat.

DUBUQUE, Ia., April 20.—The Iowa Iron works have been awarded the contract to build the largest towboat in the world for the Monongahela Coal company of Pittsburg. The boat will have a capacity to tow 50 steel barges and will cost $250,000.

Commissioner Lyman Better.

OSWEGO, April 20.—The condition of Excise Commissioner Lyman was much improved last night, but the attending physicians are not yet ready to state that he will recover.

QUAINT BELL TOWER.

It Is an Ivy-Covered Fir Tree Supposed to Be Older Than the Discovery of America.

When the first settlement was made on Commencement bay, Puget sound, it was simply a lumber camp and trading post. After the Northern Pacific railroad was completed to Commencement bay a city was built on the high ground above the lumber camp southward, and that is the handsome city of Tacoma, Wash.

The ancient lumber camp is now that part of Tacoma which is called "Old Town" locally. Early in the history of Old Town an Episcopal clergyman, now Bishop Morris, of Oregon, built a little wooden church in the place, alongside of a huge fir tree that had been broken off about 40 feet above the ground.

It was first intended to build the church behind the tree and cut a doorway through the trunk, thus making the tree the entrance as well as the bell tower, but this plan was abandoned. A belfry tipped with a cross was built upon the top of the tree, a bell placed therein, and swung. To this day the ivy-clad fir is the bell tower of the church. A ladder runs from the roof of the church to the belfry, and this is used as the approach to the bell whenever it becomes necessary to visit it.

The building of this church, which was named St. Peter's, was begun one Tuesday morning in the early '70's, and services were held in it the following Sunday morning.

The ivy that clings about the tree has crawled under the roof and into the church, and forms delicate green traceries along the inner walls.

The bell tower tree is many hundreds of years old, and was a good-sized tree when Columbus sailed upon the voyage that resulted in the discovery of a new world. Thus this forest monarch now forms the oldest bell tower in America.

CATCHES TRAINS NOW.

A Chicago Traveling Man's Expedient for Leaving "Time Calls" at His Home.

He is a busy traveling man, who spends more of his time on the road than he does in the pretty little flat in which he installed his young wife a couple of years ago. But he drops into town at irregular and unseasonable hours and slips away at such odd times and on such impossible trains that the slavey of the little family is kept in a perpetual state of nervous prostration trying to remember the "calls" he leaves with her. He is so used to depending on hotel clerks when out of town that he takes it quite as a matter of course to tell the girl to

DOMESTIC PROBLEM SOLVED.
(Chicago Drummer's Way of Impressing His Lazy Servant.)

"Call me at seven" or "Let me sleep until noon."

After he had missed a couple of trains through Martha's forgetfulness he tried the old expedient of writing brief and mandatory notes, which he pinned upon his chamber door, but even this was not a glittering success because the slavey frequently failed to look for the notes. A week ago while hunting for a suitable memorandum book in a stationer's shop his eye lighted on one of those cardboard clock dials with movable hands which lawyers hang upon their office doors when going to lunch. The top was marked "Back at" and the hands were to be moved to the proper hour and minute, but the drummer saw how that could be fixed.

"That's just what I want," he said, and he bought one and took it to his desk, where he labored 20 minutes with pen and ink. The next morning when the girl glanced at the door of her master's and mistress' chamber she nearly fell in a fit. There was a neat card labeled, "Call us at" and under it was a clock dial with the hands pointing to nine o'clock. The drummer has not missed a train since, but he has had to explain the thing to seven people who have called since he hung it up in the house.

"RING AROUND
a rosy." Business is going in a whirl. We don't know which goes faster. Everybody seems to want oysters, everybody seems to want chickens, everyone seems to want beef. The sleeping spring appetites seem to have awakened and we are glad of it.
Thus far we have been able to satisfactorily supply the enormous demand, and expect to continue doing so. It has given us an excellent chance to prove our motto—goods right, prices right, treatment right.

FIRE LOSS IS HEAVY.

Much Sympathy For Waldersee Over the Event.

FUNERAL HONORS FOR DEAD GENERAL

Hostile Chinese Troops to Be Withdrawn From the Border—Early Evacuation by the French Troops.

PEKING, April 20.—General Chaffee called yesterday upon Field Marshal von Waldersee and expressed his deep sympathy with the latter in the death of General Schwartzkopf and the destruction of the German headquarters by fire. General Chaffee offered to aid Field Marshal von Waldersee in any way possible. The field marshal is in good health.

The remains of General Schwartzkopf have been recovered, and his funeral will be held today. General Chaffee, with officers of his staff and a troop of American cavalry, will attend the funeral in behalf of the United States. Other foreign powers here will also render similar honors.

All the foreign diplomats and generals have called on Field Marshal Count von Waldersee to express their condolences over the destruction of the winter palace and regret at the death of Major General Schwartzkopf, who perished in the fire.

The total loss by the fire is estimated at $660,000. Count von Waldersee lost everything, including his papers and clothing.

Fortunately there was no wind at the time or all the winter palace buildings would have been destroyed. Strangely enough, the one building destroyed was made of asbestus and was provided by a German firm with special rooms for Count von Waldersee.

This accident will probably have the effect of further delaying the return of the court.

In consequence of strong representations to the Chinese government an imperial decree has been issued ordering the Chinese troops at Huai-lu to immediately remove outside the great wall.

In consequence of the imperial decree the Franco-German expedition has been abandoned.

France will shortly withdraw 10,000 troops from China. It is said that it has been decided that the foreign contingent to remain shall consist of 2,000 troops of each nation. This number will be further reduced when the forts have been razed and the road from Peking to Taku thoroughly safeguarded.

Japan For Reform.

LONDON, April 20.—"There are very strong indications," says the Shanghai correspondent of The Morning Post, "that the Japanese government proposes to put itself at the head of the reform movement in China in order to overthrow the Mantchoo dynasty, which it considers bound hand and foot by Russia."

Tornado In Florida.

TAMPA, Fla., April 20.—The hamlet of Piscayne, seven miles north of here, was struck by a tornado yesterday. Several houses were demolished. John Peters was fatally injured and William Cook severely hurt. Peters is a prosperous vegetable farmer. His house was completely demolished. The main part of the building, a new and substantial structure, was carried about 100 yards and dashed to pieces. Of the back of the residence but the floor remains. Mr. Peters' head is badly crushed, and his body was pierced by several pieces of wood. Mr. Cook was thrown 50 feet and painfully injured. The tornado is thought to be local. Every forest tree in its path in this vicinity was torn up by the roots.

Johnson's Investigation.

CLEVELAND, April 20.—The investigation of the city clerk's office ordered by Mayor Johnson was begun yesterday, and it is alleged that a shortage of $3,000 has already been discovered in the accounts of L. J. Rowbottom, who several years ago was a license clerk in the office. Ex-City Clerk Burgess admits in a published statement that Rowbottom was a defaulter to the extent of $1,500, but declares the money was returned in installments and returned to the city treasury. The investigators assert, however, that the evidence so far at hand fails to substantiate this claim.

Snowstorm In Kentucky.

MIDDLESBORO, Ky., April 20.—A heavy snowstorm raged throughout eastern Kentucky yesterday and last night. Two days of heavy rain preceded the snowstorm and brought on freshets in Powell's valley which rendered 20 families homeless in that section. As soon as the water recedes they will be able to return to their homes. There is two inches of snow in Yellow Creek valley, and it is half a foot deep on the mountains. The peach trees are in full bloom, and the fruit will probably be killed.

Town Threatened by a Landslide.

PITTSBURG, April 20.—Newtown, a mining hamlet containing 100 houses near Turtle Creek, Pa., inhabited largely by foreigners and negroes, is threatened with destruction by a landslide. The town is located on the brow of a steep hill, overhanging the Pittsburg and Cleveland Gas Coal company's railroad. The rains of Thursday night and yesterday have weakened the treacherous soil under the houses, and as there is no rock foundation under them they are liable to go down at any time.

Long Trip For a Collier.

NORFOLK, April 20.—The United States collier Alexander, which loaded at Baltimore, passed the capes yesterday on her long journey to the Pacific. The vessel is carrying a supply of coal to the United States coaling station at Pickilinque bay, Lower California. It is

RAIN PREVENTED START OF THE GOLF SEASON

Both of the Local Clubs Failed to Inaugurate Play on Their Links Saturday Afternoon.

COURSES WERE ALL READY.

MANY IMPROVEMENTS MADE AT BOTH COURSES FOR OPENING.

Stumps and Stones Removed From Park Club Course in Dynamite—Hillside Will Open New Portion of Course in June.

Everything was ready for the opening of the two local golf courses Saturday afternoon except the weather. The heavy rain of Saturday morning converted both courses in seas of mud while the downpour of the afternoon was sufficient to deter even the enthusiastic players. Neither club had planned any formal function for the beginning of the season. Play will therefore begin this week with the first events of the season postponed until next Saturday.

A number of improvements have been made at the links of the Park Golf Club during the last few weeks. Under the supervision of Professional Grover, a gang of men has been at work. Special attention has been paid to the greens, temporary greens having been prepared for preliminary play until the regular ones were in fit condition. The bridge at the Westervelt avenue entrance to the grounds has been rebuilt. A number of stumps and rocks have been removed from the fair green by the aid of dynamite.

On the "island" on the sixth hole, famous "Desperation," stumps have been taken out. There were several in the fair green on the next hole the absence of which will be appreciated. The approach to the seventh hole has been leveled. Some of the dangers to be encountered on the "island" on the ninth hole have been dynamited to advantage. These improvements will merely tend to remove obstacles which have sometime penalized good play while the proper hazards have been in no way interfered with or made less difficult.

At the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club's links, a gang of thirty men has been employed for a week. The course is now in better condition than it ever was so early in the season. The efforts in recent years to give a fine turf are having their effects. The putting greens and fair greens were never in as good condition as now. A gang of men has carefully gone over the entire course and all loose stones have been picked up and carted away. A few minor changes have been made to greens and hazards, all with the aim of securing better play.

Work on the addition to the course is steadily progressing and it is expected that that portion will be ready for use in June. The change will make the course several hundred yards longer and generally improve it from the point of view of the golfer.

The green committee of the Hillside Club calls the particular attention of the members to the fact that there will be no play on the Hillside links until Saturday as the course is now softer than it has been this spring and the committee is anxious that it shall be kept in its present good condition until the ground dries up somewhat.

LOCAL ENDEAVOR MEETING.

Arranging For Annual Meeting of The Local Endeavor Union.

A meeting of the executive committee of the Local Christian Endeavor Union was held at the home of Miss Florence Hawkins, on LaGrand avenue Saturday evening.

Owing to the disagreeableness of the weather, the attendance was unusually small. A proposition to hold the annual meeting of the organization was informally discussed. The first Baptist church will no doubt be the place for the annual meeting. Before the meeting adjourned refreshments were served.

Damaged in Runaway.

A delivery wagon and a set of harness were damaged in a runaway on Fairview avenue of one of the horses of the Plainfield Packing Company Saturday afternoon.

The trustees of the First M. E. church will meet this evening for the purpose of electing a trustee to fill the vacancy caused by the recent death of P. M. French.

DIED AFTER BRIEF ILLNESS.

MRS. EPHRAIM DRAKE, AN OLD RESIDENT, PASSED AWAY.

Died at Home of Her Son, Benjamin W. Hand, After Three Days' Illness—Was Sixty-Nine Years Old.

Mrs. Ephraim Drake, mother of Benjamin W. Hand, died suddenly yesterday morning at 8:25 o'clock, at the home of the latter, West Second street, after an illness of three days. She was taken ill Thursday last with neuralgia, and while her condition was quite serious, the family was not alarmed to a great extent and believed that she would recover. The members of the family were about her when she died.

Mrs. Drake's maiden name was Miss Rhoda Laing. She was the daughter of Benjamin Laing, and was born near Jackson School house sixty-nine years ago, in which vicinity she lived nearly all her life. Her first marriage was to Benjamin Hand. By that union there were three daughters and a son, Benjamin Hand. The daughters died. Her husband died forty-one years ago.

After a period of eleven years, Mrs Hand married Ephraim Drake. He died three years ago. While he was living he and his wife lived at Samptown. Following his death Mrs. Drake came to Plainfield and lived with her son. Fifty years ago Mrs. Drake united with the Baptist church at Scotch Plains, afterward bringing her letter to the Second Baptist church in this city, which later became the Park avenue Baptist church.

She was a sincere and devoted Christian and up to the last she was greatly interested in religious work. In the home she was dearly beloved for her many endearing qualities. For many years Mrs Drake was a trained nurse.

Mrs. Drake was next to the last of eleven children, there being one brother, Isaac Laing, of Elizabeth, now living. She leaves one son, Benjamin W. Hand and a step-daughter, Miss Mary Drake, of Piscataway Township. There are three grandchildren, the Misses Sadie and Mabel Hand and Percy Hand.

The funeral services will be held from her late residence Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment will be made at Scotch Plains.

An association known as the Young Men's Brotherhood has just been formed at the First M. E. church by the young men of that church. The object of the Brotherhood is to advance the social and religious interests of the young men and to work in harmony with all other associations in the church.

The following officers have been chosen: President, Nelson A. Miller; vice-president, George A. Horne; secretary, Charles W Sprague; treasurer, Ralph Laing. Friday evening the Brotherhood will give an entertainment in Vincent chapel, when a sleight-of-hand performance will be given.

F. H. JACOBS TO SPEAK.

Union Meeting in Twentieth Century National Gospel Campaign Will be Held Sunday Evening.

F. H. Jacobs, the evangelistic leader, whose addresses were greatly enjoyed during the recent Twentieth Century services, will speak in the First Baptist church Sunday evening. An urgent invitation is extended to all to attend, especially those who signed cards during the recent evangelistic movement. The large choir is also invited to attend and occupy seats on the platform. Those persons owning copies of Christian Hymns No. 1 are requested to bring them. The offering will be for the benefit of the Twentieth Century National Gospel Campaign.

It is to be hoped that Mr. Jacobs will be greeted with a very large attendance and receive a rousing welcome. In the event of the service proving a spiritual success, there is a possibility of a similar service being held in the various churches once a month, with not only Mr. Jacobs as leader, by Mr. Hall and Rev. Mr. Henderson as well.

ROCK AVENUE IMPROVEMENT

City And Township Are Willing to do Their Share—Borough to be Heard From.

The announcement made by the street committee that Rock avenue will in all probability be macadamized this year from Front street to the city line, will undoubtedly result in the work being extended to Greenbrook road. Although but a comparatively short thoroughfare it lies in three municipalities, Plainfield, North Plainfield borough and North Plainfield township.

Committeeman Charles P. Sebring, of the township, has interested himself in the matter and has promised the township will do its share provided the rest is done. This leaves but North Plainfield borough to be heard from. When the matter is brought to the Council's attention it will, no doubt, be received favorably. The street is used a great deal by farmers and teamsters and once it is macadamized the traffic will be very heavy.

FRAISE SERVICE.

Special Services Were Held at First M. E. Church Last Evening.

The services at the First M. E. church yesterday were held as usual, but the heavy rain interfered somewhat with the attendance, both in the morning and evening and at Sunday-school. Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass, the pastor, preached at both services.

In the evening a helpful praise service was held, conducted by the choir, and the pastor gave a discourse on the theme, "Always Rejoicing." It was just the subject for such weather as prevailed, and although the attendance was small, all felt spiritually refreshed by the earnest words spoken. At the close of the sermon Charles L. Lewis sang "The Sweet Bye and Bye."

Found Ring Inside Fish.

A large German carp, captured in the New Market pond last Saturday by "Ted" Devlin, of this city, proved to be a far more valuable prize than was at first thought. During the process of cleaning, Mr. Devlin noticed something shining in the entrails and on looking closer found it to be a gold ring with opal setting. The ring, which is a valuable one, was evidently dropped in the pond by a member of a boating party, and afterward swallowed by the fish, while burrowing in the mud.

No Inquest Necessary.

As Drs. T. H. and Roland Tomlinson were not called to the Haulenbeek residence, Friday, until eight hours after Mrs. Haulenbeek swallowed the fatal dose of insect poison, they deemed it best to notify County Physician Westcott. The latter viewed the remains but decided no inquest was necessary and granted the usual burial permit.

To Sail For Southern Ports.

Captain P. E. Stuart, of Westervelt avenue, will leave this week for Nova Scotia, where he will assume charge of the steamship N. B. Morris. The steamer sails from Great Bear river for Rio de Janeiro and other South American ports. Altogether Captain Stuart expects to be absent from Plainfield for more than a year.

Complete Recovery Expected.

Miss Gladys Biglow, of Central avenue, who recently underwent an operation for appendicitis at the hospital, is improving slowly. For the past few days her condition has been about the same, but complete recovery is looked for.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE FOLK IN QUARANTINE.

Cranford Board of Health Established One at Home of Christian Science Healers.

ELLIS CHILDREN IMPROVING.

NEW YORK PAPERS GAVE WILD AND EXAGGERATED ACCOUNTS.

Twenty Citizens of Cranford Demanded That the See Be Placed in Quarantine—Affadavit That They Had Visited Ellis House.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Fanwood, April 22.—There are no new developments in the diphtheria cases at the home of Mr. and Mrs LeRoy J. Ellis, on Forrest avenue. William and Dorothy, the children, who are ill, are now improving with excellent chances for recovery. Mrs. Henry Austin, a Christian Scientist, from Cranford, who was quarantined at the Ellis home, was allowed to return home Saturday afternoon after she had been thoroughly fumigated. The children are constantly receiving medical treatment and no further opposition is made.

The wild and exaggerated accounts in yesterday's New York papers are denounced by Mr. Ellis as rediculous and very far from the true facts in the case.

Mr. Ellis desires The Daily Press to say that it is the opinion of the attending physicians that the death of his daughter, Ida Ellis, was not due to a lack of treatment and interference on the part of Christian Scientists. He says that the daughter received medical treatment earlier than did William Ellis, the boy, who is now so ill with dyphtheria. Mr. Ellis also desires The Press to say that at no time has he ever held the views of the Christian Scientists as his views. He has been opposed to them and has always favored the best medical treatment.

Cranford, April 22—Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B See, who are at the head of the Christian Scientist church at this place, and who have been visiting the Ellis home at Fanwood, are now quarantined. The Board of Health met yesterday afternoon, in response to the request of twenty citizens, and decided to quarantine the See family for one week commencing at 6 o'clock last evening. An officer has been put on duty at the home to enforce the rule. The Board of Health has a sworn affidavit made by Henry Austin, of Cranford, that Mr. and Mrs. See entered and left the Ellis home after the quarantine was established, and for this reason they decided to keep them home for a week.

The Christian Scientists here number about one hundred. Mr. and Mrs. See are the healers and they visit all parts of New Jersey advocating the principles they espouse.

INJURED HIS BACK.

Wm. H. Addis Hurt By a Fall at Elizabeth Last Friday.

Wm. H. Addis, of East Second street, met with a painful accident while at work in Elizabeth Friday. As a result he has been unable to leave the hospital in that city to which he was taken.

Mr. Addis, while doing a plumbing job, was in the act of loosening a nut when the wrench he was using suddenly slipped. This caused Mr. Addis to lose his footing and in falling backwards he struck heavily on some iron that was scattered about. By the fall his back was bruised and sprained considerably, but it is expected that he will be able to be about again shortly.

CAPITAL AND LABOR.

Walter A. Wikoff Told of What He Believes To Be Only Solution of That Problem.

A very large attendance of men heard a most interesting talk at the afternoon meeting of the Y. M. C. A. yesterday. The speaker was Walter A. Wikoff, professor of economics at Princeton and author of "The Workers."

To verify the assertion that an unskilled laborer could procure work if he really cared for it, Mr. Wikoff travelled over the country as an ordinary workman. The result of his experiment forms a most entertaining account and one that is of vital interest to every man. He related some of his experiences while searching for work and spoke of the condition of laborers in various parts of the country.

At the close of the talk, he declared that nothing would alleviate the condition of the workers of the country but love which enters men's hearts through Christ. Labor and capital would always be estranged until they realized this fact.

James Middledith, a well-known resident, died at 3:45 o'clock this morning at his home, 80 Mercer avenue, following an illness of one year. He was a sufferer with acute Bright's disease, and it was this that caused his death.

He was formerly a member of the New York Stock Exchange and for many years was engaged in the brokerage business in New York. He leaves a wife, a son, James T. Middledith, and a daughter, Mrs. W. J. FUNERAL OF FRED G. BACH.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICE HELD AT WARREN CHAPEL SUNDAY.

Rev. J. O. McKelvey and Rev. George Hauser Jointly Officiated at the Funeral.

The funeral services of Fred G. Bach, of Duer street, who died in the hospital Friday from appendicitis, were held yesterday afternoon in Warren chapel.

The little church edifice was crowded to the doors with sorrowing friends who came to pay their respects to the memory of Mr. Bach, who was held in high esteem by all who knew him. Franklin Counil, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., and Paughcaughnaughsinque Tribe, No. 193, I. O. R. M., each attended the obsequies in a body as a mark of respect to their late fellow member.

Rev J. O. McKelvey, the pastor of Warren chapel, and Rev. G Hauser, pastor of the German Reformed church, conducted the funeral services. Rev. Mr. McKelvey dwelt feelingly upon the lofty character and the specially fine principles possessed by Mr. Bach and Rev. Mr. Hauser discoursed in German in a similarly sympathetic strain.

When the services in the chapel were concluded the funeral party proceeded to the Methodist cemetery, where a short burial service was said by the officiating ministers at the side of the grave.

The floral tributes were exceedingly beautiful. Set pieces were sent by the lodges and societies of which Mr. Bach was a member and these together with the mass of flowers, sent by relatives and friends, completely covered the grave.

The pall-bearers were: George Bosterle and Thomas Curran, representing the Jr. O. U. A. M.; A. G. Pope and William Young, representing the I. O. R. M., and George Clark, Cyrus Boice representing the K. of P.

Improvements Made to Heating Apparatus at Somerset Street School.

The steam heating apparatus to the North Plainfield manual training School building on Somerset street has been completely overhauled during the last week. The building is heated through pipes which formerly were underground. Both pipes being on the same level the return current did not work as well as was desired.

The direct pipe to the manual training school building has been raised nearly seven feet, and this change it is believed will be conducive to a better circulation of the heat.

BOROUGH BRIDE WAS WEDDED AT HER HOME

Marriage of Miss Adah E. Woolston and William N. Woodland.

IT TOOK PLACE SATURDAY.

COSY HOME WAS CHARMINGLY DECORATED WITH FLOWERS.

A Reception Followed the Ceremony—Those in the Bridal Party—Some of the Out-of-Town Guests.

Miss Adah Elizabeth Woolston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lemuel B. Woolston, of Fairview avenue, and William Newell Woodland, of Grandview avenue, were married at the home of the bride's parents at 6:30 o'clock Saturday evening. Both the bride and groom are popular young people in North Plainfield social circles and a host of friends in the borough, and from distant points as well, were present to see the impressive ceremony which made them man and wife.

The cosy home had been beautifully decorated. In the parlor, in which the nuptial ceremony was performed, the floral decorations were in white and green. Interspering long strands of southern smilax were a profusion of calla lilies. The large bow window in front was trimmed in the same manner. Pink and green were the colors of the floral ornamentations in the library. Out carnations were placed about the room and the effect was decidedly pleasing.

In the dining room the decorations consisted of large bunches of red roses. The hallway was filled with daffodils. Palms and potted plants were placed around the walls in every room and in the hallway as well.

The nuptial ceremony was impressive. Leading the way for the bridal procession were the two ushers, Royal T. Phillips and Charles Woolston. Immediately behind them came the officiating clergymen, Rev. G. W. Gardner, the pastor of the Grace M. E. church, and Rev. Alfred C. Nickerson, the pastor of the All Souls Unitarian church. Following came the groom and his best man, Albert Woodland. Preceding the maid of honor, Miss Laura Stanley, of Camden, N. J., was a little flower girl, Miss Grace Woolston, and a page, Leslie Ireland.

The bride entered the parlor leaning on the arm of her father, Lemuel B. Woolston. Her gown was made of white satin trimmed with duchesse lace and silver ribbon. The veil of tulle was caught up by a sunburst of diamonds about which were clustered tiny sprays of orange blossoms, and the bouquet was composed of bride's roses and asparagus fern.

The maid of honor was gowned in white organdie over pink silk and she carried a bouquet of pink bridal roses. The ribbon bearers were the Misses Marie, Laura and Marguerite Woolston and Joseph Buckle.

The bridal party advanced to the front of the parlor through an aisle formed by the assembled guests. Standing before the officiating clergymen the youg couple took the nuptial vows, and then facing the throng of guests they were showered with congratulations.

With the exception of the wedding march from "Lohengrin," played by Alfred S. Rendell, of Trenton, the music was furnished by Prof. Andrew G. Carpenter's orchestra.

At the conclusion of the nuptial ceremony refreshments were served, and until 9 o'clock, when the couple departed for their bridal trip, the house was thronged by friends all anxious to make the occasion a joyous one.

After a short wedding journey Mr. and Mrs. Woodland will reside on Milton avenue in Newark.

Among the guests present at the reception were: Mr and Mrs Burton Kiple, and Mr and Mrs E F Woolston, of Beverly; Mr and Mrs C T Woolston, of Riverton; Mr and Mrs Isaac M Woolston, of Palmyra; Miss Jennie Stanley, Mrs Wilbur White and Miss Laura Stanley, of Camden; Mrs Joseph Randall and Alfred Randall, of Philadelphia; Mrs Hottenroth and Mr Hottenroth, of East Orange; Mr and Mrs Green, of Arlington; Mr and Mrs Richard Riker, Mr Voorhees, Mr and Mrs Woodland, Miss Ada Woodland, A L Woodland, Mr and Mrs D A McIntyre, Miss Grace Woodland, Mrs Westwood, Miss Woodland, Miss Woodward and Miss Emma Vetterlein, of Newark; and Mrs Margaret Webster, of Jamesburg, N. J.

WARLIKE PREPARATIONS.

French and German Troops Gathering at Pao-ting-fu.

PAO-TING-FU, April 22.—This city has been for the last four days a big military camp of French and German soldiers on the way to the front. It is now estimated that 8,000 French troops and 6,000 Germans will form the entire force when all the reenforcements have arrived.

There is no truth in current reports regarding severe fighting between the outposts and the Chinese.

Three men left Saturday under escort to convey Emperor Kwang Su's order to General Liu to retire immediately into the province of Shansi. Prince Ching and other Chinese officials say the Chinese general had already retired, but their confirmations or denials are considered very unreliable.

The French and German troops seem to be co-operating fairly well, although until Friday there was some doubt as to who would command the expedition.

If the Chinese retire over the Shansi boundary, then, according to international agreement, the foreign troops should not go beyond it. The ministers of the powers in Peking earnestly hope that this will prove to be the case. They point out that the Chinese force has not been aggressive and only came a few miles over the border, arguing that it might just as well have been allowed to remain where it was.

Boxers Defeat Indian Troops.

PEKING, April 22.—Brigadier General A. J. F. Reid, commanding the Third brigade of the India imperial service troops in China, who is now at Shan-hai-kwan, sent a company of Punjab infantry to disperse a band of robbers in the neighborhood of Fu-ning. A force of Boxers and robbers more than 1,000 strong attacked the Indian troops, killing Major Browning and one sepoy and wounding others. The company retreated to Fu-ning. Reenforcements have been sent from Shan-hai-kwan. The Boxers are apparently well armed with modern rifles.

A NOTABLE CASE BEGUN.

Unusual Interest In Trial of Instructor Eastman of Harvard.

BOSTON, April 22.—It is seldom that a capital case has aroused so much interest as that of the trial, which began this morning in the superior court at East Cambridge, of Charles R. Eastman, instructor at Harvard university, charged with the murder of his brother-in-law, Richard H. Grogan, Jr., who was shot on July 4 last while engaged in target practice with Eastman.

The social as well as educational standing of the accused, his near relationship by marriage to the victim of the unfortunate affair, both having married daughters of the late Alvan Clark, the world renowned maker of large telescopes; the apparent friendliness of the two men an hour before the tragedy, the target practice which ended in the shooting of Grogan, accidentally, as claimed by Eastman; Grogan's dying denunciation of Eastman as his murderer.

The entire Eastman family will be present during the trial, the father of the accused, a prominent lawyer in New Orleans, having just arrived.

Two justices of the superior court presided, Francis A. Gaskill of Worcester and John A. Aiken of Greenfield, while a panel of 165 jurors has been drawn.

A SINGULAR ACCIDENT.

Iron Water Tank Blown From a Chicago Building.

CHICAGO, April 22.—A high wind in Chicago loosened a huge iron water tank from its fastening on the roof of the Galbraith building, Madison and Franklin streets, causing it to crush through the six floors to the ground, injuring five persons and resulting in a damage to the building estimated at $50,000.

With two exceptions the injured were pedestrians on the street who had not time to make their escape. Had the accident happened on any other day but Sunday many lives would undoubtedly have been lost, as the building was occupied by several firms employing a large number of people.

The tank was 25 feet long, 6 feet in diameter and contained 40,000 gallons of water. In falling it made a hole about 40 feet square through the building.

Late News From Dawson.

VICTORIA, B. C., April 22.—Alaska advices say Governor Ross was formally inaugurated at Dawson April 12 and Governor Ogilvie stepped down and out. It is believed that the new chief executive will pursue a liberal policy, and business men of this city are much pleased with the prospects for the season under the new regime. The Yukon river opened on April 9 for 15 miles below Lake Lebargo. The Dawson board of trade has decided to urge the discontinuance of gold dust as legal tender.

New Chilean Cabinet.

VALPARAISO, April 22.—The Chilean cabinet crisis, which began March 18 with the resignation of the Liberal cabinet that succeeded the Conservative ministry forced out by congress for failing to satisfy the Liberal majority, came to an end yesterday when a new government was formed by Senhor Anibal Zanartu, who will take the department of the interior. The portfolio of foreign affairs is assigned to Senhor Auguste Orrego Luco and that of finance to Senhor Luis Martiniane Rodriguez.

Missionaries Murdered.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., April 22.—Advices received here from New Guinea say that the natives on Fly river recently murdered Rev. James Chalmers and Rev. Oliver Tomkins. The victims, who were representatives of the London Missionary society, were massacred, together with a number of native Christians, after a tribal fight. Mr. Chalmers was one of the pioneers of missionary work in the south seas, where he had spent over 30 years. He was a distinguished explorer.

A DOUBLE TRAGEDY.

Officers of Wrecked Vancouver Bank Commit Suicide.

SHORTAGE OF $81,000 DISCOVERED.

President and Cashier, Confronted by the Bank Examiner, Admit Guilt and Later Are Found Dead.

VANCOUVER, Wash., April 22.—Charles Brown and E. L. Canby, president and cashier respectively of the First National bank of Vancouver, which was closed Saturday by the comptroller of the currency, committed suicide two miles from this city by shooting themselves with a revolver. Their bodies were found yesterday morning lying together in a small clump of bushes. Both used the same weapon, and Canby evidently died first, as the revolver was found in Brown's hand. Each put the muzzle of the revolver in his mouth and blew the top of his head off.

The fact that Brown's bicycle and an umbrella of Canby's were found a short distance out of town led to the belief that they had taken their lives. A searching party started out, and after several hours' search the bodies were found.

Canby, upon being told by Bank Examiner J. W. Maxwell on Friday evening that the bank would not be permitted to open Saturday, went out in the yard behind the bank and attempted to shoot himself. His revolver failed to explode. After failing to shoot himself Canby came back into the bank, and he and President Brown left together, taking the revolver. When Examiner Maxwell confronted the bank officials with the shortage of $81,000, both men admitted their guilt. It is said that Brown and Canby had been speculating in stocks. Beside Brown's body there was found a package containing $25 and a note saying that the money belonged to his daughter. Upon Canby's body the following brief note was found:

"My Dear Wife—I feel what I am about to do is for the best. Forgive me if you can, and try to live for our dear children. God bless you all. Goodby."

This note was signed "Ned" and dated April 19.

Brown, who was 54 years of age, has lived in Vancouver since 1862. Canby was 52 years of age and was well connected. A brother is a paymaster in the United States army.

Another brother committed suicide by jumping off the wharf at Vancouver several years ago.

While Bank Examiner Maxwell, who is now in charge as receiver, has made no official statement it is known that the bank has loaned a large sum of money on insufficient security. According to his report to the comptroller of the currency there is a shortage of $81,000 in the bank's accounts, and it is understood that a considerable portion of this amount was loaned to Brown and Canby on their personal notes. About a year ago the bank reduced its capital stock from $100,000 to $50,000.

Raid on a Cocking Main.

NEW YORK, April 22.—President George A. McCarthy of the Society For the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals of Jersey City and 15 constables early yesterday morning stopped a cocking main at Homestead in the suburbs of Jersey City. About half the birds, which were from Nyack, Jersey City and Paterson, had been fought against each other, and the pit presented the usual appearance at this stage of the cocking main when the door of the room was burst open by President McCarthy and his posse of constables. The entrances were barred, and every one of the 102 men present were arrested. Several of the spectators made unsuccessful attempts to break through the line of guards in the confusion consequent upon the raid. President McCarthy took possession of the birds, gathered up the paraphernalia, and while the 15 constables held the spectators Justice of the Peace Lahne of Jersey City held informal court in the cocking pit.

Delaware Politician Dead.

DOVER, Del., April 22.—Former Governor Charles C. Stockley, a picturesque figure in Delaware politics and formerly a Democratic state leader, died late Saturday night after a long illness at his home in Georgetown. He was 82 years old and had served in public life since early manhood. He served as county treasurer, county sheriff and was twice elected to the state senate. During his second term in the legislature he was elected speaker of the senate. In 1882 his party selected him as chief executive of the state. In 1896 he left the Democratic party on the money question and championed the gold Democratic cause.

Bulgarian Pope Murdered.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 22.—Consular dispatches from Monastir, Macedonia, report the murder April 2 of the Bulgarian pope Parthenius at the Poplitcha convent, near Domirnissar, supposedly by members of the Macedonian committee, who had suspected him of espionage in behalf of the Turkish authorities.

Mrs. St. John Worse.

SOUTHINGTON, Conn., April 22.—The condition of Mrs. St. John, the smallpox patient, is reported to be somewhat worse by Dr. Stedman, who has visited the house. A second trained nurse has been called, and it is understood that the family have withdrawn their objections to the attendance of a physician.

How the Shamrock Looks.

LONDON, April 22.—A Times correspondent, describing the launching of Shamrock II Saturday, says, "She looks a vessel that will be very easily driven, though her lack of draft will make her a trifle tender, and she will probably do her best in a jackyard topsail breeze."

FLOODS MAKE HAVOC

Immense Destruction In the Wake of April Storm.

MUCH DAMAGE IN AND NEAR PITTSBURG

People Driven From Their Homes, Factories Idle and Crops Ruined. Snow and Rain Commingled Sweep Atlantic Seaboard.

PITTSBURG, April 22.—The most widespread and destructive storm from a material point of view has passed. It has left a zone of ruin 200 miles in diameter. It was unusual in that it possessed so many different features. Cities 70 miles from Pittsburg were tied up by one of the worst snowstorms ever known. While the snowfall was from 18 inches to 3 feet deep, which is not extraordinary, the snow was so wet that it clung in weighty masses to shade and fruit trees and electric wires and poles, bearing them to the earth. It settled on steam and street railroads like wet sand, stopping all traffic and making pedestrianism a feat for only the most hardy. The fall was so heavy and spontaneous in some places that the residents declare it seemed like the bursting of a snowcloud.

A few miles away from these unfortunate towns were municipalities in just as dire straits from rain, but with speedier prospect for relief, as the rain will run off faster than the snow can melt, yet here traffic was practically suspended. Water overflowed and washed out railroad tracks, and hillsides came down and buried the rails. In addition nearly every town on the Ohio river between Pittsburg and Wheeling was in darkness last night. Electric light plants or their wires are damaged, and the gas in the mains is generally turned off. In previous floods this precaution was not taken, and the result was explosions, with loss of life and property. The gas companies will wait until the waters subside sufficiently to permit an inspection of the pipes and to repair any leaks. So half a million or more people are groping in what appears to them the blackest darkness compared with years of cheap and brilliant illumination.

A remarkable feature of the storm is that but few fatalities directly attributable to this cause have been reported. A railroader caught in a wreck caused by a landslide and the death of an old woman from shock are the only ones known so far. There may be many others, but as communication is cut off from many populous places it will be the end of the week before the total can be footed up.

The money loss is just as difficult to foot up. It may reach $3,000,000. The railroads think they have lost $1,000,000. The loss of wages to the army of workers in manufacturing plants up and down the rivers will mount up to $500,000, and the repairs to plants will be a large sum. The damage to stores, stocks, residences and furniture in Pittsburg, Allegheny and towns and cities down the Ohio will probably reach $500,000. The telegraph companies have suffered severely, but cannot yet compute their loss.

In addition there is the enormous indirect damage caused by the almost complete suspension of trade. What that amounts to no one can determine exactly, and estimates simply reflect the conservative or radical character of the computer.

On the Fort Wayne the worst trouble was a snow blackade between Salem and Massillon, O. This began Saturday morning and tied up the road for 24 hours. At 9 o'clock Sunday morning the track was cleared, and trains began moving. The same trouble kept the Cleveland tracks of the Pittsburg and Lake Erie late, five trains having been blockaded at Windom, near Leavittsburg, for 25 hours. This snow fall did not extend east of Newcastle, but at Youngstown, O., it was two feet deep, and the drifts in the cuts north of that city were up to locomotive headlights. The wreck of an Erie train blocked the road so that deep drifts formed undisturbed. Water was two feet deep on the Lake Erie tracks at Sawmill Run, but trains got through.

Big landslides occurred on the Pittsburg and Lake Erie, the Baltimore and Ohio at Soho, on the Panhandle on the south side, the Bessemer at several points and the Allegheny valley near Franklin, Pa. The slide at Soho was 150 feet long, and it required 14 hours' work to clear one track. Through east bound trains were loaded at Thirty-third street, passengers being transferred by street cars.

At Skobo, between Monach and Aliquippa, the Lake Erie suffered its most serious landslide. One hundred feet of the west bound track was carried 50 feet down the steep bank, the whole face of the bank slipping down into the river. On the lines of the Pennsylvania and Baltimore and Ohio to Wheeling great damage is reported, and both lines were tied up for several hours. Five miles of the Pittsburg, Bessemer and Lake Erie tracks were either under water or mud. The bank was continually sliding down on to the tracks, and a large force of men could not keep them clear.

The damage to telegraph poles and lines along all the roads was enormous, and it will take several days to fully repair them.

The submerged districts in Pittsburg and Allegheny are a scene of abject misery. Cellars and in some instances the first floors of stores and dwellings are covered with water. Where the flood has subsided it has left behind a greasy yellow scum two to three inches deep. The residents spent all day trying to restore their homes to some degree of decency and comfort. The damage to furniture and buildings in Allegheny is estimated at about $100,000. It will take two months of hot summer weather to thoroughly dry out these houses. In Pittsburg the loss to residences and stores and goods and the cost of cleaning will amount to about $250,000.

At Carnegie borough, six miles from Pittsburg, the loss is estimated at $40,000, of which the Columbia Bridge works lose $5,000. The other losses range from $75 to $900.

The Westinghouse Electric company had two carloads of finished material for Toronto on the tracks near Turtle creek. The loss may reach $80,000.

The Storm at Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, April 22.—The fierce storm of wind and snow that swept over this city and northern Ohio for a day and a night has gradually subsided. It was followed by a fog so dense that it was almost impossible to see from one side of the street to the other. Notwithstanding the heroic efforts of the telegraph and telephone companies to repair their prostrated lines, there has thus far been little improvement to the service. Not a single wire was working on any direct route between this city and Buffalo or Pittsburg last night. Throughout the day big gangs of men have been at work on the various lines resetting poles and stringing wires. Every available man has been pressed into service by the several companies, and while the work is progressing rapidly it will perhaps be several days before direct communication with points east of Cleveland is fully re-established. Trains on practically all roads entering the city continue to arrive from one to three hours behind schedule time.

Great Damage In Connecticut.

NEW HAVEN, April 22.—Reports from around the state show that the damage done by the floods resulting from rain of the last 36 hours has been very serious. A score of washouts have occurred on the Central New England railroad between Winsted and Hartford. The tracks of the Naugatuck division of the Consolidated railroad and also those of the Winchester Street railroad are completely submerged, and travel has been suspended. At Torrington the Naugatuck river is higher than it has been for a number of years. The section known as East Branch is entirely inundated, and the occupants of houses are unable to leave their homes without wading. The Connecticut river at Hartford is 16 feet above the high water mark and is rising at the rate of an inch an hour. At Farmington the river is higher than it has ever been before. In the eastern part of the state the situation is not so serious, although considerable local damage has been done to roads and electric lines.

Heavy Property Loss Reported.

WHEELING, April 22.—At 9 p. m. the river was 41 feet 4 inches and rising two inches an hour. This shuts Wheeling entirely out of outside communication by rail, and only the big Cincinnati boats are able to run now. In Wheeling, Bellaire, Bridgeport, Benwood and Martins Ferry about 500 houses have been entered by the water, most of the families moving to upper floors. Nearly every manufacturing establishment in the Wheeling district is shut down and can of 71 feet 9 inches. It is conceded that of business, railroad landslides and industrial losses, the aggregate cost of the flood in this district is at least $100,000 probably more. A report from Marietta, O., that a number of people have been drowned near that place is without confirmation.

Driven From Their Homes.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., April 22.—At 6 o'clock last evening the rain and snow which had been falling for 78 hours ceased. The Ohio has passed the danger line of 50 feet and is still rising 3.9 inches an hour, with the Guyandotte, Big Sandy, Tug and Twelve Pole also rising rapidly at all points. Fully ten feet more water is expected here. The Kanawha and New rivers are also still rising. Great damage has resulted throughout the southern and central portions of the state. There is much suffering among people compelled to seek quarters in the hills along the Guyandotte and Twelve Pole. Catlettsburg, Ceredo, Central City, Dingess, Dunlow, Barboursville and many smaller towns are suffering heavily.

Worst Storm In Sixty Years.

ERIE, Pa., April 22.—The snowstorm of Friday night and Saturday and the sleetstorm of Saturday night were the worst known here in 60 years and surpassed the famous blizzard of March, 1888. There is 12 inches of snow on the level, and during Saturday nearly every trolley line in the city was knocked out. Wires were down and crossed and telephone companies blocked. Reports from outside the city, west, east and south, show snow three feet deep and great damage to fruit trees from the wet snow. Suburban stage, mail and trolley lines were abandoned. There were four freight wrecks on the Lake Shore railroad at Girard Junction, this county.

Fruit Trees Ruined.

BUFFALO, April 22.—The deluge of rain that followed in the wake of the big snowstorm continued throughout Sunday, leaving but little of the foot of snow that covered the ground in the morning. A few patches of white here and there where the snow drifted and trees with broken branches are the only signs of the great April snowstorm. Reports from points along the southern shore of Lake Erie say that the damage to fruit trees will be great. The wet snow clung to the branches until they gave way under its weight, leaving only the trunks standing.

Floods In Kentucky.

MAYSVILLE, Ky., April 22.—The residents of Front street in this city began moving up stairs last night on account of the high water. The Ohio river was rising 3½ inches per hour. The government gauge registered 47 feet at 7 p. m. A blinding snowstorm raged all Sunday afternoon. Trains from the east are from four to six hours late. With ten feet more water the gas and electric lights will be shut off, leaving the city in darkness, and that stage is expected. Back water has caused much damage, extending out into the country for miles.

Washout on the D. and H.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., April 22.—A serious washout is reported on the main line of the Delaware and Hudson railroad between Duane and Albany, about 100 feet of track having been washed away by the rains. Another washout occurred on a branch line between Normanskill and Kellys Station. The wrecking train has been sent out to repair it.

Breaking Dam Causes a Washout.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., April 22.—The dam at Middlefield, 30 miles west of here, gave way yesterday afternoon. Several small houses were washed away and the people driven to the hills. No lives were lost. Boston and Albany tracks are washed away, and no trains will be running for two days at least. Wires are down and particulars difficult to obtain.

Great Damage In the Ohio Valley.

CINCINNATI, April 22.—There has been more alarm throughout the Ohio valley on account of the floods than at any period since February, 1884, when the Ohio river reached its highest stage not resume until Tuesday. Taking the loss the fruit crop throughout the Ohio valley is gone, and the damage to crops is very great.

AGUINALDO INTERVIEWED.

Was Never In Battle—American Fighters Praised.

MANILA, Feb. 22.—The Sun publishes an interview with Aguinaldo. The correspondent was greeted cordially by the ex-rebel leader, who was in excellent spirits. Aguinaldo is still noncommittal, fearing that if he talks on the situation he will be misrepresented and his position thus jeopardized. He said:

"I will make no definite statements on public or private questions until I am familiar with the situation. I am learning English and studying the American government."

When asked if he desired to visit the United States, Aguinaldo replied:

"Yes, greatly, but I am at the disposition of the authorities.

"Whatever else I am accused of I am not responsible for the rumors that were circulated while I was in the field."

At this point Colonel Mallory and Lieutenant Colonel Fiebeger, a professor at West Point, entered and took part in the conversation. Aguinaldo dropped his reserve and became reminiscent. He said:

"I was often very close to the Americans. I expected to make my greatest stand at Calumpit. When I abandoned Tarlac, I commanded 1,500 riflemen. I anticipated General Wheaton's landing at San Fabian. I planned to retreat to Nueva Vizcaya, but was frustrated by the brave General Lawton. I slipped through the cordon with 250 men only four hours before the landing party came ashore."

In response to a question concerning his opinion of the American troops he said:

"How terrible are the Americans! They are splendid and ferocious fighters. I no sooner built arsenals and barracks than they destroyed them. Colonel March chased me in the most lively manner for two months in the western mountains until I worked eastward with 30 horses and 80 men. I crossed to Cagayan and lived on the east coast for eight months. My outposts often saw the Americans, but I did not participate in a single engagement, though I once commanded 40,000 riflemen. The watchfulness of the army and navy practically destroyed filibustering to Luzon.

"I do not desire to discuss insular politics. I am undecided as to my future plans. I believe that the Federals will be strong agents in the pacification of the archipelago. This is the first interview that I have given to any one."

TO SAVE HIS COUNTRY.

Minister Wu's Plan For the Betterment of China.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—The Chinese minister, Mr. Wu Ting Fang, is about to make a move of farreaching importance to the affairs of China and one which cannot, it is believed, but engage the favorable attention of all the foreign powers interested in the affairs of the empire. He is preparing a memorial to the Chinese government based upon his intimate acquaintance with the affairs of the western world and pointing out wherein there is the opportunity for China to adopt an enlightened and progressive policy which will bring it into harmony with the sisterhood of nations and at the same time will relieve it from the present perplexities which are crowding upon it at all hands.

Probably the most important feature of the document is its general presentation of the view that the time is now at hand for China to adopt plans of conservative reform. It stating the need and advantage of this the minister's memorial will point to the lesson Japan has given to the world. Up to a few years ago the conditions in China and Japan were almost identical. But by the gradual adoption of modern methods of procedure Japan has brought herself into close communication with the rest of the world and now occupies an enviable position along with the other recognized great powers. Minister Wu holds that there is nothing lacking in the resources of China or in the character of her people to keep her from securing the same advantages which have come to Japan.

The memorial does not, however, confine itself to generalization, but specifies along what lines changes can be made with advantage. As stated, these cover administrative, economic and financial conditions.

A Railway Loan For Korea.

YOKOHAMA, April 22.—The Korean government, according to advices just received from Seoul, the capital of Korea, has decided to borrow from France 5,000,000 yen for the purpose of constructing the Northern railway from Seoul to Wiju. It is asserted that it was his objection to pledging the Korean customs as security for this loan which created a desire in certain quarters for the dismissal of Mr. McLeavy Brown, director general of Korean customs. According to the same advices Vice Admiral Seymour and Sir Claude M. Macdonald, British minister to Japan, have arrived at Chemulpo, Korea, on board the British cruiser Powerful, and it is expected that they will have an audience of Emperor Yi Hieung. The Seoul correspondent adds that Russia is attempting to secure a lease of Chin-hai bay.

The Marlboroughs United Again.

PARIS, April 22.—The Duke of Marlborough, after traveling for a month in the south of Spain, came to Paris a week ago and stopped at the Hotel Bristol, on the Place Vendome. While the duke was in Spain the Duchess of Marlborough has been in Paris, and for the past three weeks she has been staying at her father's mansion in the Avenue des Champs Elysees. After the duke returned from Spain he visited his father-in-law, where he saw the duchess. Yesterday morning the duchess drove to the Hotel Bristol, where she was joined by the duke, and together the Marlboroughs proceeded to London. This would indicate if discord existed between the Duke and Duchess of Marlborough it has been smoothed over.

New Departure at Champlain.

NEW YORK, April 22.—The officers of the Roman Catholic assembly which gathers yearly at Plattsburg, N. Y., have just announced the programme of activities for the session of nine weeks which opens in July. A new departure is the introduction of three special study courses of six weeks each for the benefit of professional people—viz, a course of logic under the charge of the Rev. Dr. Siegfried of Overbrook university, a course in Shakespeare by Professors Taafe and Coleman of the College of the City of New York and a course in the writing of English in charge of the Rev. John Talbot Smith.

WHAT HAS BEEN DONE

Work of the New York Legislature Summarized.

GOVERNOR'S PLANS WELL CARRIED OUT

State Revenues Increased Over $3,700,000, and a Saving In Expenditures of Over $1,700,000 Effected—A Democratic Criticism.

ALBANY, April 22.—The legislature of 1901 has practically completed all of its labor except the fixing of the tax rate and the passing of the Greater New York charter amendments. It will go down into state political history as one of the few legislatures that has accomplished at least 90 per cent of the work which the chief executive of the state outlined for it in his message, and Governor Odell will be the first governor in many years whose dominance over the component branches of government has been so great that 90 per cent of his recommendations have been carried out.

This is the more notable because many of his suggestions were of a radical nature and aimed at methods of taxation and retrenchment, subjects that have always been the most prominent in raising opposition.

It is estimated that the revenues of the state will be increased at least $3,700,000 annually by the tax bills suggested by the governor and put on the statute books by the legislature. It is also estimated that at least $1,700,000 will be saved by the consolidation of the various departments, the cutting down of legislative printing contract prices and the general retrenchment in other quarters. Indeed it is possible for the adjourning legislature to make the tax rate for the coming fiscal year almost nothing if all the revenues to be derived are anticipated.

Here is a list of the revenue producing measures suggested by Governor Odell in his annual message and which have become or will become laws:

Imposing a tax of 1 per cent on savings bank capital, surplus and undivided profits. Expected revenue, $700,000.

Imposing a tax of 1 per cent on insurance companies. Expected revenue, $700,000.

Imposing a tax of 1 per cent on trust companies. Expected revenue, $1,300,000.

Imposing a tax on foreign corporations. Expected revenue, $400,000.

A total increased revenue of $3,100,000 annually will, it is believed, be brought to the state by these measures, and when they are in full operation next year it is thought that the direct tax rate will be abolished.

Of 42 suggestions for legislation made to the legislature by Governor Odell 36 have been made or will be made laws and only six have failed to pass.

The leaders in the two houses naturally have somewhat divergent views on the results of legislation. Leader J. P. Allds of the Republicans in the assembly says that there is not only a great gain in revenues by this winter's legislation, but also a reduction in the tax rate and a reduction of nearly $2,000,000 in expenses of government. Leader Frisbie of the Democrats says that there is no economy shown and that if the new revenues were properly applied the direct tax could be abolished. Senator Thomas F. Donnelly of the Democrats in the senate says that the worst feature of the legislature is the flagrant manner in which home rule for cities has been trampled under foot.

St. Elmo's Fire on a Ship.

NEW YORK, April 22.—Warned by a thunder clap like the crack of doom, with the sudden wind whistling through her rigging, the Orange Nassau of the Royal Dutch West India line, which has just arrived here from a South American port, ran into an electrical storm on Saturday that struck terror into the passengers. With the lightning playing all about her, the ship seemed to be charging a heavenly battery of artillery, when, with an unexpectedness equal to the breaking of the gale, the masts and rigging were illuminated in the half gloom by great balls of light, varicolored St. Elmo's fire. Already benumbed with fear, the steerage passengers cried aloud in their terror at this new visitation, and many, dropping to their knees, prayed and wept for protection.

Watching For an Anarchist.

MADRID, April 22.—It is reported here that on the arrival at Vigo of the German steamer Halle, Captain Stromer, from Buenos Ayres March 27, it was ascertained that there was an anarchist on board believed to be implicated in the plot against the lives of several European sovereigns formed in Rosario, Argentina, and Paterson, N. J. The man refused to land. According to El Imparcial of this city the German police are awaiting the arrival of the Halle at Bremen to arrest him.

To Leave the State's Employ.

ALBANY, April 22.—William H. Buckley, for 11 years connected with the state insurance department, passing through the several stages of clerk, secretary to Superintendent Pierce and finally promoted to third deputy superintendent, which position he has retained under Superintendents Payne and Hendricks, has resigned to take effect May 1, having accepted an offer from the New York Life Insurance company to attach himself to their legal department.

The Twenty-sixth Regiment Lands.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 22.—The Twenty-sixth regiment, which arrived on the transport Garonne, landed yesterday and went into camp at the Presidio preparatory to being mustered out. The Garonne will be sent to Seattle, where she will be released by the government. The Garonne brought the unusual number of 64 stowaways.

Crops Killed In Georgia.

ATLANTA, April 22.—Many farmers declare their cotton crops were either killed or badly damaged by Saturday night's cold weather. The seed supply is said to be exhausted, and the problem is serious. One field of 15 acres of watermelons was killed by the cold weather, and several farmers report peaches damaged and dropping from the trees.

Recent British Gains.

LONDON, April 22.—The war office has received a dispatch from Lord Kitchener reporting that since April 18 various British commanders have taken 81 prisoners, together with 100,000 rounds of small ammunition and many horses, cattle and wagons. Lord Kitchener reports also the surrender of 20 Boers since that date.

Problem For Jersey.

One of the most serious problems of sewage disposal of the age now confronts the State of New Jersey. Something must be done to stop the present pollution of the Passaic river. There has been a great demand from many of the municipalities which are affected for a special session of the New Jersey Legislature in order to obtain the necessary legislation. It is doubtful, however, if anything is done until the Legislature holds its next regular session.

When only small settlements existed along the Passaic river, the pollution was not noticeable. Now, however, that several great cities stand on the banks of that stream and empty their sewage into it, the river becomes one huge sewer and is a serious menance to the health of the communities which line its banks. It will be necessary to provide some plan for the disposal of the sewage of these cities and towns. A sewer to tidewater from that section would cost so much as to be practically impossible. Some sort of disposal works will therefore be necessary.

While an error in building a sewage disposal plant for a single city is very expensive, how much more so will be an error in any gigantic public works, as will be necessary to care for the sewage of the combined municipalities which now sewer into the Passaic. It will therefore require the greatest care possible to devise a system whereby the pollution of the river will be stopped and the State will not be involved in even greater trouble and expense through the establishment of a plant which would fail to accomplish the ends for which it was designed.

To Plainfield the present situation in the Passaic district shows that the city authorities were wise in not building a trunk sewer to the Raritan river as it would only be a question of time when New Brunswick and the other towns on the Raritan river would place Plainfield in the same predicament as are now Paterson, Passaic and the other municipalities which are now daily turning millions of gallons of sewage into the waters of the Passaic river. The day will come when Somerville and Bound Brook will be compelled to find other means of sewage disposal than emptying their systems of sewers into the Raritan as at present.

The editor of the Somerset Democrat is evidently not conversant with the situation in Plainfield when he begins to criticise The Daily Press for advocating the use of meters. He says that when meters are installed the water bills will be higher than they are now. If he took the trouble to look up the matter he would find that where meters are being used the rates are much lower than where the bill is figured according to the number of taps. A comparison of similar buildings standing side by side, a meter being used in one and the owner of the othes paying according to the number of taps, can be seen any day. Meters are cheaper and far more equitable as the Plainfield people know by experience. The only question is to persuade the water company to install them again.

The members of the Borough Board of Health are determined that the people of that municipality shall have a pure supply of milk. It was that determination which led to the arrest and conviction of the milk dealer whose supply of milk was found not to come up to the requirements of the State Board of Health. The milk dealer purchased his supply from the farmers, he says. If the individuals who are responsible for the improper condition of the milk can be discovered, they should be brought before the proper authorities and made to suffer as well.

The opening chapter of a "Tragic Disappearance," by Will N. Harben, is published in today's issue of The Daily Press. The story is a strong one from the pen of a well known author and is sure to find many interested readers. The story will now be continued daily until completed. It is the first of a series of new stories, for the publication of which The Daily Press has made arrangements with The National Press. To-day's installment will be found on page six, where hereafter it will be a regular feature.

The spring vacation in the borough schools will end tomorrow morning. While the city schools and a vast majority of the other schools throughout the country enjoyed their spring vacation at Easter time, the borough educational authorities postponed their vacation period so that a number of the teachers might take advantage of a trip to the National Capital.

The offer of a Boston syndicate to run a water supply plant for the borough, keeping the rates below the level of the present ones, and then, at the expiration a term of fifty years, present the plant to the borough, is an unusual one. It is evident that the capitalists behind the plan believe that there is money in the water supply business.

All the efforts of the city street department will not keep the bed of Green brook clean if the waste paper is allowed to be blown into it every time the wind is at all high.

Baptists Not Afraid of Rain.

The services at the First Baptist church yesterday were well attended. In the morning one hundred and twenty worshippers were present, and in the evening about half that number. Dr. Yerkes preached interesting sermons at both services. In the evening George W. Smith sang a solo.

Repairing Borough Alarm Clock.

The clock which regulates the striking of the borough fire alarm in the morning and evening, has been out of order for some days past. This morning Alonzo Brokaw, the electrician, overhauled the time piece and its electrical connections.

AT THE THEATRES.

Something About the Attractions Which Plainfield Theatre-Goers May Care to Witness.

The vocal contingent of John W. Vogel & Arthur Deming's big minstrels, who will appear at Music Hall tomorrow night, is unusually strong, and will no doubt cause quite a surprise to those who favor this form of entertainment. E. A. Okley, who has a world-wide reputation as a minstrel vocal director, will have charge of this portion of the entertainment, and it goes without saying that the singing will be of a high standard. Thomas Merrick, C. B. Samson, Earl Taylor, John P. Moore, F. A. Tolver, Hugh Brown, Percy Reed and Master Georgie Jones, the phenomenal boy baritone, will be heard to good advantage. See the big parade tomorrow noon.

* * * * * *

Thomas Jefferson, whose portrayal of "Rip Van Winkle" last season caused so much comment for the able manner in which he presented this grand old play, comes to Music Hall again on Thursday night. Thomas, it is said, shows the careful training of a master's hand and the ease of his manner and the art of his adaptation are said to be made even more striking by the quaint dialect which flows so naturally from his lips. He is said to have inherited a great deal of his father's talent and is soliciting public approval. A delightful evening's entertainment is assured.

* * * * * *

The benefit of 'Mique" Muldowney should be quite an event and one not to be overlooked. It is set down for Tuesday, April 30, at Music Hall, and "Uncle Tom's Cabin" will be the play. But in addition to this there will be a number of volunteers and hosts of other novelties all of which will be duly announced.

* * * * * *

WORKING ON WATER QUESTION

BOROUGH COMMITTEE IS IN COMMUNICATION WITH INTERESTED PARTIES.

Expected That Engineers Will Soon Make Tests to Find Out Where Water Can be Obtained.

The municipal ownership committee of the Borough Council is diligently at work on matters pertaining to a satisfactory solution of the water question which is now vexing the councilmanic body. At the next meeting of the Council, a definite report of the committee's labors is promised.

At present all the members of the committee are retient about discussing the propositions, which are before them, but it is known that communication is being held between the committee and various responsible parties, who express a desire to locate a water plant in the borough. One man, in a position to know, has said during the past few days that from the steps already taken it can be safely predicted that within a comparatively short time the residents of the borough will be supplied with water at a greatly reduced rate.

It is understood that within the course of a few days competent engineers will come to North Plainfield for the purpose of making soundings or tests for water and also to estimate the approximate cost of installing a complete plant to supply the borough at least with cheaper water.

Will Carry Case up.

Several days ago William Sweeney, representing R. O Howell, brought an action on contract against Fernand Brown, of Webster place, in Justice Mosher's court. It is said that the case was given a hearing, judgment rendered and an execution issued before the defendant's counsel, J. P. D. Kirch, had time to appear and offer a plea. Mr. Kirch has now obtained a writ of supercedeas and will carry the case up.

Dumped Paper Into Green Brook.

A resident of the Babcock building called at the office of The Daily Press this morning and declared that he just seen a wagon load of waste paper, principally the refuse from bill boards, dumped into Green brook. CHAPTER I.

There was a touch of the destroying breath of autumn in the keen wind which swept over Lyndhurst, an old colonial mansion on the Hudson near New York. The big trees on the terraced lawn and in the dense wood behind the house were shedding their sere and yellow foliage, and in the extensive garden on the left of the entrance not even a belated flower could be seen in the well-arranged parterres. Here stood a marble statue, there a playing fountain; the entire aspect was cold and cheerless.

Within the mansion quite a different scene presented itself. A footman in livery stood in the vast hall; white-capped, white-aproned maid-servants moved about with soft tread and solicitous mien. Five o'clock tea was being served in the quaint Elizabethan drawing room. A man less than 40 years of age, tall, handsome and with a military bearing, reclined in a quaintly carved easy chair before the glowing wood fire with its old-fashioned brass fender and dragon-shaped andirons. The man's face was full, dark and round; his high, broad brow suggested considerable power of intellect; he wore no beard, and his short thick hair was touched with gray. He had but one questionable feature; an expert physiognomist might have said that it was a pity such a strong face should be marred by a mouth slightly inclined towards weakness. His wife, who sat near him, was a handsome woman; she was perhaps as old as he. Her complexion was clear and good; her teeth were fine and even; between her parted lips they caught the red firelight and threw it back broken into tiny gleams. Her hands and feet were small and well shaped, her body possessed an undulating ease of movement that gratified the visual sense of the beholder. Her hair was dark brown, her eyes black and sharp, and these things, with the general contour of her shrewd face, hinted at French extraction.

When the tea was brought in a young lady who had been playing a Beethoven sonata on the grand piano in the large bow-window turned to another girl of about her own age who stood by her ready to depart.

"You really must stop for a cup of tea, Lottie," she said, laying her jeweled hand on the arm of the visitor.

"I am sorry, but I shall miss my train if I stay even a moment longer; as it is I shall have to urge your coachman to drive rapidly."

"Oh, surely you are not going, Miss Dean," protested Maj. Goddard, rising and coming towards them. "We really see so little of you, you know, and when you do honor us it is generally only to the extent of a pop call. I am really going to incite my ward to downright rebellion against you and all the rest of her old school friends."

"That is right, Guardian." The pianist smiled as she rose; "you must stand by me. Lottie has such a nice time in the city that she is getting above such a quiet retreat as this."

"Oh, it isn't that," laughed the accused. "I do enjoy it so much here and I am coming to pay you a good visit before long. Really, I am looking forward to it with a great deal of pleasure."

"Well, until then we shall have a truce," cried the major, and he escorted the guest to the door where his carriage was waiting. As he reentered the drawing room the expression of his wife's face riveted his attention. Mrs. Goddard was watching Miss Briscoe, who had left the piano and was pouring the tea at the low brass table in the center of the room. The look she was giving his ward was so full of malignant dislike that the genial face of the major grew grave. He seated himself in the chair he had just left and eyed his wife attentively. Just then Miss Briscoe brought a cup of tea to him.

"You'll find it exactly right, Guardian," she said with a smile. "I not only know the number but I now understand the size of the lumps of sugar you want."

"It is always right, Blanche, when you pour it for me." He would have added further pleasantries to this had he not felt the rigid stare of his wife upon him.

"You have nice manners, I must say," Mrs. Goddard suddenly jerked out, "but I presume you were taught in that Fifth Avenue school to serve gentlemen before ladies."

The beautiful girl flushed to her wavy golden hair.

"Oh, do pardon me, Mrs. Goddard, I am so forgetful; Guardian looked so tired after his journey to town that I—"

"Oh, it doesn't matter in the least," and this retort was emphasized by Mrs. Goddard's rising, pushing past the girl and pouring her own tea. Her face was dark with suppressed rage as she took her cup to a window-seat behind the piano and hastily drank it after the manner of angry individuals.

"Never mind," said Maj. Goddard to Blanche, who, with a look of deepening embarrassment on her face, had taken a seat near him; "never mind, it can't be helped."

"I wouldn't have displeased her for the world, on—on your account, if for nothing else. I do try my best to get on with her, but somehow I never make the slightest progress in the right direction. I am so awkward."

Their voices were so low that they did not reach the tea-drinker in the bow window, but she seemed to know that she was the subject of the guarded colloquy, for she glared over her cup at them like a sullen, infuriated animal.

"I assure you it is not your fault, dear," went on Goddard. "You see when I told her the other day that all my mining ventures had fallen through and that I have now only this estate and a paltry ten thousand a year to keep it up on, it completely broke her to pieces. She counted on my affairs turning out millions, and I did not know it before, but she had laid a great many plans that must now fall to the ground."

"Plans?" said the girl, in surprise.

"Yes, she had consulted an architect about building a house at Newport and one on Fifth avenue. Oh, it was an awful blow to her! I wish she could put a better face on the matter and not take it so very hard. As far as I am concerned, I had made up my mind that matters were not so bad, after all, but she is ambitious, you see, and I never was. I have grown tired trying to get rich. I would like to rest, but—"

They heard Mrs. Goddard's cup and saucer rattling as she advanced to the tea table. Then she turned to the door suddenly and her heavy silk skirts gave forth a rustling sound as she passed haughtily out into the hall.

"O, I say, Jeanne!" exclaimed her husband, rising and going to the door, but she had gone out on the lawn, and when he came back to the fire he and his ward saw her walking to and fro on the asphalt drive. A moment later she turned and gave an inaudible order to James, the footman, and he came out to her shortly with a revolver and a box of cartridges.

Goddard went to the window and Blanche followed.

"She's going to practice shooting," he said. "When she is full of anger she seems to find a vent for it in target practice. Watch her; she certainly has the most wonderful marksmanship of any woman alive."

The major could not help this exhibition of pride in his wife, and he seemed to hold his breath in boyish expectation as Mrs. Goddard took deliberate aim at a white envelope which James had pinned against the trunk of a tree about 50 feet from where she stood.

Five reports followed one another in rapid succession.

"Good! Wonderful!" ejaculated the major, "she hit it four times out of five. I have no idea," and as he said this Goddard's tone lost a part of its enthusiasm, "I have no idea where she acquired her skill. She always laughs mysteriously when I ask her. It was while she lived in the west, however, I am sure. Often she lets slip little allusions to ranch life and hunting on the plains."

Blanche made no response; there was a confidential note in her guardian's voice which strongly appealed to her sympathy. It shocked her sensitive idealistic nature to have him admit that there were pages in his wife's history which even he had not been allowed to read. They saw Mrs. Goddard toss the revolver on the grass toward the attendant and turn into the house. A moment later she passed through the hall and went up the stairway to her own apartment.

"There is one thing I can not quite forgive in her, dear Blanche." And the major caught the soft tapering hand of his ward and led her back to the fire. "She married me. She must have been influenced to become my wife by the fortune she knew I possessed. She betrays that in a good many ways. She was ambitious; but persons born with craving desires are not to blame for having them, and so I try to overlook this fault in her. Being a poor milliner, who came in contact with the rich just far enough to want to have means, it must have been a temptation to her to marry a man with money. I don't say that she does not love me, for I really think she does. I should be very miserable if she did not."

"My poor guardian," said Blanche, tenderly. "You deserve so much. You ought to have all things that belong to good men. I have been very unhappy ever since you told me of your financial loss. You said, I think, that my money was safe?"

"Perfectly. I saw to that. I remembered your father's last words of confidence in me and I never have taken the slightest risk with your interests. Your fortune is as secure as if it were in the Bank of England, and the entire amount is earning a good rate of interest."

"But I have no use for so much money," said the girl, almost pleadingly, "and I would be so glad if you would take what you need of it."

The major flushed. "It would be a cowardly thing to do, and it would call forth much criticism; no, your money is yours; your father saw that I was sufficiently repaid for my services, besides, nothing less than your entire fortune would give Jeanne all she craves. She did not sleep a wink last night. I heard her walking constantly from the moment she retired till dawn. I went to her door twice and rapped, but she would not admit me. Sometimes I am afraid," and the major touched his broad forehead significantly.

"Poor guardian!" There was a suggestion of tears in Blanche's eyes and her voice quivered. "If you won't let me help you with my useless money what can I do? Do you fancy this—this trouble has not made me unhappy, too? Your face is my barometer. When it indicates that your spirits are depressed my sky becomes clouded, and then I don't care for anything else. It used to be so while I was at school. Your visit on Friday was the sole event of the week, and I studied hard according to my promise, that I might be worthy of it. I was so proud of you. The girls used to watch for you to drive up and they actually raved over you. They all thought you were so handsome."

But Maj. Goddard was not following her with attention.

"I have been wanting all this week to put a candid question to you, Blanche," he remarked, irrelevantly. "I am a little afraid you will not fully understand my motive, but I do want your opinion—a woman can judge another woman's heart better than a man can, even if he is her husband. I want to know, Blanche, if you think Jeanne cares for me a little bit?"

The girl could not command her suddenly roused emotions; she started and her long lashes fell before his eager, almost breathless stare. It was as if the question had been a shot which reached the very citadel of her most sacred convictions.

"Guardian, you must not—you ought not—" she seemed unable to proceed.

"I know I ought to be ashamed of myself for admitting that I have doubts, but since my loss and her strange reception of the news I can't help feeling as I do. Oh! Blanche, do you think she only married me for the fortune I had?"

"I did not know her then," said Blanche, evasively, her face pale and rigid. "I am too young to read the—the motives of women older than I am. I only know, if—if—"

"If what, Blanche?"

"If I had been your wife I should have loved you more in misfortune than ever. Oh, I am so sorry for you! It is breaking my heart." She raised her handkerchief to her eyes and began to cry softly.

Goddard pushed her head back gently till she was forced to look into his eyes.

"Don't do that, little girl," he said, tenderly, "it breaks me all to pieces to see a woman's tears. I wish the old days could somehow come back; those days when I dreamed of a young trusting wife who would love me for myself and draw me away from evil inclinations. You never guessed it, little girl, but—" he seemed to realize that he was going too far, for he broke off short and after a moment's pause he began again: "Never was a man a greater slave to a woman's whims than I am to hers. As much as I love honesty, honor, truth and upright living, I am afraid that woman could make me renounce it all if she wished. To me she is as powerful as opium to its most abject slave. I must do something, Blanche; these thoughts are maddening."

He touched the bell. "Get out my horse," he said to the servant. "I shall take a ride."

He went out to change his dress and his ward sat down before the fire. She heaved a great sigh.

"I wonder if she will desert him," she thought; "it would be just like her, now that she can no longer use him."

A well-known gardener of Pemberton, N. J., contracted chronic diarrhoea in the U. S. service during the Civil War, and has suffered from it and from consequent diseases of the stomach and liver ever since. "I went to see several doctors," he writes, "but they did me no good. I have taken all kinds of medicine I have seen advertised for relief. I went to Camden one day and saw a store window full of Ripans Tabules. I had seen the medicine advertised so often that I thought I would buy a package. It took it and felt better; they did me so much good that I will keep on taking them. My stomach is all right and I can eat a good meal. They are the best medicine I ever took."

SHOPPERS.

A Few Ways by Which They Try the Patience of Their Fellow Men.

The term shopper is undoubtedly of the feminine gender. Now and then men buy things, but that does not make them shoppers. You can tell the true shopper at a glance. It is she who spends her entire day among the stores searching with keen eyes for bargains, and it is she who is the despair of the salespeople. Recently during a busy day I stood in a store and watched a crowd of customers. Afterward I wondered how the unfortunate men and women behind the counters ever kept their tempers at all. It is with the idea of coming to the help of these much tried people that I am going to call the attention of women shoppers to the six particularly heinous offenses of which they are guilty:

First and Foremost.—Bringing children into the large stores. Apart from the harm that is done to your child by placing it in an impure and overcrowded atmosphere there is the great discomfort which it causes to other people. The shopping district is no place for a child. It soon becomes nervous and fretful, it insists upon handling everything and getting into every one's way, and it is the most dreaded plague of the floorwalkers and salesmen who are responsible for the safety of the goods and the order of the store.

Second.—Asking questions of saleswomen who are busy. I have always noticed that if two girls are standing behind a counter one of whom is busy and the other idle the customer will invariably address the former.

Third.—Making the salesman take down all his goods when you really don't know what you do want. Make up your mind before you enter the store and if possible write a list stating the number of yards of material and the price you are able to pay. If you want samples, say so in the first place, and you will be cheerfully accommodated.

Fourth.—Trying to find out the saleswoman who waited on you last when you have forgotten her name and almost all of her description. I have seen six people, including the floorwalker, engaged in a wild hunt for a mythical employee whose description was furnished by an absentminded customer. If you want the same girl to wait on you again, take down her name and don't trust to your memory, thereby making people lose their valuable time.

Fifth.—Buying in haste, repenting at leisure and then returning the goods in a more or less fresh condition. Some people don't hesitate to keep goods a couple of months. They even wear a pair of gloves and then attempt to send them back. Goods should never be returned unless absolutely necessary.

Sixth.—Looking at articles to get the style without the slightest intention of buying anything. This is the most heartless offense of all, particularly in stores where the number of sales influences the employee's position. An offender of this kind, however, is sure to be punished. She is soon "spotted," and then no one will wait on her.

MAUD ROBINSON.

WHEN THE BABY CRIES.

It Is Sometimes Advisable, Says an Authority, to Give Him a Rest.

After reading a very clever article on the subject of crying babies I feel like giving my opinion on the subject. When baby shuts his eyes tight and, opening his mouth to its fullest width, gives vent to a roar of outraged feeling, mother and nurse rack their brains to find out what is the matter. If they discover no evidences of pins, colic or other well known infant woes, they give up in despair and decide that baby is simply cross. Then they jounce him up and down, sing in strident tones and all but stand him on his head in their mistaken efforts to amuse (?) him. How would you like to be shaken around in this way when you were simply nervous? And ten chances to one that is the trouble with the child. Baby is like the grown ups—he has his bad days—and shaking a rattle in his ear or flashing a mirror before his eyes won't help him. Treat the baby with your own remedy—give him a rest. Take off his clothes and lay him in a quiet, darkened room, where he can have peace and quiet and forget his troubles in sleep.

H.

It is difficult for a woman to keep a secret. And I know more than one man who is a woman.—Lafontaine.

Training the Sight.

Lord Wolseley having lately remarked upon the good sight of the Boers as one cause at least of their good shooting, and having ascribed this good sight to its constant exercise in the open air, Mr. Brudenell Carter has pointed out that it is not merely a question of open air, but of the training of the sight upon things that are afar off and difficult to see. "Vision," he says, "like every other nerve function, must be cultivated for the attainment of a high degree of excellence. The visual power of London children is not cultivated by their environment. They see the other side of the street in which they live, and the carts and omnibuses of the thoroughfares. They scarcely ever have the visual attention directed strongly to any object which is difficult to see, or which subtends a visual angle approaching the limits of visuality; hence the seeing function is never exerted to anything like what should be the extent of its powers. With a country child the case is widely different." Mr. Carter would like to see a place given to excellence of vision among the various physical qualifications which are habitually tested by competition, and for which prizes are awarded.—London Hospital.

Birth Rappers.

In some of the towns of Holland, especially those which in past times suffered much from the Spanish invaders under King Philip II. of Spain, there is prevailing the strange custom of announcing the birth of a child by hanging to the front door a rapper or knocker, called "klopper," enveloped in linen, lace or cloth. This usage, still observed, particularly by the patrician families, is said to derive its origin from a Spanish ordinance, according to which soldiers seeking quarters were forbidden to be billetted at houses where new-born children had arrived. A half-wrapped up "klopper" announces the birth of a girl; one wholly enveloped that of a boy. Modern fashion demands costly lace, which in some cases is inherited from generation to generation, and, again, the lace employed to be wound round the mother's wedding bouquet is often used for this purpose. A rapper's red shield denotes the birth of a, son; one half red and half white that of a daughter. The good Hollanders will, in time, be looking for a "klopper" at "ons Willeminje's" door.—Baltimore Sun.

Scientific Farming in Germany.

Recent reports to our department of agriculture indicate that farming is conducted in Germany on more improved and scientific principles than anywhere else in the world. The German farmers employ less machinery but more chemistry. They pay very close attention to the fertilization of the soil. Yet with all their efforts, and all the advantages of their advanced science, they are unable to fully supply the demand of the population of Germany for breadstuffs. They do supply seven-eighths of that demand, but the remaining one-eighth, which has to be imported from abroad, amounted in 1899 to more than 50,000,000 bushels of wheat alone.—Youth's Companion.

Boston's Washington Medal.

Locked up in a safe at the Boston public library is the gold medal awarded George Washington by the continental congress by a vote March 27, 1776, for his services in expelling the British from Boston, March 17, 1776. As a souvenir of the anniversary of evacuation day, about 80,000 medals, made from this design and one-half the size of the original, were distributed to the school children of Boston recently. The medal was bought from one of Washington's heirs 25 years ago.—Indianapolis News.

Bored Holes with Bullets.

A novel method of boring holes in a flat bar of iron was recently adopted on a ship where a breakdown occurred. To repair the breakage it was necessary to make bolt holes in a spar bar, and as the engineer was without the appliances required for the purpose he marked the exact places in chalk and then fired a 30 caliber bullet through each from a new pattern Winchester rifle.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Wise Beyond His Years.

Anxious Mother — Tommy, your teacher says you are the poorest scholar in your class.

Tommy—That's nothing. It is only because I don't answer all the questions she is asking every day. It isn't wise to tell all you know to a woman, even if she does happen to be a schoolteacher.—Boston Transcript.

Speculative Feature of California Oil Fields

It Pays to Investigate Before Buying Too Heavily in Western Oil Stocks

BEGINNING north of San Francisco, as far as Humboldt county, and running in a southwesterly direction following the coast line for a distance exceeding 800 miles, with an average width of 60 miles, extends the vast oil belt that is now making California famous and amassing wealth for many. That it will far exceed that made in all branches of mining in the state within the next ten years appears altogether probable.

In Chicago, as well as throughout the east generally, immense capital has been invested in the new developments, some to good advantage, more with no possible chance of success, as will be seen hereafter.

There can be no form of speculation offering greater possibilities for large, quick and comparatively safe returns, than that placed in a legitimate oil property. None, on the other hand, which is more abused and the gullible deprived of their hard-earned savings by an unscrupulous class of speculators.

The number of companies organized for the production of oil, incorporated, some in Arizona, which is not so exacting in its laws governing corporations, and others in California, now number well into the thousands. Out of these, a few hundred, at the most, are making a statement of facts in their claims for public support, and are warranted in having a large capitalization. The balance, and they are innumerable, capitalized at anywhere from $100,000 to $2,000,000, are simply making fraudulent statements with a view of getting what money they can for their own benefit, regardless of the outcome to their stockholders. This is but too easily accomplished by the swelling of expense accounts for operation, supposedly fabulous prices paid for land which may not have cost them five dollars an acre, and last, but not least, the voting to themselves, the directors, princely salaries, which they earn by sitting in their sumptuously furnished offices a few hours a day and waiting for more of the gullible to come in and deposit their cash.

NEWHALL.

One of the Busiest Oil Fields in California—Forty Miles North of Los Angeles.

It would be far from right to generally condemn the stock companies, many of which have proved a veritable bonanza for their stockholders.

Concerning the legitimate companies and operators in this field, even they, shrewd and experienced as they are, meet with severe obstacles in a field where the conditions are altogether different from the eastern fields, and obstacles never encountered there face them every day. In one respect alone is there a marked advantage over the eastern territory—that of fairly certain indications for the experienced operator to locate producing territory. The oil belts or, properly speaking, "anticlinals" are well marked and definrock tilted at an angle of 45 degrees—sometimes less—and often, though not always, showing seepages of oil or traces of bitumen in the interstices.

The question of location being decided upon, where oil is to be found with reasonable certainty, then comes the matter of operation, which here is a most difficult one. The bane of southern California, the question of water, has first to be contended with. Sometimes by drilling but a short distance water is encountered; but this is an exception, and more often water has to be hauled in tank wagons a great distance—sometimes 50 miles over the desert trails through the rolling sands, and as high as $500 a month has been paid for sufficient water for running the machinery and drilling purposes on a single well.

Machinery, casing and pipe, coming from the eastern mills, is of course high in price, and again has to be able to the naked eye. These consist in strata several miles long and usually from half a mile to two miles wide, of jagged sand or conglomerate hauled great distances at large expense. Therefore, this cost of operation, even when not meeting with accidents, is large and moreover most uncertain, the pitch of the formation encountered from top to bottom of a well being often such as to stick the drilling tools and cause other various expensive accidents. Barring the latter, a fair average estimate of the cost of wells in the new fields, of a usual depth of 1,800 feet, can be put down approximately in the neighborhood of $12,000, yet such a well in the east would not exceed a cost of $3,000.

PICO CANYON WELL.

Oldest Well in California—Production 2,000,000 Barrels.

In return for discouraging obstacles, it must be said that the wells are usually large, producing anywhere from 100 to 5,000 barrels per day, and soon paying out their great cost if successful at all in puncturing the "pay streak," and the proportion of "dry holes" is insignificant as compared to the east. The oldest-known producing well in California, the old Pico canyon well at Newhall, drilled in 1876 in a very crude way, has actually produced over 2,000,000 barrels of oil to date, and is still a good producing well. Properly handled, with all modern improvements, it is questionable whether it would not have proved the largest well in the world, and its staying qualities were remarkable.

The quality of the oil and methods of transportation are the last important factors to be looked into. The first varies very much, the ordinary fuel oil bringing an average of one dollar a barrel, while that at Newhall and other points brings as high as three dollars. Fuel oil constitutes more than three-quarters of the total production, but more of the better quality, with a paraffine base, is being discovered daily.

While a ready market is found for all that can be produced—all the railroads and factories finding it so economical that they are changing all their machinery for the burning of oil—as much cannot be said for the methods of transportation, which have not kept pace with the increased production, necessitating the erection of considerable tankage and sometimes shutting down of wells, but this is being rapidly remedied. It has been the object of this article to show clearly all the possible disadvantages to be met with in operating in this new territory. It is rich—rich beyond all possible expectancy in the oily fluid that has made millions for many, but it also requires more care and capital than any other field ever discovered, and it must not be assumed that fortunes can be made here out of nothing. With the far eastern trade increasing; with oil gradually, but surely replacing all other fuels; with scarcely a quarter of the productive area yet discovered, no field offers greater possibilities than this one, and with it all the finest country and climate in the United States.

PASSAIC VALLEY FLOODED.

Heavy Rains Caused River to Overflow Its Banks Near Stirling.

For the first time in two years the banks of the Passaic river are overflowed as a result of the heavy rain during the last few days. The low lands are completely inundated and the road leading from Mt. Bethel to Millington is covered with three feet of water, making traveling dangerous.

At Stirling the inhabitants are compelled to travel in some places in boats. This is due to the fact that the town and the river are on a level and the rise in the river has caused a flood in the town.

A MISPLACED SWITCH.

Two Men Badly Injured and Two Trains Wrecked Near Elizabeth in Consequence.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, April 22—A misplaced switch caused a collision between a work train and a New York through passenger train shortly before 7 o'clock this morning at Bayway Junction.

Both locomotives were badly wrecked, and the first coach on the passenger train telescoped with the engine's tender. A number of men on the workmen's train were bruised and hurt. The only injuries of consequence were sustained by John Lintner, who had two ribs broken, and George Lapp, who received several bad cuts on the head. On the passenger train no one was injured.

On investigation it was found that the switch was wrongly set for the work train.

Origin of the Toast.

If the celebrated Beauty of Bath in the days of Charles the Second, who was the original "toast," had been identified by the Tatler, when it traced the derivation of this word, which two centuries ago was a pleasant and entirely unnecessary excuse for much drinking, one important phase of the social season in New York might be dedicated to her. The distinguished editors of the Tatler were somewhat lacking in news sense, according to modern standards. They didn't search the musty inn records of Bath for the lady's name, and probably they wouldn't have found it if they had. The Tatler's picturesque explanation of the present secondary meaning of the word toast has ever since been accepted as adequate. A celebrated beauty was discovered in the Cross Bath by some of her admirers, one of whom took a glass of the water in which she stood and drank her health. Another gallant, well fuddled with wine, offered to jump in, and swore that although he liked not the liquor, he would have the toast, this being an allusion to the usage of the time of drinking with a toast at the bottom of the glass. "This whim," says the Tatler, naively, "gave foundation to the present honor which is done to the lady we mention in our liquors who has ever since been called a toast."—George B. Mallon, in Ainslee's.

Better If He Had.

Coming home rather late one night, old Jones discovered a country yokel with a lantern standing by the kitchen door.

"Young man," said he, "what are you doing here?"

"I've come a-courting, sur."

"A-courting? What do you mean?"

"Well, I'm a follower of Mary, the kitchen maid, sur."

"Do you usually carry a lantern when you are on such errands?" asked the old man, sarcastically.

"Yes, sur, always."

"Don't tell me such nonsense. You had better be off quickly—courting with a lantern, indeed! In my young days I never used such a thing."

"No, sur," replied the yokel, sidling off, "judging by yer missus, I shouldn't think yer did."—London King.

Turns Flank on Monitress.

It was at an exclusive South side boarding school and the young women pupils in the institution were at dinner. The preceptress was a task mistress of the most rigid sort and always paid special attention to the manners of the young women at the table. She laid down the strictest rules and she compelled her pupils to obey them to the letter.

On this occasion she espied one of the young women wiping her knife with a napkin.

"Would you do such a thing as that at home?" asked the preceptress, sharply.

"No, indeed, I would not," replied the young woman. "We have clean knives at home."—Chicago Chronicle.

Viennese Muffs.

A peasant woman in Vienna is seldom seen in winter without her muff of dilapidated fur, writes a traveler. She may carry a hod of bricks, or a shovel, or drag a wagon with one hand, but the other will be secure from the weather. It is not an unusual sight in the Austrian capital to see women working in the street, repairing pavements and making trenches, swinging pick and handling shovel in the most masterly fashion. These women wear almost any sort of costume that may be at hand. To their backs are often strapped baskets containing heavy burdens, or mayhap the family cherub swung over the shoulders in a shawl.—N. Y. Sun.

Wonderful Milking Record.

The milking record for New Zealand has been put up by a Plains settler and his wife, who, without any help except what could be given by a 20-month-old infant, milked 79 cows twice daily. It is a fact, and can be vouched for, that he delivered on an average 2,000 pounds of milk a day at the factory, and not a penny was spent in wages last year.—New Zealand Record.

Rattlesnakes.

From the effective character of their weapons of offense and defense, rattlesnakes have a great advantage in the struggle for existence against all animals except man and his domestic companion, the pig. Hence, in unsettled localities in North America they are abundant, especially in the warm regions of the south and west. In many places they are the most abundant species of snakes, as, for instance, on the plains, where no species is as often seen as the Crotalus confluentus. That they have been much more abundant in many wild parts of the east than at present is indicated by the great quantities of their bones which are found in the caves of the limestone regions of the Mississippi valley. The pig, as is well known, will destroy and eat rattlesnakes with impunity. It is said that the poison is not sufficiently introduced into the circulation to cause death, owing to the thick adipose layer with which the domesticated pig is covered.—Smithsonian Report.

The Bermuda Lily.

The Bermuda lily was introduced into this country in 1875. Two plants in bud and bloom were brought to Philadelphia by a lady and given to a florist. This florist, appreciating their beauty and value, cultivated the plants for the bulbs. Since that time the exporting of the lily bulbs has been one of the industries of Bermuda. Very few lilies are exported, as the cut flowers do not arrive in good condition. Nor does it pay to export the growing plants, because of the duty and the cost of freighting so delicate a cargo. The bulbs are exported all over the world and are a valuable source of revenue. Thus these beautiful lilies have a new significance. They bloom that, dying, they may come to life under new conditions, where they surpass in beauty what they were in their native home. The cultivating of the bulbs means special care of the flowers, for to this care is due the quality of the bulb.—Lilian Betts, in Woman's Home Companion.

GERMAN FAIR WAS OPENED LAST NIGHT.

Gesang and Turn Verein Began its Fair Which Lasts All This Week.

THOSE WHO ASSISTED.

GOOD ATTENDANCE ALTHOUGH VISITING SECTIONS DIDN'T COME.

Number of Contests Have Been Started Which Will Continue Through the Week—Those in Charge of Various Departments.

The Plainfield Gesang and Turn Verein fair opened last evening in Sangerbund hall on Somerset street with bright prospects for success during the week.

The committee on arrangements had made careful preparations for the affair. Decorations, chiefly in the national colors, adorned the walls and likewise the booths, which were placed along one side of the main hall. At the booths could be found on sale a variety of fancy and useful articles as well as refreshments. In the basement was a bowling alley and also other games for pleasant pastime.

Notwithstanding that the delegations expected from Stirling, N. J., and Hazelton, Pa., did not put in an appearance, the local patronage was very good and the crowd was well entertained throughout the evening. Dancing commenced shortly after the doors were opened and continued until a late hour. Prof. Eugene O'Reilly's orchestra furnished the instrumental music. The singing section of the society, under whose auspices the fair is being conducted, enlivened the occasion with a number of vocal selections.

Many contests for prizes have been arranged and the rival contestants were busy enlisting the support of their friends. A gold-headed cane is offered for the most popular man in the organization and a silver cup to the winner of a singing contest between the various societies in the Turnerbund. A mounted ornamental cup will be presented to the visiting club in the Turnerbund which brings with it the largest number of members.

Among the articles being chanced off are: a barrel of flour, a fancy collection of mounted butterflies, a parlor lamp, a case of wine, two tons of coal and a silver card dish.

The prize contests are: A diamond pin, Miss Lanora Donovan and Miss Hulda Rummel; a gold watch, Miss Pearl De Nise and Miss Jennie Chatelain; bicycle, George Schlick and Louis Menzenbach.

In charge of the various booths are: Fancy table, Miss E. Vordemeier, Miss A. Bartlau and Mrs. Henry Hoertel; candy table, Miss A Vordemeier, and Miss Carrie Beiter; household articles, Miss Elizabeth Bartlau; refreshment table, Miss Lucy Goeller, Miss Anna Bach and Mrs. Catherine Einger, Mrs. Chas. Meyer, Carl Felber and Frank C. White. In charge of the games were: Bowling alley, Henry Rummel; target, Albert Luthman, and grab bag, Mrs. Fred Bechtle.

The vocal musical section of the organization consists of Herman Eichhorn, leader; Martin Heuber, Paul Postler, John Hoffman, Otto Keller, Albert Luthman, first tenors; Rudolph Spiegel, Wm. Claassen, John Retzer and Henry Haurand, second tenors; Wm. Gardiner, John Wirth and Henry Hummel, first basses; Charles Dresselt and Louis Moraller, second basses.

In charge of the affair is a special committee composed of M. Menzenbach, chairman; Henry Bergen, financial secretary; Paul Postler, secretary; John Wirth, treasurer; Albert Luthman, John Retzer, August Wolff, Henry Hoertel, Wm Claassen, Mrs. H. Bergen, Mrs. Peter Finger, Mrs. Carl Felber, Mrs. Chas. Meyer, Mrs. H. Hoertel and Mrs. George Haurand.

Runaway Car on a Siding.

A crowd of small boys turned on the brakes of an empty freight car standing on the high trestle at the Pond Tool Works, Sunday afternoon. As a result the car ran down the trestle smashing the closed gates and stopping only at the switch which separates the siding from the main railroad tracks at a distance of but one hundred feet.

Last Lecture at Hospital.

POCKETBOOK CAME BACK.

BUT $45 IN CASH WAS MISSING FROM IT.

W. R. Stanbery Left His Wallet in Railroad Car Friday Night—It Was Returned the Next Morning.

Wm. R. Stanbery, of Scotch Plains, a member of the Watchung Silk Company, had a thrilling experience Friday evening. Mr. Stanbery went to New York Friday afternoon and he returned home late that night, reaching Plainfield on the 12:45 train. In some unknown manner he dropped his pocketbook in the train and he did not discover the loss until after he left the train.

He was necessarily quite anxious about the book for it contained about $45 in cash, $1,200 in checks belonging to the silk company, a fifty-trip ticket and a monthly commutation ticket between Plainfield and Fanwood. His first thought was that the missing book had gone to Somerville, and he had the telegraph operator telegraph to that place and make inquiries about it. The word came back that the book could not be found. Mr. Stanbery then gave up all hope of finding the book.

During the following morning his mind became more easy when the mail brought to him his missing pocketbook. He gave a long sigh of relief, for he was convinced that the lost property had fallen into honest hands. When he opened his book he found everything there, except the $45 in cash. The finder evidently thought that he was entitled to that for finding the book and returning it. It was mailed to Mr. Stanbery from Plainfield.

MANY WILL ATTEND.

It is Expected That Union Service Sunday Evening Will be a Very Impressive One.

The union service to be conducted in the First Baptist church Sunday evening by F. H. Jacobs, promises to be very well attended. During the recent evangelistic meetings, Mr. Jacobs was heard and enjoyed by hundreds, but there are still many more who were unable to be present at that time. Mr. Jacobs will be assisted in the singing by a large choir and all those desirous of joining will be given seats on the platform. The Christian Hymns No. 1 will be used. It is the intention of the committee arranging the meeting to have a similar one conducted in the various churches by notable leaders once a month.

The committee has prepared resolutions extending the sympathy of the church in this time of affliction and praying that the blessing of God may brighten and comfort his future.

Old Roller Shipped Away.

The old sixteen-ton Springfield roller, given by the city in part payment for the new Buffalo-Pitt's machine, was shipped to Buffalo yesterday. While it has been in disuse nearly all winter, it was still in fairly good condition and generated steam to climb the plank to the car. The Buffalo-Pitt's company allowed $200 for the roller, but twice that amount will have to be expended for repairs before it will be of any use in road making.

Rounded Corner Early This Morning and Wandered Over to the Sidewalk.

One of the large double-truck trolley cars, used on the through line, jumped the curve at the corner of Grant avenue and Front street at 1 o'clock this morning as it was returning to the barns on West Front street. It was going at a high rate of speed at the time and the momentun forced it across the street into a large wooden pole on the corner. The pole was snapped off and the fender of the car was demolished.

The cross walk and curb over which the car passed were also torn up and broken. Although considerably jarred, the motorman and conductor were uninjured. A wrecking crew was summoned from the barns and the car was replaced in a short time.

MAY NOT ABANDON THE LOCAL THEATRE.

Plans Being Formulated to Build Entrance Through Rowley's Drug Store.

LOOKING FOR A MANAGER.

ELSTON M. FRENCH IS NOW INTERESTED IN THE PROJECT.

Mr. Stillman Will Give Rent for Several Years to the The Theatrical Man Who Will Put the Place in Order—Hope to Find the Man.

Steps have been taken during the past few days, which, if carried out, will insure the continuance of Music Hall as the city's only theatre and place of amusement. Druggist Frank Rowley, whose store adjoins the present opening to the hall, is willing to allow a portion of it for an arcade entrance, retaining the westerly side for himself. He is also willing to use the front part of the store for a box office, it being the idea to restrict this entrance to patrons of the orchestra and dress circles.

Admission to the gallery could be made through Compton's alley, thence by covered entrance to the hall. The new main entrance would not be as wide as that at present, but by diverting the gallery element it would not be necessary as it would relieve most of the crowding. This is the plan followed out in all modern theatres.

Elston M. French, who has interested himself in the matter, ascertained through an interview with William M. Stillman today, that the latter is willing to give an enterprising theatrical manager rent free for several years, provided proper alterations and repairs are made. Mr. French is making an effort to find a man who will consider such a proposition favorably and who can raise the necessary money to make the needed changes. He has placed himself in correspondence with a theatrical syndicate which will probably secure a lessee under those conditions. Both Mr. Rowley and Mr. French have entered heartily into the plan and the former has even offered to bear the entire rental of the store.

SAYS MADISON'S PLANT IS NOT A FAILURE

Editor of the Madison Eagle Declares That Municipal Ownership There is a Success.

GIVES FACTS AND FIGURES.

REFUTATION OF S. S. SWACKHAMER'S STATEMENT MADE IN DEBATE.

Tells What the Plant Has Cost and What Has Been Saved for the Borough of Madison—One Issue of Bonds for $115,000.

The last issue of the Madison Eagle contains a somewhat lengthy defence of the water and light supply plant, owned by the borough of Madison. It was occasioned by the statement made by S. S. Swackhamer, in his debate with James E. Martine last week, that the Madison plant was not a success. The article from The Eagle is printed in full below:

"The city of Plainfield is considering the question, 'should the city control the water supply plant?' and public meetings and debates to consider the question are every-day occurrences.

"We do not intend or pretend to advise our neighboring city as to the course it should pursue, nor paint in glowing colors the benefits obtained through public ownership, but we do refute the statement made at the Board of Trade meeting at that place Monday evening, by Councilman S. S. Swackhamer, that the plant at Madison was being run at a loss.

Ten years ago a water and light plant was installed here for the purpose of furnishing water for fire protection and a system of street lighting. One small engine, a dynamo and one pump was thought sufficient to do the work, and the plant was built on that plan and bonds issued for $115,000. It was not long, however, before the commercial demand for the products of the plant made it manifest that the enterprise was deetined to be one of greater magnitude than expected and additions were made. The demand still continued and in order to keep pace with the times it was found necessary to practically rebuild the plant. This was done at a cost of $40,000. Besides this the water and light lines have been extended and in many places rebuilt. And all this has been done without issuing any additional bonds.

"The fact of the case is, that the assets of the plant, over and above all indebtedness (including road bonds, the original issue being $35,000) is over $70,000.

"Besides this there has been supplied to the Borough, a public service of street lighting, consisting of 460 thirty-two candle power incandescent lights and 140 fire hydrants. The former, placed at $25 a light per year is worth $6,900, and the latter at $15 per hydrant, amounts to $3,500, or a total of $10,400. This amount has actually been earned each year by the plant in addition to the $70,000 and for this service the taxpayers have had only to pay the interests on the bonded indebtedness. The plant is now in a condition to supply the demand for some years to come, and the time is now at hand, when instead of using the earnings to increase the capacity of the plant, the money can be used as a sinking fund for the redemption of bonds.

"In conclusion it can be stated that consumers have received the products of the plant at a very low rate and that the plant and franchise could be easily disposed of for twice the amount expended upon it by the Borough."

There is not much improvement in the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lister, of Willow avenue, who has double pneumonia.

John Cose, of Grant avenue, who fell some time ago while working on Woodhull & Martin's new barn in Washington avenue, has entirely recovered from his injuries.

Orrin Bradford, formerly night operator at the North Avenue station, but late of Bangor, Pa., has returned to Plainfield to live. He is now employed as a telegraph operator at Jersey City.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Murphy have returned from their bridal tour, which was spent in Washington, and are now stopping at the home of Mrs. Murphy's mother, Mrs. J. Hervey Ackerman, of West Seventh street.

He Kept His Leg.

Twelve years ago J. W. Sullivan, of Hartford, Conn., scratched his leg with a rusty wire. Inflammation and blood poisoning set in. Then the best doctors urged amputation, "but," he writes, "I used one bottle of Electric Bitters and 1½ boxes of Bucklen's Arnica Salve and my leg was sound and well as ever." For Eruptions, Eczema, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Sores and all blood disorders Electric Bitters has no rival on earth. Try them. L. W. Randolph will guarantee satisfaction or refund money. Only 50 cents.

Thousands have testified as did Mr. Riggs. L. W. Randolph.

AT THE THEATRES.

Something About the Attractions Which Plainfield Theatre-Goers May Care to Witness.

Many years ago John W. Vogel, the sole proprietor and manager of the Vogel-Deming minstrels that show tonight at Music Hall, stood his examination and received his diploma as "D O D."—doctor of desires. His unlimited experience as manager of Primrose & West's, Al. G. Field's, McIntire & Heath's, McNish, Johnson & Slavin's and other big minstrel organizations, has placed him in the front rank of minstrel managers and the clever performances of the organizations with which he has been identified is proof positive that he knows just what the people want. This season his company is known as John W. Vogel and Arthur Deming's big minstrels, an organization composed of world famed vocalists; artistic, refined and eccentric dancers; novelty acts without number and a coterie of peerless exponents of wit, including the invincible, Arthur Deming, the greatest living comedian. A $10,000 spectacular first part, known as the gretto of diamonds, is promised. The company numbers more than fifty people.

Nowadays when a son of one of our great actors is advertised to appear in his father's plays, the public are apt to become suspicious as to the ability of son to follow in the footsteps of the father. Such has not been the case with Thomas Jefferson, who has been presenting "Rip VanWinkle" for the past three seasons with financial results. He is said to have actually fallen in his father's shoes, and there are times on the stage when his audience really thinks the elder Jefferson is before them. Thomas is to be here Thursday night at Music Hall, and will present that delightful comedy entitled "Rip VanWinkle."

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" will be the attraction, or one of the attractions at the benefit of "Mique" Muldowney at Music Hall Tuesday of next week. Despite the fact that the play is somewhat old, it is nevertheless always pleasing and attractive, and the version given on this occasion will be found particularly interesting. Then, too, "Mique" is deserving of a "bumper" house. He is a universal favorite and his many friends should see that he is made happy and glad by overwhelming attendance. Reserved seats are now on sale at box office.

The Great Whitney & Knowles production of "Quo Vadis," which will be seen at Music Hall, Thursday, May 2, will be produced under the able stage direction of Max Freeman. The costumes, scenery and properties provided, are as accurate for that particular period in the reign of the Cæsars, as careful research could suggest. The great runs of "Quo Vadis" in London, New York and Chicago, are familiar to all readers of the daily press, and it is assured that the productions will be given here upon precisely the same elaborate scale of magnificence.

"RING AROUND

a rosy." Business is going in a whirl. We don't know which goes faster. Everybody seems to want oysters, everybody seems to want chickens, everyone seems to want beef. The sleeping spring appetites seem to have awakened and we are glad of it.

Thus far we have been able to satisfactorily supply the enormous demand, and expect to continue doing so. It has given us an excellent chance to prove our motto—goods right, prices right, treatment right.

BURIED BABY ALIVE.

Human Fiends Who Did the Deed In Custody.

CHILD'S LIFE SAVED BY A WORKMAN

Hastings-on-the-Hudson the Scene of This Most Heartless Occurrence. Little Victim Dug Out Just as It Was Breathing Its Last.

NEW YORK, April 23.—By the merest chance a 2-weeks-old baby which had been buried alive by a man and woman, presumably the parents, was discovered by Patrick McEvoy, a laborer of Hastings, just in time to save it from death by suffocation.

The child had been thrown alive by the man and woman into a hole about three feet deep which the couple had scooped out with their hands. A little cape worn by the baby had in some way fallen over the face. This kept away the earth and held the air for a moment.

With frantic haste McEvoy, who had been attracted to the spot while the couple were digging the grave, threw aside the freshly upturned earth and brought to light the little victim just as it was about to give its last gasp.

A man and woman who answer in every way the description of the couple that was furnished by the baby's rescuer were arrested an hour after the attempt at murder.

The prisoners, who were taken in custody by the police of Yonkers several miles away from Hastings, were captured on a trolley car. The man said he was Givori Duttacavolo of Manhattan. He said he was married and had three children.

The woman said she was Francisca Stinella, 18 years old, a dressmaker and unmarried. She declined to say where she lived, but to Roundsman Brady at police headquarters in Yonkers volunteered the information that she was a niece of her companion. They were hurried into cells and a strong guard placed over them, preparatory to their arraignment in court, the police fearing that when the story became known there would be danger of violence.

The woman denied that the babe was hers. She said she had never had a child. She appeared very little concerned over her arrest.

Last evening the prisoners were given a hearing before Justice Tompkins of Hastings. They refused to say anything when a formal charge of attempted infanticide was entered against them, and they were committed without bail to the county jail at White Plains.

SHOT BY BANDITS.

Express Messenger and Porter Killed by Train Robbers.

MEMPHIS, April 23.—The fast express train of the Choctaw, Oklahoma and Gulf railroad which left Memphis at 11:45 o'clock last night was held up by three masked bandits at Bridge Junction, Ark., about midnight last night. It is not known what booty the robbers secured, but a dispatch received at police headquarters stated that the express messenger and porter of the train were injured after resisting the bandits.

The Wells-Fargo Express company usually makes its heaviest shipments to the west by this train. Police Sergeant Perry, upon receipt of the telegram, immediately posted officers along the river front with instructions to keep a sharp lookout for the bandits should they attempt to cross to the city. The train left Memphis with a heavy passenger list. The scene of the hold up is a lonely railroad crossing about four miles from the river.

Ninety Miles an Hour.

ST. PAUL, April 23.—Ninety miles an hour on the Northwestern fast mail from Chicago to St. Paul was made by the train arriving here yesterday morning. The train was a heavy one, and when it arrived at Fairchild, Wis., the engineer found he was seven minutes behind schedule time. From Fairchild to Augusta is nine miles, the track is straight, and the grade is perfectly level. It was found that the running time between Fairchild and Augusta was exactly six minutes, or 90 miles an hour.

Fight May End In Death.

LONDON, April 23.—At the National Sporting club, London, Jack Roberts of England knocked out Billy Smith, the American, in the eighth round. The fight was for the nine stone championship of England. After the fight Smith was removed to a hospital, where he was still unconscious this morning. It is feared that his injuries will prove fatal.

AGUINALDO VISITED.

Former Insurgent Leader In Very Comfortable Quarters.

CONVERSION SEEMS TO BE GENUINE.

Is Now Doing All In His Power to Aid In the Establishment of American Supremacy Throughout the Archipelago.

MANILA, April 23.—A press representative visited Emilio Aguinaldo at 56 Solano street, whither he was removed from the Malacanan, and found him in a large room up stairs furnished with a table, a typewriting machine, three settees and 20 chairs. His wife, who was entertaining a number of Filipino women friends, sat at one end of the room, while Aguinaldo, smoking a cigar and chatting with Benito Legardo, occupied the opposite corner.

Others present were Lieutenant Colonel John S. Mallory of the Forty-first volunteer infantry, who has charge of Aguinaldo; Lieutenant Gilbert A. Youngberg of the Third artillery and Mr. Fisher, General MacArthur's private secretary.

Aguinaldo, whose bearing was courteous and dignified, was dressed in white, looked well and altogether made an excellent impression. Legardo, who but recently returned from the United States, was telling him about the trip, and Aguinaldo seemed much interested, smiling frequently and asking numerous questions. He inquired particularly as to what President McKinley said and seemed anxious to know what was thought of him in the United States.

"I am now urging in the strongest possible manner," said Aguinaldo, "that all insurgents should surrender and swear allegiance to the United States."

He expresses the opinion that Tinio, Lucban, Malvar and other representative insurgents will surrender as soon as they come to understand the nature of the amnesty offered them. He said he hoped that when the work of pacification was complete and conditions were settled the prisoners in Guam would be released.

After referring in grateful terms to the courteous treatment accorded him by the military authorities he declared his conviction that the civil government which would follow pacification would realize the highest hopes of the Filipino people.

When questioned regarding the report that he would visit the United States, he replied that he would like to do so, but had made no plans as yet, placing himself entirely at the disposition of the United States government. In concluding the interview he observed:

"Every word in my address to my countrymen, the Filipinos, came from my heart. I hope the Americans believe me thoroughly sincere in my efforts to secure peace and under American auspices to promote the welfare and prosperity of the Philippines."

Navy Yards Visited.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Engineer In Chief Melville has returned to Washington from a tour of inspection of the northern navy yards, made with especial reference to their equipment with machine plant. He found that at Portsmouth, N. H., an entirely new plant would be necessary. He wants a machine shop, boiler shop, copper shop, smith shop, pattern shop, foundry and administrative building. These will cost not less than $300,000, and as only $50,000 is available congress will be called upon for further appropriation. When the Boston plant is in shape, and it is now being rapidly pushed, and when the equipment department is quartered outside of the forge shop which it now occupies, the plant, according to the engineer in chief, will be first rate and able to undertake any kind of naval work economically. The New York navy yard has the finest machine shop in the United States today, said the engineer in chief, but it will not be completely ready for six months yet.

Eastman Murder Trial.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 23.—The trial of Charles R. Eastman, an instructor at the Agassiz museum, Harvard university, charged with murder in killing Richard H. Grogan, Jr., his brother-in-law, on the 4th of last July, began in the Middlesex county courthouse at East Cambridge yesterday, and before the noon adjournment a jury had been secured from the 168 talesmen called together by the special venire issued by the court. This work being finshed, a foreman was appointed by the judge when the court sat in the afternoon, and the remainder of the day was occupied by a visit to the scene of the fatality on the estate of the late Alvin Clark, the telescope maker of worldwide fame, whose daughters Eastman, the accused, and Grogan, the dead man, married.

No Print Cloth Combine.

FALL RIVER, Mass., April 23.—No little stir was made here by published statements that a further attempt to consolidate the print cloth mills of New England and the southern states was on foot and that J. P. Morgan & Co. of New York were behind the movement. Inquiry made quite generally among the men who are in control of many of the local mills or represent the big manufacturing properties brought out almost a unanimous statement that the reports have no foundation in fact.

Indians Visit Their Bureau.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—A delegation from the Omaha and Winnebago Indian reservation was at the Indian bureau yesterday and asked for a larger per capita payment to the tribe. The delegates represented that the interest money paid them annually from their funds in the United States treasury was inadequate to meet their needs and asked to have some of the principal added to these payments to enable them to purchase agricultural implements and other necessities.

National League Games.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Rain and wet grounds again interfered with the plans of the National league baseballists yesterday. Only one game was played and that at Philadelphia, the home team winning from the Brooklyns by the following score:

Brooklyn	0	0	0	2	0	0	1	0	0	—3
Philadelphia	4	0	0	0	5	0	0	0	*	—9

Boer Commando Surrenders.

PRETORIA, April 23.—The force under Commandant Boksburg, composed of 106 men, with wagons and rifles, have surrendered near Middelburg, Transvaal Colony.

FLOOD IS SUBSIDING.

Worst Seems Past, but Damage Widespread and Serious.

SNOW IN KENTUCKY AND TENNESSEE.

Connecticut Village Inundated—Mohawk River Highest In Five Years—Railroads Badly Crippled.

CINCINNATI, April 23.—Alarm over the flood has almost ceased in the lower Ohio valley. The low water in the Ohio river below this city has allowed the floods from up the river to flow rapidly toward the Mississippi. The situation is still serious up the river, notably at Ripley, Maysville, Aberdeen, Portsmouth, Hanging Rock, Ironton, Ashland, Gallettsburg, Huntington, Point Pleasant, Pomeroy, Marietta, Parkersburg and smaller places between Wheeling and Cincinnati. The crest of the flood is below Wheeling, and the farther down stream it gets the lower is the rate of rising.

The endless line of shanty boats and other craft along the river front has been swept away, but so far without loss of life.

Mayor Fleischmann, Chief of Police Deitsch, Health Officer Davis and others inspected the flooded districts yesterday in patrol wagons and boats arranged for the relief of all who were in need. An extra police force was put on duty in the flood districts, and the police boat patrols are on the river front today. The work of protection and relief extends along the tributaries, especially in Mill Creek valley, which is badly flooded, doing much damage to the gardens, brickyards, etc. A new bridge at Spring Grove avenue has been partially swept away. The baseball park is located in Mill Creek valley. It is in bad condition.

In the eastern part of the city where new waterworks are being constructed the tunnel has flooded, and work is suspended.

The country along the Little Miami river is badly flooded just east of this city.

At Newport and Dayton, Ky., very many people have been driven from their homes. The waterworks of Newport are unable to do any more pumping, but the reservoir is full, and no trouble is expected during the short duration of the flood.

At Huntington, W. Va., the Ohio is 54 feet and still rising. A steady rain fell yesterday throughout the central and southern portions of the state. Most of the tributaries of the Ohio river are falling slowly.

At Maysville, Ky., the river reached 52 feet this morning.

Flood Subsides at Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, April 23.—The flood is over. Notwithstanding the fact that early in the day there was every evidence of a renewal of the high water, the announcement can be made authoritatively that there is not the least danger of another rise at this point nor above for the present, but towns on the Ohio river below here are not yet out of danger because of rains in the valley yesterday. All up river points report the rain and snow having ceased and the river falling. The railroads have recovered remarkably well from the effects of the flood and snowstorm, and now the various lines have resumed operations to all points, but for several days no pretension at running on schedule time will be made. A look over the ground after the flood shows that the losses will be fully as great as were estimated. In and about Pittsburg it will probably take $1,000,000 to pay the total cost of the injury to property by the water and by landslips. Add to this the great loss to the railroads and manufacturing plants up and down the rivers in this immediate vicinity, with the loss in wages to the workingmen, and the total will not fall far short of the $2,000,000 mark. The work of cleaning up is going on everywhere in the flooded district.

The Middlefield Disaster.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., April 23.—For three miles down through the beautiful Middlefield valley there is nothing but ruin and destruction as a result of the great flood of Sunday evening. Where was formerly the reservoir, a mile and a half long and covering nearly 200 acres, there is now but a diminutive pond, from which flows the receding river through the gorge in the dam that broke away. Down stream at the Boston and Albany railroad nothing is left but a few granite blocks and the rails of the arch bridge that spanned the Factory river and the highway leading up to Middlefield Center. The flood carried in its wake houses and barns, bridges and culverts. It made great gullies in the highways and did thousands of dollars damage. But nobody was drowned, and so far as can be learned not a person was injured, although there were a number of narrow escapes.

The Floods In New England.

NEW HAVEN, April 23.—The worst flood recorded in southern New England in ten years is raging. All along the Connecticut river from Holyoke, Chicopee and Springfield, Mass., to Hartford and Middletown, Conn., residents are preparing to flee in case the torrent overtops the banks, which it now almost covers. Up the Naugatuck and Housatonic valleys, in Connecticut, the rivers have flooded meadows and entire towns, have blocked street car traffic and have made washouts which delay trunk and branch line passenger traffic.

Great Damage In Kentucky.

LONDON, Ky., April 23.—The snow which commenced last Friday has not ceased falling. The waters are higher than they have been since 1883. Great damage is being done by the drowning of live stock. The farmers are also heavy losers by having all the soil washed off their freshly plowed fields. Many bridges have been washed away. People living in the country have been unable to reach town for several days. The damage sustained by farmers throughout the mountain section cannot be estimated.

Snow Six Feet Deep.

KNOXVILLE, April 23.—A party of herders reported in this city from the Smoky mountains having been driven out by snow of four to six feet. They left 500 cattle behind. A late dispatch from Bristol says Egleson tunnel, on the Norfolk and Western railroad between Radford and Bluefield, has fallen in, thereby stopping traffic on the main line of the road. The tunnel is about three-quarters of a mile long. Heavy snow and rain caused the cave in.

Killed by Lightning.

CHESTER, Vt., April 23.—The lightning which accompanied a thunderstorm in this vicinity yesterday killed a Mr. Hughes instantly and fatally hurt a man named Tuttle. Several other men were more or less severely injured by the bolt. The men were shearing sheep in Mr. Hughes' barn when the storm began. Hughes had all his clothing torn from him and was terribly burned from head to foot.

Mohawk River High.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., April 23.—The Mohawk river, which overflowed its banks, has reached the highest point it has touched in five years, 14.5 feet above low water. The retaining wall, which cost $11,000 last year and which was built to protect the lower portion of the city, settled considerably yesterday afternoon, but it is believed that it will not be destroyed.

NEW YORK CHARTER SIGNED.

Passed Over the Mayor's Veto—Public Printing Bill Passed.

ALBANY, April 23.—The senate yesterday afternoon repassed the New York city charter by a party vote after some discussion on Senator Donnelly's motion that the mayor's veto message be read by the clerk to the senate, which motion was defeated. Senator Hennessy (Dem., Bronx) voted with the Republicans to pass the charter over the mayor's veto. The measure was signed last night by Governor Odell. It is chapter 466 of the laws of 1901. The secretary of state's office remained open until after 6 o'clock to receive the measure.

The senate passed the Fordyce state printing bill, which carries out the governor's ideas restricting the public printing contracts so that there may be more economy. It is expected that the bill will save the state $60,000 annually.

Senator Krum introduced a bill to amend the transfer tax law so as to give the state comptroller the power to make a motion before surrogates to open a proceeding in transfer tax cases. This power had been omitted from the transfer tax bill recently passed. The committee on rules offered a resolution compelling its immediate consideration, and it was later passed—29 yeas, no nays.

The senate passed last evening the concurrent resolution of Mr. M. E. Lewis providing for a section forbidding the passage of bills that exempt from taxation. This is the second time the measure has passed, and it now goes to the people for a vote. It is claimed that about $1,000,000,000 worth of property has been exempted.

There were several brisk debates in the assembly yesterday. The final night session was held in the presence of several thousand people. Assemblyman Fitzgerald moved to reconsider the vote by which the annual appropriation bill was passed and attacked the appropriation of $6,500 for Horace E. Denning for prosecuting the charges against District Attorney Asa Bird Gardiner of New York county. A large number of bills were passed.

Cost of Running New York City.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Comptroller Coler's report for the year 1900, just made public, shows that the city for running expenses and improvements spent last year the sum of $135,000,000. This includes not only the cost of maintaining the various departments of government, but the proceeds of bond issues to pay for permanent improvements. This sum is said to fairly represent the average yearly expenditure of the city. Including balances turned over to the credit of the city for last year the income of New York's treasury for 1900 was $178,877,296.38.

The Constitution's Launching Day.

NEW YORK, April 23.—The Constitution, which is building for the Belmont syndicate at the Herreshoffs' yard at Bristol to defend the America's cup, will be launched in the week following Saturday, May 4. According to W. B. Duncan, Jr., it is possible that the defender may go overboard on Monday, May 6, but he is not yet prepared to make a definite announcement. It can be said on good authority, however, that the launching will not take place secretly. The exact date of the launching will be given to the public in due time.

Carter Must Stay In Prison.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—The United States supreme court has denied the application of Oberlin M. Carter for a writ of habeas corpus to release him from the Leavenworth prison pending a hearing of his appeal from the sentence of five years' imprisonment imposed by the court martial. No notice was taken of the application of Carter's counsel to strike from the record as "irrelevant and scandalous" the brief of Solicitor General Richards in opposition to the application for the writ of habeas corpus.

Died Without Disclosing Facts.

RUTLAND, Vt., April 23.—Charles P. Campbell, who was shot at Wallingford on Friday evening by burglars, who, it is thought, had planned to rob the factory where he was a bookkeeper, died yesterday afternoon. Mr. Campbell became unconscious after he had dragged himself from the factory to a hotel, and he did not recover sufficiently to give details of the affair. Miss Goldurtz of Staten Island, N. Y., to whom Campbell was to have been married tomorrow, and her brother reached here yesterday.

WILD DAY ON CHANGE.

Speculation In Stocks In New York Breaks All Records.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Records went to pieces on the Stock Exchange yesterday. Never before have the brokers done such an enormous volume of business. The number of shares sold was 2,392,737, more than 200,000 over the record made last Friday. Throughout the day the sales were made in unprecedented volume. For example, the rise in Southern Pacific from 48 on Saturday to above 53 yesterday was accompanied by sales of 343,000 shares.

It was 6 minutes after 3 o'clock before the ticker stopped recording sales, and it is quite certain that the reporters missed many transactions which would considerably swell the total. Taking into consideration the trading on the curb and on the Consolidated Exchange the transactions probably exceeded 3,000,000 shares, an aggregate that simply taxes the facilities of a trade the mechanism of which has been brought to its highest degree of perfection in the last three years. One important factor in the market is that every bucket shop of prominence in the country is helping along the bull proposition—that is to say, they have had to hedge against their customers' purchases by entering the market as bona fide buyers to prevent their capital from becoming impaired.

THE PAN-AMERICAN.

Work Progressing Rapidly on the Grounds—Damage by Storm.

BUFFALO, April 23.—The Pan-American exposition grounds are again a scene of life and activity. Inspection of the grounds shows that not nearly so much damage has been done as was anticipated. While the storm delayed work in almost every department, it is now going on rapidly again and will be rushed as fast as possible. There are some 700 men at work on the paving, carting and grading and doing such work as the wetness of the ground does not interfere with.

The flowers and bulbs seem to have been benefited by the storm. It was thought that some damage might have been done to the interior decoration, but very little really has been done.

The roofs had just been painted and were clean, so that the decorations were not soiled, and the drenching that the cheesecloth received in some places did not seem to affect it any.

A fresh appearance is presented by the cedar trees that have been set out about the machinery and transportation and the manufacturers' and liberal arts buildings.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

British colliery owners have protested against the coal tax.

Fifteen vessels are icebound in the harbor of Sidney, Cape Breton.

The president has appointed Admiral O'Neil to be chief of the ordnance bureau.

Lord Kitchener has warned the Cape Colony rebels that they are in danger of death penalty.

At St. Mary's, W. Va., six deaths were caused by an explosion of gas in the Commercial hotel.

The Prussian crop report just issued shows the worst condition since these reports have been kept.

The creditors of Prince Henry, husband of Queen Wilhelmina, threaten to negotiate his debts on the Amsterdam boerse.

Southern Crops Injured.

ATLANTA, April 23.—Low temperature, in some sections injurious to cotton and other growing crops, has prevailed over the southern states. The weather bureau reported light frost yesterday morning in the vicinity of Jacksonville, Fla.; Meridian, Miss., and at Charleston. Snow is reported at Gainesville, in northeast Georgia, the mountain tops being capped with white. It is an unusual sight at this time of the year. Albany, in south Georgia, reports the estimated damage to cotton at 50 per cent and that watermelons and canteloupes have been injured 25 per cent. Fruit in that section apparently is safe. Valdesti, on the Florida line, says there had been no damage in that vicinity. Hogansville, in the western part of the state, reports small vegetables were damaged. Cotton is not sprouted enough to receive any ill effect.

Barker Trial Postponed.

NEW YORK, April 23.—The attending physician of the Rev. John Keller, rector of Trinity Episcopal mission of Arlington, N. J., who was shot by Thomas G. Barker, has notified Prosecutor Erwin that Mr. Keller would not be able to appear at Barker's trial if it was held this week, as had been the intention. This is due to the fact that an abscess a few days ago formed under Mr. Keller's left eye, and this was cut out yesterday and was a very painful operation. The rector's physical condition otherwise continues to be good.

President Schwab's Munificence.

PITTSBURG, April 23.—Charles M. Schwab, president of the United States Steel corporation, has made an early start in spending a part of his large income, presumably following in the footsteps of his preceptor, Andrew Carnegie. Mr. Schwab has just authorized the erection of a large building for the Mount Aloysius academy at Cresson, Pa., which will cost in the neighborhood of $30,000, but Mr. Schwab has set no limit to the cost of the building.

Missionaries Killed.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Figures received at the state department compiled by J. W. Stevenson, director of the Chinese Inland mission, show that the total number of foreign missionaries killed in China during the recent disturbances, including the children, was 186. Of these 28 adults and 8 children were Americans.

Three Drowned.

MARIETTA, O., April 23.—Three persons were drowned in the river here yesterday afternoon. A boat containing nine men was carried under a wharf by the swift current, and Joseph Everett, a glass worker, was drowned. The others were rescued. Later two boys named Hanley, aged 7 and 14, were drowned at the same place.

Dreamed of His Own Death.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., April 23.—Joseph Malzahn, a brakeman in the Ontario and Western yard, was killed yesterday afternoon in attempting to jump on to the rear of a switch engine. Before going to work in the morning he expressed a fear of death because of a dream.

NO EXPEDITION NOW.

Chinese Under General Liu Likely to Withdraw.

MANY ANTIFOREIGN APPOINTMENTS.

Mr. Rockhill Considers the Withdrawal of Foreign Troops May Now Begin With Safety.

PEKING, April 23.—General Voyron, the commander of the French troops in China, has informed General Chaffee that 10,000 French soldiers will leave China next May.

Li Hung Chang believes that the Chinese troops under General Liu will be withdrawn over the boundary marking the territory defined by Field Marshal von Waldersee as the sphere of operations for the allies, as the governor of Shansi province received telegraphic instructions nearly a week ago ordering their withdrawal. The governor could have conveyed these orders to the troops in question by last Friday at the latest.

The majority of the French and German newspaper correspondents accompanying the expedition directed against General Liu and which has been mobilizing at Pao-ting-fu returned to Peking yesterday, believing that the expedition would be called off.

Hsi Liang, formerly governor of the province of Shansi, has been appointed governor of the province of Hupeh. The foreign consuls at Hankow, capital of the province of Hupeh, have protested this appointment to Chang Chi Tung, viceroy of Hankow, and have sent him a telegram advising him to delay proceeding in the matter of Hsi Liang's appointment.

The numerous appointments of Chinamen with pronounced antiforeign tendencies is causing comment at Peking. Even the foreign ministers admit that so many appointments of this character are ill advised, while the missionaries and other civilians are alarmed for the future.

It is the opinion of Mr. Rockhill, the American special commissioner, that the foreign troops may now commence leaving China with perfect safety. On the other hand, the announcement that 10,000 French troops are to leave in May causes fear among the French residents, and this fear is greater among the French native converts to Christianity, who inform the priests that they are daily threatened with what will happen to them when the foreigners leave.

The views of the foreign ministers on the withdrawal of the troops are not shared by the great majority of the foreign residents. The ministers aver that some of these latter have business reasons and that others would have to vacate the fine buildings they are now occupying rent free when the troops go.

WAR IN MANCHURIA.

Renewed Military Activity Between Chinese and Russians.

LONDON, April 23.—According to a dispatch from St. Petersburg to The Daily Mail, official information has been received that renewed military activity is beginning in Manchuria. Chinese troops are strongly intrenched at three points around Mukden. They are armed with good Mauser rifles and have 30 Krupp guns.

To the eastward of Mukden, near Turchausen, there are 12,000 men under the chief Boxer general Lutanse. To the northwest, near Kulo, there are 6,000 Chinese under the former governor of Mukden. To the eastward, in Mongolia and near the In-shan mountain, there are 9,000 more under the Chinese general Schu.

Admiral Alexieff has accordingly organized an expedition under General Zerpinsky, consisting of two regiments and five sotrias of Cossacks, 16 guns and a body of volunteers, to operate against the three points mentioned. The first movement was successfully carried out in the beginning of April, Kulo, which is 250 kilometers from Mukden, was stormed, and the ex-governor of Mukden was taken prisoner. In this action the Russians had 13 men killed and 4 officers and 18 men wounded. The advance toward the Turchausen position was then begun.

Owing to the departure of most of the Russian troops from Mukden the latter city has become very unsafe. Almost nightly Russian sentinels are found shot in the back.

The situation in southern Manchuria is disquieting, and another advance of Russian troops will be necessary in the early spring.

"According to Russian advices," says the St. Petersburg correspondent of The Times, "Prince Tuan has utterly failed to produce a rising among the inhabitants of Mongolia, who are kept quiet by a wholesome respect for Russia. It is therefore declared to be untrue that an insurrection has broken out in Mongolia."

Negotiations to Be Resumed.

BERLIN, April 23.—It is believed in German official circles that Russia will take up negotiations with China again regarding the Manchurian convention after the general China question is settled. It is also believed officially that the Chinese regular army is already retreating before the expedition which is under way and that the allied commanders are now discussing what troops they can send home.

Lipton's Yacht.

GLASGOW, April 23.—The racing mast of the cup challenger was to have been stepped yesterday, but it was a holiday, and the Dumbarton men refused to work. The yacht will probably not leave the Clyde until next Saturday, and it may be a week later before she takes her first spin under canvas, as she will have to be drydocked at Henderson. An excellent authority confirms the report that King Edward will be aboard the challenger during one of her trial races on the Solent. The date of these trials are not yet fixed.

British Coaler Aground.

MONTREAL, April 23.—A telegram received announces that the Elder Dempster steamship Ashanti (British), Tyne for Montreal, with 3,000 tons of coal, is aground near River Branch, 190 miles below Quebec. A wreck pierced the ship's bottom, and one tank is flooded. The ship is not making water elsewhere. Assistance has been sent from Quebec.

Ice Palace Collapses.

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., April 23.—The ice palace of the Pontiac club carnival, built last January, collapsed yesterday. The ice is still good in the lakes.

Municipal Ownership in Madison.

There seems to be some question as to just exactly how much of a success the water and electric light plant owned by the borough of Madison is at the present day. Although the conditions existing in Madison and Plainfield differ considerably, the mere fact that Madison is but a few miles away, gives special prominence to the result of the experiment in municipal ownership in that place.

It is rather remarkable that both the advocates and the objectors to the city ownership of the local water works have used Madison as a practical illustration of the truth of their statements. Some doubt therefore exists as to exactly what the situation is in Madison.

In another column will be found a lengthy editorial which appeared in the Madison Eagle. The editor of that newspaper evidently read The Daily Press' account of the debate between Mr. Martine and Mr. Swackhamer over the water question for he refutes the statement made by Mr. Swackhamer that the water plant at Madison is not successful.

In addition to some generalities, he advances some figures as to the actual accomplishments of the plant which will make rather interesting reading for those who are interested in the subject of municipal ownership.

There are some people who have forgotten their pledges made during the course of the Twentieth Century Gospel campaign. That was to be expected. Nobody expects every convert to stand by his new professions. An occasional reminder, however, of those weeks of eventful meetings is bound to have its effect and keep in line many of those who might otherwise forget the truths which so profoundly impressed them when propounded by William Phillips Hall and Rev. Theodore S. Henderson.

Because a combination of circumstances once caused a disastrous flood at Bound Brook, reports are constantly being spread whenever a heavy rainfall comes that Bound Brook is in danger of another inundation. It is unfortunate for Bound Brook and undoubtedly retards the progress of that place. It is something that will have to be lived down, however. In the meantime the people of Bound Brook can exercise unusual care how unfounded reports of floods in that direct are sent out of that town.

The mayor of Deckertown, New Jersey, is quite an important personage. Besides being chief executive of that little city, he is one of the State dairy commissioners. He has promised to come to North Plainfield and tell the Borough Council what Deckertown's experiences with municipal ownership have been. If he has some facts and figures to back up his statements, his talk will be listened to with special interest.

Those who remember Rev. H. J. Johnston, a former pastor at the Grace M. E. church, will not be surprised to learn that his congregation on Staten Island was very desirious of retaining him for another year. So strong was the demand that Bishop Foss acceded to it and returned Rev. Mr. Johnston to his former charge. It was, however, a pleasing compliment for an energetic young clergyman.

An editorial, criticizing Franklin Murphy, was recently credited by mistake to the Elizabeth Journal. The Journal has only had pleasant things to say about Mr. Murphy and will undoubtedly support him most loyally if he is honored with the gubernatorial nomination of the Republicans as now seems probable.

Reports on the subject of municipal ownership may be expected at the May meetings of both Common and Borough Councils. A comparison of the reports will be particularly interesting for those who are following this subject of city ownership for the water works.

When every citizen of Plainfield takes pride in pointing out the advantages of this city to all his friends and acquaintances, a great step will be taken in the movement toward advancing the interests of this city.

Nearly every day, a permit is granted by Building Inspector T. O Doane for repairing some old structure or erecting a new one. The building trade in Plainfield promises to be quite brisk this spring.

It is remarkable some times the assurance with which some of the editors of the weekly newspapers settle questions of national importance over which the greatest statesmen of the country are puzzled.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence.)

Dunellen, April 23 —The customary observance of Arbor Day will not be held this year by the pupils of the borough schools. Heretofore the pupils spent the day at Washington Rock in picnic fashion, but Superintendent Meseroll has announced his intention of abandoning the custom on account of the trouble with the smaller children. The usual programme of appropriate readings and songs will be given at the schools.

Most of the business done in the borough Saturday evening was transacted in semi darkness, the only illumination being that furnished by hastily procured lamps. For some reason the electric lights refused to burn until after 9 o'clock. The trouble is thought to have been due to a defect in the machinery at the power house.

A special meeting of the Board of Education was held last evening at the residence of A. F. Todd. It was for the purpose of conferring with two pupils of the Whittier School who have been suspended indefinitely for unruly conduct. It is probable they will be reinstated in order to take their yearly examinations.

A large number of shoppers from the borough will take advantage of the free excursion to Newark tomorrow. The train will leave Dunellen at 8:48 and returning will leave Newark at 4:50.

Fred Stilger has taken a position with Fowler Vail's park gang, in the place made vacant by Seymour Schaeffer. The latter is now employed at the Pond Tool Works, Plainfield.

Thomas Barrett, of New York, is visiting his father, Thomas Barrett, of Jefferson avenue. The latter is improving slowly from his recent severe illness.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Alfred Wilson, of New Brunswick, spent Sunday with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Y. Wilson.

Mrs. H. A. Bunker, of New York, has taken up her residence on the Sandford farm, on Greenbrook road.

Miss Emma Apgar has resigned her position as bookkeeper at Adam Dealaman's grocery store.

Mrs. J. B. Laine, of Westfield, was the guest of friends in town yesterday.

Mrs. A. F. Sampson was the guest of Somerville relatives yesterday.

NEW MARKET.

(Special Correspondence.)

New Market, April 23—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kelley returned home from Philadelphia yesterday. Last evening the citizens of New Market gave them a noisy serenade with a tin band and bonfire. Although the music (?) was continued until a late hour the newly-wedded couple took it all in good part.

The pupils of the New Market school are preparing a programme of appropriate songs and recitations to be given on Arbor Day. There will also be an address by a prominent speaker, who as yet has not been designated.

A dime social will be given at the residence of Miss Emma Nelson, Thursday evening, under the auspices of the Daughters of Liberty. An excellent programme of music and other entertaining features is being prepared.

The members of the G. E. Club were entertained last evening by Miss Estella Sofield. The blending of music and games passed several hours in a pleasant manner. Refreshments were served at the close.

Dr. M. J. Whitford and C. T. Rogers went to Basking Ridge yesterday, and last night each returned with a new horse.

William FitzRandolph is confined to his home with a severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism.

The Town Committee is having the gutters and streets cleaned, where they were washed considerably during the recent heavy rains. The streets are in much better condition this year than formerly.

Chas. B. Loomis will give a reading in the assembly hall of the public school tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. The entertainment promises to be an enjoyable one.

Rev. G. M. Shott, of the Baptist church, went to New York yesterday to attend the regular meeting of the Ministers' Association.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD

(Special Correspondence.)

South Plainfield, April 23. — The Middlesex Athletic Club is completing arrangements for an invitation dance to be given tomorrow evening in Washington Hall. The committee on arrangements are Harry Weaver, Thomas Brantingham and Robert Horn. The reception committee is composed of William Hamilton and Jack Higgins. The proceeds will go to the treasury of the Middlesex Athletic Club.

Frank Brown did not leave South Plainfield, as was expected, and will not go to Easton until May 1, as the change on the Lehigh Valley Railroad will not take effect until that day.

Mrs. M. V Thickerson has returned home after a few days' visit with Mrs. Samuel Merrill, of Dunellen.

The regular Tuesday evening prayer meeting will be held tonight in the lecture room of the church.

Harry W. Skinner, of New Dover, is improving from his serious illness.

WORK DELAYED.

Heavy Rains Have Caused Delay in Alterations at the Sewer Beds.

Owing to the heavy rainfall of the past few days, the work of making the alterations at the disposal beds has been very slow. There are at present sixty men engaged on the contract, but it has been impossible for them to continue work on account of water. This force will be increased as soon as the weather becomes settled and the alterations will be pushed to completion.

Ants, Cockroaches, Bed Bugs.

Mix, say, a 25c. box of "Rough on Rats" carefully with a pound or so of mashed boiled potatoes, or with a loaf of finely crumbled dampened bread, or two tin cups of fine powdered sugar, and place about their haunts, out of reach of children or pet animals. Even the hardier Black Cockroaches, Beetles, Wood or Water Bugs, in one or two applications will be completely annihilated. "Rough on Rats" is the only thing that will effectually and permanently annihilate Bed Bugs, and it stands unrivalled the world over for the prompt and effective extermination of Rats and Mice. 15 and 25 boxes at druggists.

New Organist.

Clifford S. Braider, who is temporarily filling the position of organist at the First Presbyterian church, will in all probability be retained as the regular organist. His work has been giving much satisfaction and the officials, it is said, favor him for the position.

CHAPTER II.

Maj. Goddard spent all the next day in the city busy over some legal matters connected with his recent losses. He missed his usual train and was forced to take one an hour later. In consequence of this delay it was dark when he arrived home. The drawing-room was lighted, and through the window he saw Blanche and his private secretary, Mr. Hubert Talley, at the piano, but he did not enter. All day he had been worrying over his wife's recent moroseness, and he did not want to lose a moment before seeing her. He fancied she must be in her own apartment, so he went up stairs to her door. It was closed. He rapped gently, but received no response from within. He rapped again, but with no better result; then he tried the latch and found the door locked. For a moment he stood mastered by thoughts which both contradicted and confirmed each other. Then he remembered that the door was the only outlet from the room to the main stairway, and as there was no light to be seen through the keyhole he half persuaded himself that Jeanne had dressed and gone down.

He turned quickly into his own apartment across the hall and turned on the electric light. His first thought was that he would change his dress before joining the others, but his impatience to see his wife defeated this idea and he hurried downstairs.

He looked into the library, a large, cozy apartment opposite the drawing-room. A coal fire was burning warm and red in the grate, but the room was empty. Just then the butler, Wilkins, opened the folding doors and a view of the electric-lighted dining-hall in its vast splendor of white cloth, silver and cut-glass met Goddard's roving eye.

"Has Mrs. Goddard come down?" the major asked.

"I did not know she had returned, sir."

"Returned! from where?"

"From the city, sir. She went in this afternoon."

"To the city! at what time?"

"She caught the 1:40 train;" it was Blanche's voice behind him, and it contained a note of startled concern. "She said she would go direct to your office and return with you."

"I have not seen her; my God! what can have happened to her?"

Blanche motioned the butler to retire, and he did so, discreetly closing the door.

The major was deathly pale and his hands quivered as with palsy. For a moment he could only stare into the sympathetic eyes of his ward, who like a shapely pillar of consolation stood before him.

"Blanche, do you think—think she has gone?" he asked.

"I can't say, dear, dear guardian. I hope not. Don't give up."

He seemed to have a sudden inspiration.

"Come into my study," he said.

She followed and stood in the dark as he fumbled with the electric light fixture. In a moment the little room was illuminated. He pointed to a big iron safe in the corner, and said, huskily:

"She could not go without means. She saw me put $5,000 away yesterday. She has always known the combination."

"Oh, she wouldn't dare to take your money!" exclaimed Blanche.

"She knew I had a deposit in the bank," he said; "besides, what is mine is hers. She knows that."

With trembling fingers he turned the combination bolt. In a moment the heavy door was opened. He drew out a strong box from one of the compartments in the safe and raised the lid.

The money was gone.

"That settles it!" Goddard said this with more calmness than Blanche had expected, but it was the calmness of utter despair. He closed the box almost with scrupulous exactness, then shut and locked the door of the safe. He went back into the library and stood before the fire, his limp hands clasped in front of him.

"Tell me what to do, Blanche," he said, plaintively. "I can't give her up. I simply cannot! I have been under bursting shells and whistling lead as thick as hail and not cared so much as that" (he snapped his fingers), "but I can't face life without her."

A door opened cautiously. Wilkins put in his bald head, fringed with gray locks.

"Shall I serve dinner?" he asked.

"Yes, but I shall not wait," said his master. "I am going back to the city."

Just then there was a ring at the door. Goddard drew himself up and listened, a light of sudden expectation in his eyes.

"Sign here," a boyish voice said to the footman who had opened the door.

"A telegram!" cried the major, and he went to the door and brought it back, tearing it open excitedly.

"Detained in town," he read, triumphantly. "Perhaps you ought to come to the Palace hotel to see me. Will return in the morning. Jeanne."

"Thank God!" he exclaimed, joyously; then his eyes snatched a thought from the depths of his ward's great staring orbs which made him glance towards his study, and she saw the joyous light in his face flicker as if a strong breeze of suspicion had blown upon it. "Ah," he sighed, "but she intended to go, Blanche; she intended to leave me!"

He dropped his hand heavily on the old-fashioned silver bell on the table.

"My overcoat, and the carriage, James," was his husky command.

Blanche linked her tapering fingers over his arm.

"But not before you have eaten your dinner, dear guardian," she pleaded. "When you get to the city she will have dined and you may be the worse for it."

He waited till James had left the room; then he said:

"I could not eat a bite right now if my life depended on it."

When she had seen him put on his coat and leave the room she ran to the window and watched the carriage drive away at the highest speed of the blooded horses. Then she went into the dining-room, bowing to Mr. Talley, who stood waiting for her. They took their places at the long table, he on one side, she on the other. He was a handsome man of perhaps 27, who wore no beard and had the strong features of a successful actor; his hair was thick, moderately long and of a blackness which went well with his dark eyes.

"Is the major coming in now?" he asked her, deferentially.

"No, he has had to go back to the city, Mr. Talley; it was a telegram, I think."

"Ah!" the young man seemed unable to control his surprise, and then it became evident that he found much in her tell-tale face to confirm his sudden suspicion that all was not going well with his employer.

"I only wished to ask his advice about some correspondence he directed me to write." And the secretary's words contained a polite suggestion of apology for his inquiry.

The soup was brought on by Sarah.

"I beg your pardon, miss, but you have forgotten to take your medicine," she said.

"It doesn't matter," answered Blanche. "Never mind about it."

"But Dr. Fleming told me to be sure to see that you took it before each meal, miss."

"Well, bring it to me, Sarah; you are a good doctor yourself."

Blanche followed the girl into the pantry, and when she had taken the medicine she said: "Mrs. Goddard was detained in town to-night. Maj. Goddard has gone to meet her; she will return to-morrow. If the servants inquire you may explain." Then she went back to the table and she and Talley ate their dinner silently. It was as if he knew something had happened to which he had no right to allude.

CHAPTER III.

It was nine o'clock when Goddard reached the city. Immediately on leaving his train he engaged a hansom and was driven over to Fifth avenue and up that thoroughfare to the Palace hotel.

By temperament he was given to introspection and an almost morbid habit of analyzing his feelings, especially when his feelings were hurt. To-night his emotions had crowded him into an attitude of deep self-pity. He told himself that no man had ever suffered as keenly as he was suffering.

The cab took him past the building of which the second floor had been occupied by Jeanne's fashionable establishment when he had met her, fallen under her inexplicable charm and married her hurriedly. It was now with a feeling bordering on suspicion that he saw the brown stone walls of the unlighted structure flit by. He remembered how she had made him faithfully promise that he was never to ask her about her past connections. She had wept copiously at this juncture and he had somehow gathered that her relatives had belonged to such humble walks in life that she dreaded the loss of his love if he were to come in contact with them. He had laughed at such an idea, but in the years of Jeanne's rigid silence on the subject this very mystery had heightened her charm in his eyes.

He alighted from the hansom under the arched portico in the flare of lights about the entrance of the Palace hotel and went into the commodious office, which was at the juncture of two long corridors filled with well-dressed men and women seated in big chairs or strolling about. Strains of music from a Hungarian orchestra filled the air and there was afloat an odor which emanated from a Turkish smoking-room, where dim, sensuous lights burned under massive shades of crimson silk. As he threaded his way to the counter behind which stood the clerks of the house he had a queer feeling in his knees as if he had been sitting too long in a cramped position in the train. How strange for him to ask to be conducted to the room of his own wife! At that moment she seemed quite separated from him.

"My wife is here, I believe," he said to one of the clerks.

To the Voice of Plainfield People.

If you will but listen to your friends and neighbors, they will tell you how the pains and aches of a bad back, the nervousness, the restlessness that come from kidney ills can be relieved and cured. Read what one Plainfield citizen says:

Mrs. R. Wortman, living with her daughter, Mrs. S. E. Cook, of 204 Somerset street, says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills with good results for severe pains across my back and hips, which no doubt was caused by the kidneys being out of order. It was painful for me to stoop or bend forward and I could not sit ten minutes in one position, but had to be continually changing about. I used many different kinds of medicine recommended for kidney trouble, but I could not see that any of them benefitted me. Doan's Kidney Pills were procured for me at L. W. Randolph's drug store, and it is the only remedy I ever used that gave me any relief. I always keep a supply of them on hand and would not think of being without them."

The New Woman

By ELIZA ARCHARD CONNER

YOU will observe, if you take notice, that women who succeed by their own might in an industry or profession very often are of those born and brought up in the country. There the air in its purity and that finer cosmic force which scientists call the ether sweep through and through a child and give it lung power, muscle power and nerve force. Lately I heard Mrs. Ida Eckert-Lawrence read some of her poems at a meeting of the Ohio society in New York. They were from her book, "Day Dreams." An aura of nature life, of bright water, clear sky and western plain pervaded them, so that I wondered how a lady living the ordinary conventional city existence could know so much of these things. I learned afterward that in her childhood and girlhood the poet had lived close to nature and studied its ways as her first book. In a private letter Mrs. Lawrence says, "I was a child of the plains, running barefoot and spending many hours on the backs of Indian ponies with my father's herd." Later, when the girl felt the impulse to write rising strong in her, she began and made word pictures of the things she knew—cowboys, Indians, never ending plains and liberty. No wonder her stories were accepted in eastern periodicals, for she wrote of freedom and the things she knew. She also laid up such electric store of life in this glad rural girlhood that it has lasted her to this day. She is so youthful looking that last summer, when as an Ohio commissioner to the Paris exposition she went abroad, her son, who accompanied her, was everywhere taken for her brother.

The state of Illinois has had 90 women lawyers.

Those near to us are not necessarily dear to us. Sometimes it seems as if for their sins in a past incarnation people had been born into uncongenial families and surroundings in order to give them opportunity to repent and learn patience, sympathy and self control. I think of this frequently when I see the husbands and wives some good women and men put up with and particularly the fathers fate has forced upon some nice girls.

If I were managing editor of a newspaper, I would give women writers, reporters and artists a fair show with men.

Mary Proctor, the astronomer, is a large brained little woman without any humbug in her. She has the sincere, humble soul which all true worshipers at the shrine of science must have.

In the field of photographic astronomy there is a splendid future for women. By means of long exposure the photographic plate shows stars many times too small to be seen by the naked eye—stars as small as the eleventh magnitude. The plate is crossed with fine lines at right angles. Through measuring and counting these lines the astronomer ascertains the relative positions of stars. The work requires patience and exactitude in small details, like counting the stitches in crochet, for instance, and it is as fascinating as lace work.

Perfect happiness is not to be found in this life unless you can create it or evolve it from yourself. You will never get it from people and things outside of yourself. Don't expect it.

Girls, learn to speak and write good English. It is a shame and a disgrace that in this land of Bibles and public schools thousands of women and girls talk with their throats and noses instead of with their tongues. What is more, they are guilty of the crime of saying "ain't no" when they mean "are no." Ungrammatical dialect and the nasal whang have almost run their course even in novels, and it is time American women of good social standing dropped them.

Before you undertake to learn stenography get a good education in the English language. Be able to write in a good hand two or three pages of your own, with every word spelled correctly, every punctuation point in its place, and the grammar and composition flawless. Unless a young woman can do this she is not fit to be a stenographer.

Mrs. Jennie Stager of St. Cloud, Minn., is vice president of a horticultural society and director of an agricultural experiment station.

Women seem particularly adapted to being secretaries of organizations. The Interstate Good Roads association has for its secretary Miss Rella C. Harbee. In pursuit of her duties she traveled in one year 36,000 miles, almost once and a half the distance around the globe, organizing district good roads associations. In this she was highly successful. She interested her own sex everywhere in her mission. When the women of a district demand good roads, it is certain the men will make them.

SURPRISE FOR SHAH.

Ruler of Persian Realm to Revel in Delights of Ragtime.

Rare Treat In Store for Exalted Despot Who Has Never Known Charms of the "Coon Song"—Gets a Big Graphophone.

If there is not a revolution in Persia in a short time it will not be the fault of American composers of "coon" songs. Ragtime music is to be sprung for the first time on the unsuspecting shah and all his court. Unless he uses the most strenuous efforts it will not stop there. When the tintinnabulations of the syncopated melodies once get into the brains and the feet of the shah's suite, they will gradually percolate from the royal palaces out through the gardens and grounds and so to the subjects. As is well known, ragtime is like the scarlet fever. It spreads rapidly; nothing will stop its ravages, and it often leaves traces of its visit in its trail.

It is not a minstrel company which is going to do the trick. No ragtime piano player is to be introduced into the shah's palace to tickle that eccentric monarch with "Coon, Coon, Coon," or any other of the "very latest" ragtime effusions. It will all be done by a graphophone, and if trouble results the shah can get back at his American minister at Washington for starting things. The ruler of Persia is a great admirer of classical music. He would rather listen to Italian opera than not, and in his late tours of Europe he was a constant patron of the opera. While he was willing to spend money to gratify this taste, he did not want to maintain a first-class orchestra at court merely to play opera for him and therefore he decided to purchase a graphophone which would grind out his favorite airs whenever he pressed the button and which would not carry with it a pay roll as long as the royal arm.

Realizing that the best graphophones are made in this country and wanting to get the best machine that ever was built, the shah gave his minister at Washington carte blanche to fix things up with dealers in this country. The result was a graphophone which is the largest and most costly ever manufactured. It cost the shah $5,000 and the 150 records which accompany it cost $1,500 more. The machine is known technically as a multiplex grand and is as high and as wide as a railroad car. The mahogany case is of course artistically carved and decorated and the machine is furnished with three horns, the records for which are two and a half times as large as those used on the ordinary instruments. The volume of sound is equal to that of a church organ when the machine is going at full blast.

All this would not have been so bad had it not suddenly occurred to the shah's minister when he was selecting the records that his ruler had never heard any ragtime music. It may have been suggested by the graphophone people while the minister was picking out arias from "Faust" and "Martha" that possibly the shah would leap with joy if he could get a little bunch of syncopated music mixed in with the stuff that Gounod and Weber and those old fellows wrote. The minister, who is a fiend on ragtime, was tickled with the idea, and accordingly a score of records were made, with "coon" songs on their delicate wax surfaces. He is not going to warn the shah that some of the records must be handled with care. The ragtime selections are mixed with the classical pieces, without any hint of their dangerous proclivities, and that is where the trouble will begin. Just while the shah is leaning back reveling in a bit of "Trovatore" the slave who is operating the big machine may inadvertently slip on one of the syncopated records and push the button, and the next instant the shah will be startled with a rattle of melody telling him "You Told Me I Need Never Work No More" or reciting the dangers of "Goo Goo Eyes." After that it will be all off with Weber and Mascagni if the shah is made of human clay, and there is a well-grounded suspicion that he is. Berlioz will have to take a seat in the rear of the orchestra, while Ben Harney, Leo Friedman and the rest of them will crowd up in front and receive the honors.

If it stops there it will not be so bad. But when the news spreads through the city that the shah is enamored of a new kind of music, totally unlike that heard at the Persian theater at the world's fair, there will be a rush of the loyal subjects to get in line, and the syncopation of Persia will be complete.

The Financial Prospects of Baseball for This Summer

"WHAT will be the harvest in baseball this season?" This query has been fired at me by mail many times this spring—it is a standing question wherever the national game is discussed. Upon first blush it would seem that, inasmuch as some choice cyclones were sown, the same might be reaped in many fold. This, however, is begging the question.

If a harvest of money is meant, the critic might prepare himself for a disappointment. The promise of financial gain in both the National and American leagues seems about as bright as a field of grass cut into a dark brown quilt by millions of army worms. Yet the genial, rotund and optimistic executive of the American league, Ban Johnson, becomes red in the face when anyone mentions deficits in the American league. He has had one ambition since getting into high councils in baseball and that is to demonstrate to all followers of the sport that he has executive as well as business "sense." For that reason he directed the invasion of National league territory, planned the expansion of the American league, ordered the death-dealing attack upon that supposedly sacred "national agreement," determined that the option clauses of the National league could not hold in a court of equity, interested men of capital in his league's plans, and startled the major league drybones as they have not been stirred up since the days of the costly Brotherhood war. If you talk three minutes with the head of the expanded league, you will swear that he has plenty of foundation for his optimism.

To discuss financial features of baseball, it must be clearly understood that the two big leagues have each held their schedule meetings and put out the dates for the playing of games. Something like 60 clashes in dates are to be discerned, the friction being scheduled for Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago. A further guide is the respective circuits of the National and American leagues for the year. The National league's is: New York, Boston, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Cincinnati and Chicago.

The American league circuit embraces: Boston, Baltimore, Washington, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago and Milwaukee.

There has been no change in the National league circuit. One item of expense, is, therefore, saved the big organization. Enormous sums have been spent by the American league backers for preliminaries in Boston and Philadelphia to prepare grounds for play. From the nature of the ordinances of these two cities it is evident that no slipshod, firetrap parks will be permitted. That's why iron, steel and brick so largely enter into the contracts for stands and bleachers. The J. J. McGraw syndicate backing the new league in Baltimore can well afford its share of expense, and the calcium light turned on to Washington reveals the sanguine James Manning, formerly the popular American league franchise holder for Kansas City, smiling and giving certified checks to all contractors. Of course the wealthy Mr. Kilfoyl, of Cleveland, who is reported to have absorbed all of the stock formerly held by C. W. Somers, the vice president of the American league, is abundantly able to do any little jobs of "tinkering" that may be necessary at his grounds. Detroit has no need of expenses for grounds and Milwaukee is in the same boat. Comiskey's White Stocking park in Chicago, so hurriedly prepared last season for the opening of rival baseball, must necessarily have a few dollars spent on it. Grading, etc., are features of expense. But these would be incidentals were there no baseball war on.

CONNIE MACK,
Manager Philadelphia American League Team.

But how is the American to meet the extra salary list, without drawing on the bank accounts of the several "angels" who are among the stockholders? Jumping from a salary account of, say, $18,000 to $60,000 means something to a team that has to draw its revenue from "25-centers." But at the American league meeting in Chicago it was secretly planned to raid the National league for the purpose of taking away all the star players who would sign, and these magnates proceeded with their eyes open. They knew that all players would be on the lookout for every dollar they could get, and, of course, being practical baseball men, they knew that they would have to pay for their luxury. And how they have paid is the burden of almost every baseball item that appears in the daily papers.

Doubtless these American league magnates, following the magnetic leadership of the suave Ban Johnson, figured ahead far enough to see that they would have to cope with the Players' Protective association. They decided early in the winter to work harmoniously with any association that might be formed for the welfare of the baseball employe. In keeping faith with the Players' association the American league did just what it should have done. The arbitrary conduct of the rival league in ignoring the men was the ill wind that blew some good to the American league.

For weeks the opposing magnates of the big leagues have been begging, imploring, cajoling players to sign contracts. Money seemed to be no object when a good player was wanted. The players, in some instances, played Indian with the magnates and signed all contracts offered, depending on luck for dropping into the berth that paid the most. One thing injured the American league—it gave the National league more of a hold on its star men than anything else. That was the suspicion that the American league would go into bankruptcy or some such thing. Napoleon La Joie, the hard hitter of the Quaker team—by many considered the peer of any man who ever played the infield position and one of the heaviest batters in the big leagues, did not sign with Connie Mack's Philadelphia team until the manager had deposited his salary in escrow. Much as La Joie and his companions disliked Col. Rogers' discouraging "rules of conduct" made for the National league team, he and they knew that all salaries were always paid. So Flick, Bernhard, Frazer insisted on seeing the quid pro con before they would jump into the American league.

C. W. SOMERS,
Vice-President of the American League and the Boston Magnate.
